P
Univ.
H dHC

HARVARD COLLEGE

Class of 1888

SECRETARY'S REPORT NO. V.

February, 1905

Digitized by the Internet Archive in 2008 with funding from Microsoft Corporation

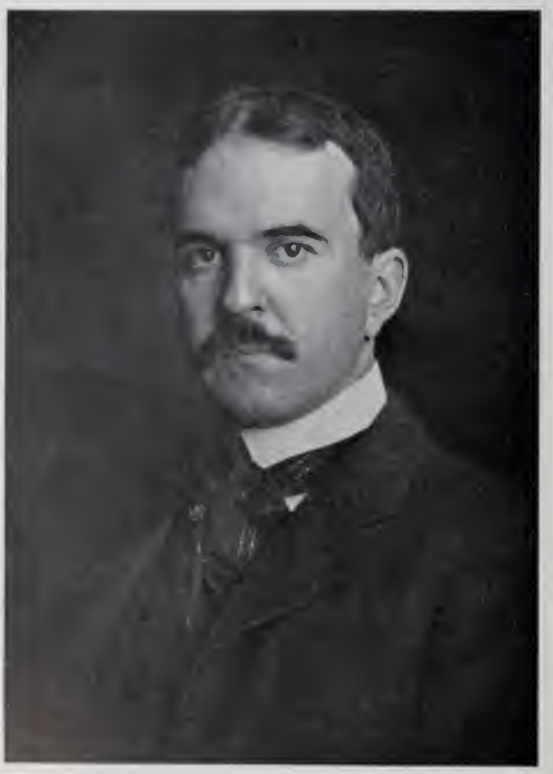
http://www.archive.org/details/n5secretarysre1888harvuoft



HARVARD COLLEGE.

Class of 1888.

SECRETARY'S REPORT NO. V.

February, 1905.

348842
5. 4. 38.

Class Committee.

ARTHUR PIERCE BUTLER.
MARSHALL HILL CLYDE.
HERBERT DUDLEY HALE.

Secretary.
FRED BATES LUND.

Treasurer.
COPLEY AMORY.

THE ROCKWELL AND CHURCHILL PRESS
BOSTON

TABLE OF CONTENTS.

	PAGE
PREFACE BY THE SECRETARY	5
TREASURER'S REPORT	6, 7
CLASS OF '88 — GRADUATES	9–11
TEMPORARY MEMBERS	12
RECORD OF THE CLASS	13–106
STATISTICS:
MARRIAGES	107–110
BIRTHS	111–114
DEATHS	115
FIFTEENTH ANNIVERSARY	116–122
ADDRESSES	123–128

PREFACE.

CLASSMATES:

It is feared by your secretary that some of you may have suspected that he had been paying more attention to matters pertaining directly to his profession than to performing the duties of secretary of his class. He does not attempt to exonerate himself in this particular, but wishes to state that in the hope of getting time to attend to the preparation of the report himself he postponed the work altogether too long, while waiting for a lucid interval in his professional work which never came.

He also feels that he has sufficiently demonstrated the fact that he is unable to give to the duties of secretary the time and thought necessary to their proper performance, and to announce his intention of resigning at the meeting, next June, an office the honor of which he has deeply appreciated, but the duties of which he has not satisfactorily performed. Feeling that the honor of the position ought to belong to him who actually performs the duties, and that, therefore, the appointment of an assistant secretary, to whom most of the work would be deputed, would not be fair to the incumbent of such an office, he requests his classmates to consider the election of a successor upon his resignation.

He wishes to thank his classmates for the forbearance with which they have treated him, and to express his regret at giving up an office entrusted to him by men of whose regard and loyalty he has so deep an appreciation. His interest in and affection for his classmates will, he fears, never convert him into a good historian or statistician, and he would, therefore, retire in favor of some other who would better perform the work required of your secretary.

Ever sensible of the honor which he is obliged to forego, he remains,

Your classmate,

F. B. LUND.

CLASS FUND.

INVENTORY.

Securities of the Harvard Class '88 Fund with Estimated Value, as of April 30, 1903, incorporated in Statement of May 1, 1903.

5	shares	Atch. Top. & Santa Fe R.R. Co., 82⅛	$410 63
20	"	Am. Tel. & Tel. Co., 161	3,220 00
2	"	Edison Elec. Ill. Co., 275	3,300 00
2	"	" " " " (new 70 % pd.)	385 00
30	"	General Electric Co., 193½	5,805 00
5	"	New Eng. Tel. & Tel. Co., 138	690 00
18	"	Northern Securities Co., 98½	1,773 00
9	"	New York Cen. R.R. Co., 130¼	1,172 25
10	"	Penn. R.R. Co., 136½	1,365 00
3	"	West'n Tel. & Tel. Co., Pref., 95	285 00
10	"	United Shoe Mach'y Co., Com., 47½	475 00
10	"	Union Pacific R.R. Co., Com., 91⅛	911 25
			$19,792 13

HARVARD CLASS '88 FUND.

Statement showing the Receipts and Expenditures from May 1, 1898, to May 1, 1903.

RECEIPTS.

Amount to Credit of Income Account, May 1, 1898,	$508 42
Income from Investments	2,011 71
Gain on Securities	9,032 32
		$11,552 45

EXPENDITURES.

General Expense, Committee and Agent . .	$1,817 23
Interest, paid to Moors & Cabot, per account .	440 19
Subscriptions written off	95 60
Balance carried forward	9,199 43
		$11,552 45

BALANCE SHEET.

CREDIT.

Harvard Class '88 Fund, amount subscribed .		$7,576 05
Moors & Cabot, balance due to date . . .		4,003 24
Copley Amory		81 42
Receipts and Expenditures		9,199 43

DEBIT.

Subscriptions unpaid and overdue . . .	$862 50
Investment account, securities as per Inventory,	19,792 13
Cash on hand	205 51
	$20,860 14	$20,860 14

CHARLES FRANCIS ADAMS, 2d,
Agent.

I have examined the books, vouchers, and securities of the Class Fund and find the above statement correct.

EDWARD J. L. CLARE,
Public Accountant.

CLASS OF 1888.

GRADUATES.

The asterisk (*) denotes deceased members.

Walter Abbott,
Charles Francis Adams, 2d,
George Lockhart Allen,
William Sylvester Allen,
Copley Amory,
Larz Anderson,
James Waldingfield Appleton,
Gaston Meares Ashe,
James Walker Austin,
James Alderson Bailey, Jr.,
Franklin Greene Balch,
Charles Handy Baldwin,
Wilder Dwight Bancroft,
William Barnes, Jr.,
John Daniel Barry,
Nathaniel Edward Bartlett,
William Beals, Jr.,
Joseph Irving Bennett,
William Bayard de Billier,
William Julian Albert Bliss,
Edward Ludlam Blossom,
Melvin Edward Boas,
Maxime Bôcher,
Charles Bohlen,
Wilfred Bolster,
Fordyce Huntington Bottum,
Joseph Henry Bowen,
Frederic Josiah Bradlee,
Graham Hunting Brewer,
George Atwood Brock,
Causten Browne, Jr.,
Thomas Quincy Browne, Jr.,
Walter Franklin Brush,
Myron Luther Bruuer,
Cyril Herbert Burdett,
Arthur Pierce Butler,
Charles Mills Cabot,
George Albert Carpenter,
Percy Chase,
H. Durant Cheever,
Richard Percy Chittenden,
Charles Francis Choate, Jr.,
Asaph Churchill,
Charles Worcester Clark, *1891
Henry Martyn Clarke, Jr.,
Marshall Bidwell Clarke,
Frederic Percival Clement,
Marshall Hill Clyde,
Thomas Clyde, 3d,
Stephen Russell Hurd Codman,
Charles Northend Cogswell,
George Proctor Cogswell,
George Washington Cram,
Kendall Fox Crocker,
Alan Cunningham,
Benjamin Franklin Curtis, Jr.,
Francis Bryden Dana,
John Dane,
William Peck Daniels,
Walter Dorsey Davidge, Jr.,
Thomas Drummond Davidson,
Chandler Davis,
Frank Lincoln Dean,
Franklin Henry Dewart,
David Taggart Dickinson,
Hartie Beekman Drake, *1894
Russell Duane,
Carroll Everett Edson,
Henry Edwards,
John Rice Eldridge,
Wendell Phillips Elkins,
Carl Adolf Ewald,

Frank Lewis Fales,
Charles Ernest Farnum,
Herbert Haviland Field,
Grover Flint,
Walter Greenwood Forsyth,
William Everett Fowler,
Carleton Shurtleff Francis,
Charles Friend,
Robert Higginson Fuller,
Horace Howard Furness, Jr.,
William Henry Furness, 3d,
Herbert Elbridge Gale,
William Wakefield Gale,
James Ambrose Gallivan,
William Joseph Gallivan,
Lloyd McKim Garrison, *1900
Marshall John Gasquet, A.B., (Spring Hill Coll.) 1886, Arthur Park Gay,
George Bruno de Gersdorff,
Howard Beers Gibson, *1894
Henry Lathrop Gilbert,
John Milton Gitterman,
Clarence Willard Gleason,
Sidney Gleason,
Gustavus Adolphus Goebel,
Samuel Amory Goodhue,
Josiah Ferdinand Gooding,
Charles Haven Goodwin, *1889
Ernest Barron Gordon,
Perley William Graham,
Charles Lamson Griffin,
Herbert Dudley Hale,
Edward Jewett Hall, *1890
George Gilman Hall,
Samuel Stickney Hall,
James Mott Hallowell,
Cosmond Rose Hammerslough,
Philip Melancthon Hammett,
Horace Ware Hanson,
James Francis Harlow, *1904
Edward Avery Harriman,
Edward Bristol Harvey,
Charles Hamant Harwood,
Gustavus Hay, Jr., *1901
Harry Edgar Hayes,
William Pride Henderson,
Homer Winthrop Hervey,
Norman Francis Hesseltine,
Albert Fairchild Holden,
Daniel Curtis Holder, Jr.,
Oscar Howe Holder,
Robert Afton Holland, Jr.,
Lockwood Honoré,
Walter Gregg Horton,
Edward Sturges Hosmer,
Arthur Lincoln Howard,
Arthur Cornelius Jackson,
Herbert Keightley Job,
Arthur Treadway Johnson, [*1891
Charles Francis Kahnweiler,
Francis Demetrius Kalopothakés,
Lindley Miller Keasbey,
Frederick Keffer Kelbam, *1895
Michael Edward Kelley,
Ralph Averill Kellogg,
Frederic Hedge Kennard,
Edward Hamilton Kidder, *1898
Willard Robert Kimball,
Francis Wallace Knowles,
Perry Lawton,
William Augustine Leahy,
George Bridge Leighton,
Robert Hamilton Leland,
George Heydenfeldt Lent,
Robert Coleman Le Roy,
Leo Rich Lewis,
Charles Jacob Livingood,
James Loeb,
Fred Bates Lund,
Francis Ellas McCall, *1890
John White McCammon, *1892
Samuel Foster McCleary, Jr., *1891
Rowland Blennerhassett Mahany,
Richard Clarke Manning, Jr.,
Francis Skiddy Marden, [*(—)
Alexander Beckwith Marks,
George Edward Marsh, Jr.,
Edward Campbell Mason,
Henry Lowell Mason,
George Herbert Mead,

Frederick Howard Means,
William Stetson Merrill,
Harry Fessenden Meserve,
Harry Roberts Miles,
Sidney Roby Miner,
William Mitchell,
Charles De Verd Musaus,
William Nelson,
Rupert Norton,
William Kimball Norton,
Peter Joseph O'Callaghan,
Nathan Oppenheim,
Robert Lee Overton, *1900
Herman Page,
Robert Treat Paine, Jr.,
Bradley Webster Palmer,
Heywood Mason Hall, *1889
Frank Dixon Peale,
Edward Allen Pease,
Charles Henry Pennypacker,
Valentine Mott Pierce,
Edmund Platt,
Frederic Plummer,
Henry Merrihew Plummer,
Henry Temple Pope,
Charles Allen Porter,
Edward Bigley Pratt,
Henry Allston Pulsford,
George Royal Pulsifer,
William Henry Rand, Jr.,
Albert Wood Rantoul,
F. J. Reynolds,
John Earle Reynolds,
George Joseph Richards, *1900
Charles Butler Rogers,
William Ropes,
Edward Hosmer Savary,
James Alfred Saxe,
John Walter Saxe,
Bernard Turner Schermerhorn,
John Hunt Sedgwick,
Thomas Taylor Seelye,
John Merwine Seip,
Charles Tilden Sempers,
Jeremiah M. Shahan, A.B.,
Herman Thyng Shepard,
(Wesleyan Univ.) 1886,
Thomas Osborne Shepard,
Ferdinand Shoninger, *1893
Allan Thacher Simpkins,
Chauncey Smith, Jr.,
Edwin William Spalding,
William Stuart Spaulding,
Frederick Dudley Stetson,
Edmund Channing Stowell,
Lynde Sullivan,
William Lawson Sumrall,
Harold Swain,
Solomon Louis Swarts,
Edward Wyllys Taylor,
Ezra Ripley Thayer,
Lucian Skinner Thayer,
William Goodrich Thompson,
Harvey Parker Towle,
Edward Warren Trull, [*1892
George Edward Walter Ulrich,
Ralph Henry Van Deman,
John William Henry Walden,
Ervin Wardman,
Henry Steete Wardner,
Edward Ross Warren,
Farrington Hasham Whipple,
Walter Marinus Willett,
Frank Backus Williams,
Frank Beverly Williams,
John Walter Wood, Jr.,
Francis Call Woodman,
William McMichael Woodworth,
Julius Frieberg Workum.

The following received the Degree of S.B.:

Benjamin Carpenter.

TEMPORARY MEMBERS.

James Ekin Allison,
Frederick Ellsworth Austin,
Frederic Moreau Backus,
Thomas Jennings Bailey,
Wakefield Baker,
Henry Blanchard Barber,
Alexander Robert Baum,
Bernhard Berenson,
Alexander Henry Bill,
Benjamin Leonard Boodry,
Dwight Whitney Bowles,
Albert Gallatin Broadhead,
Henry Goodnow Bruce,
Charles Carroll,
Frederick Simon Cate, [*1897
Ernest Bernard Chenoweth,
Charles Chollet,
Frederic Clinton DeVeau,
Philip Dexter,
William Franklin Draper,
Garritt Droppers,
Sheldon Emery, *1891
Charles Simpkins Fay,
Herbert Melancthon Federhen, Jr.,
Paul Foster Folsom,
George Medory Foster,
Henry Franc,
Daniel Paine Griswold,
James Winslow Hall,
Jonathan Eddy Hamblen,
Harry May Hartshorn,
Charles Sumner Hervey,
Michael Joseph Holland,
Charles Richardson Holman,
Harry Van Cortlandt Homans,
George Augustus Hopkins, [*1901
John Byron Hussey,
Charles Edwin Ingersoll,
Fred Saville Jewett,
Charles Redington Joy,
Albert Lilienthal,
Henry Jarvis Livermore,
Milburn Love,
Edward Sealy McFee,
John Hitz Metzerott,
Hugo Richard Meyer,
Walter Louis Milliken,
Josiah Beard Moore,
Francis Lister Hawkes Noble,
Edward Warren Ordway,
William Hicks Osgood, *1888
Lincoln Rea Peabody,
Francis Boies Penrose,
Seth Clark Peterson,
Norman Carter Phillips,
George Totten Quinby,
Franklin Remington,
John Wallace Riddle,
Frank Clinton Roby,
Charles Joseph Rolfe,
Henry Warren Sampson,
Harry Shelton Sanford, *1891
Charles Brooks Saunderson,
William Bacon Scofield, [*1888
George Martin Seelye,
William Abner Simpson,
Dan Louis Smith,
William Kanan Smith,
Daniel Kimball Snow,
Edmund Samuel Spalding,
Joseph Sampson Stevens,
Harry Patterson Stow,
Walter Gove Taylor,
Eben Blanchard Thaxter,
Isaac Rand Thomas,
William Manning Van Heusen,
Julius Ross Wakefield,
Eugene Carroll Webster,
William Hutchinson Weston,
Joseph Swift Whistler,
Nathan Howard Winslow, *1901

81 + 238 = 320

HARVARD COLLEGE.

CLASS OF 1888.

WALTER ABBOTT

Was in the iron business in New York until the outbreak of the Spanish War, when he was commissioned second lieutenant, First U. S. V. Engineers. Served with the regiment in Porto Rico. Came home in November, 1898, and took a position as vice-president and general manager of the United Electric Securities Company of Boston. Held this until January, 1902, when he went to London as a director and member of Executive Committee of the Underground Electric Railways Company, of London, Limited, of which Chas. T. Yerkes is chairman. Had been here since January, 1902.

Care of Gordon Abbott, Ames Bldg., Boston, Mass.

C. F. ADAMS, 2D,

In April, 1899, married Frances Lovering. Catherine Adams born January, 1902. Is treasurer of Harvard University.

Address, 50 State street, and Concord, Mass.

GEORGE LOCKHART ALLEN

Was member of Salem city government 1890–91. Sinking Fund Commissioner of Salem for three years, 1892–94. Chairman of Republican City Committee for years 1895–96.

Is connected with a few banks and local corporations as a director. Has travelled in the South, Mexico, and Canada. Is located in business in Salem in Brokerage and Investment Bond business and in Real Estate along the north shore. A member of the firm of Allen, Rogers & Co., with offices at 43 Church street, Salem, and 24 Congress street, Boston. Devotes most of his time to looking after sales of summer places in Essex County, Mass., the care of them, etc. Does more or less expert work testifying and appraising of real estate.

On June 1, 1904, was married at Salem, Mass., to Florence Levers Hobbie, daughter of Mrs. Annie Wallace Hobbie.

Address, George Lockhart Allen, 298½ Essex street, Salem, Mass. P.O. Box 233.

COPLEY AMORY.

Since our last report his family has increased to five sons by birth of Walter, June 13, 1899, and Thomas Chace, Nov. 30, 1901.

Address, 713 Barristers Hall, Boston.

LARZ ANDERSON.

"After resignation from the army in the autumn of 1898, we passed the winter in British India and Ceylon; the next winter we passed in Mexico and Southern California, Bradlee and de Billier being of our travelling companions. Last year we cruised through the West Indies and along the coast of South America, and visited Cuba while still under our military government. When not travelling my time has been occupied with home interests.

"Summer address, 'Weld,' Brookline, Mass.

"Winter address, 1530 K street, Washington City.

"Office address, 81 Mason Building, Boston."

JAMES W. APPLETON.

Business address, 21 Maiden Lane, New York.

Home address, 28 East 36th street, New York.

GASTON MEARES ASHE

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, Tres Pinos, San Benito Co., Cal.

JAMES W. AUSTIN.

"I am practising law at 53 State street, Boston, Mass.
"Residence, Woodland road, Jamaica Plain."

JAMES A. BAILEY, Jr.

"During the last five years I have continued in the practice of law in Boston, having offices with Bolster, Dickinson and Pulsifer, all of our class. In 1900 Governor Crane appointed me a member of the Metropolitan Sewerage Commission, and my colleagues elected me chairman. In 1901, upon the consolidation of commissions, I was appointed a member of the newly-created Metropolitan Water and Sewerage Board. This board constructs and operates the main water and sewerage works for Boston and the neighboring towns and cities of the Metropolitan District. My duties are agreeable, and I am pleasantly associated with Hon. Henry H. Sprague '64 and Dr. Henry P. Walcott '58, the other members.

"I am a director in the First National Bank of Arlington, and president of the Arlington Coöperative Bank.

"In 1900 I made a brief trip to Europe. In February, 1903, I was married to Helen Gage Dolliver, of Arlington.

"Business address, 414 Barristers Hall, Pemberton square, Boston, Mass.

"Home address, Pleasant street, Arlington, Mass."

FRANKLIN G. BALCH.

"With the exception of the fact I have one more child, Henry Gordon Balch, born Aug. 8, 1901, I do not know that there is much to add to my last report. I am still Surgeon to Out-patients at the Massachusetts General Hospital, and Visiting Surgeon at the Carney Hospital. I am also surgeon to the Faulkner Hospital. I am an assistant in clinical and operative surgery at the Harvard Medical School. I have resigned from the Harvard Musical Association, and joined two or three more musical societies.

"Address, 279 Clarendon street, Boston."

CHARLES H. BALDWIN.

"I regret that I cannot do more than 'report progress.'

"Address, 100 Washington street, Chicago."

WILDER D. BANCROFT.

"As at the time of the last report, I am teaching physical chemistry at Cornell University, the only changes being that I now have a new laboratory, the best in the country, and that I have just been appointed full professor. The 'Journal of Physical Chemistry,' which I started in 1896, is now in its seventh year and still flourishing — much to the surprise of everybody, including myself. I was one of half a dozen to help start the American Electrochemical Society, of which I am a vice-president. I am also a charter member of the American Physical Society, which was started a few years ago. For next year I am vice-president of the chemical section of the American Association for the Advancement of Science. I am a director of the local telephone company, and have been president of the Ithaca Country Club since it was founded in 1900.

"I now have three children, two born since the last report: Hester, May 2, 1900, and John Chandler, April 11, 1902. Most of the summers have been spent at Newport, and the only travelling that I have done has been in connection with scientific meetings.

"Address is 7 East avenue, Ithaca, N.Y."

WILLIAM BARNES.

"My activities are still confined to the cause of the political party of my accepted faith. They are not varied, for on the first Tuesday after the first Monday in November each year there is a reckoning day, and on the day after the upbuilding for the next combat begins. Thus each year is spent in maintaining a position gained, or in endeavoring to regain one lost.

"Address, 61 State street, Albany, N.Y."

JOHN D. BARRY.

For the past few years John D. Barry has been devoting himself to writing fiction and literary and dramatic criticism. He has published several novels, among them, "Mademoiselle Blanche," "A Daughter of Thespis," and "The Congressman's Wife." His permanent address is The City Club, 55 West 44th street, New York City.

N. E. BARTLETT.

There is nothing to report of interest to the class. Four children. Address, N. J. Bartlett & Co., 28 Cornhill, Boston. Home address, 607 Main street, Wakefield.

WILLIAM BEALS, Jr.

"Since the last report, in addition to my work as consulting mining engineer to several companies, I have been engaged in examining mines (mostly 'sick' ones) which in one case needed either more capital or better management or, in the other, consignment to the limbo of obscurity. This work has taken me to all parts of the country, meaning by this the area lying between Alaska and the Isthmus of Panama. To date, I have been fortunate enough to escape going further north than the 50th parallel.

"Address, 50 Congress street, Room 927, Boston."

JOSEPH I. BENNETT

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 61 Court street, Boston.

WILLIAM B. DE BILLIER.

"Travelled with Col. L. Anderson on his private car in the winter of 1901, through Mexico and California, 1903. Spent the winter with W. S. Spaulding on his steam yacht. It is taking a trip through the West Indies. Still with de Billier Company in 'Wall' street. Have done nothing strenuous, but still have my hair, which is more than many of our classmates can say, including the doctors.

"Business address, 20 Broad street, New York. Home address, 640 Madison avenue."

W. J. A. BLISS.

"1894-'95, served on the committee on public works of the Reform League in supplying materials to the city council for an investigation of frauds in the engineering department of the city, and in drawing up an act of Legislature designed to reorganize that department, an agitation which contributed largely to the overthrow of the corrupt administration the following election, and to the grant by Legislature of a new city charter a few years later, which has revolutionized municipal politics here and converted Baltimore from one of the worst to one of the best-governed cities in the country. In the election of 1895, as volunteer watcher at the polls, I was struck from behind back of the ear, stunned, and in the fall my jaw was broken in several places and also my nose, in fact, my features were generally altered. The assault, though one of many that day, occurred at noon in a conspicuous place, and was very much placarded by the press, and is said to have turned a large number of votes. The election was carried by the reform candidates, and is still referred to, making a crisis in Baltimore politics.

"1896. — November 19, marriage to Edith Granthorn West, daughter of Harry F. West, of Philadelphia.

"1897.— July and August seriously ill with appendicitis at Havre, France, while on a bicycle trip through Normandy with my wife, a belated wedding journey.

"Since the date of the last report I have continued to live at Baltimore, retaining my position as Associate in Physics at Johns Hopkins University till June, 1901, when I was promoted to be Collegiate Professor of Physics. I have during that time been engaged entirely in the routine work of the department, and have not published anything. I continue to be much interested in municipal reform, and was for some time on the Executive Committee of the Baltimore Reform League, but have been obliged lately, by lack of time, to give up active work, though I continue to serve on less energetic committees. In 1901 I declined the Republican nomination to the city council from my ward in order to support the Democratic nominee, who had an excellent record of previous service therein. Children: Eleanor, born in Jamestown, R.I., Aug. 16, 1899; Frances McDowell, born at Baltimore, Nov. 6, 1900. Member of American Physical Society, Baltimore Reform League, Harvard Club of Maryland, University Club of Baltimore and a number of other social and outdoor clubs; Loyal Legion (by inheritance).

"Business address, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md. Home address, 1017 St. Paul street, Baltimore, Md."

EDWARD LUDLUM BLOSSOM.

"Am still in the West, and have learned to prefer it. At last writing I was superintendent of a copper smelter at Trail, British Columbia. A few months later my company sold out. For two years I was more or less of a wanderer, during which time I took a special course for a year at the Michigan College of Mines.

"In the spring of 1900 became Assistant Superintendent of the Montana Ore Purchasing Company Smelter at Butte, and eighteen months later was appointed superintendent of the same. The work is very congenial. Am a member of the Silver Bow Club of Butte and of the Montana Society of Engineers.

"Address, Butte, Montana."

MELVIN E. BOAS

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 42 Bond street, New York.

MAXIME BÔCHER.

Third child, Frederick, born May 18, 1898.

Has made numerous contributions to mathematical journals, and has written an article in the "Mathematical Encyclopedia" now being published in Germany. Has also made a revision of Briggs's "Analytic Geometry."

Became a fellow of the American Academy of Arts and Sciences in January, 1900. Was one of the two vice-presidents of the American Mathematical Society during the year 1902.

Was reappointed for a second term as Assistant Professor of Mathematics at Harvard from September, 1899. Was managing editor of the "Annals of Mathematics" (published at Harvard) in 1899–1900, and 1902–1903.

Spent the summers of '93, '95, '97, '99 in Europe, chiefly in Germany. The years 1900, 1901 had as a sabbatical year, and spent it with his family in Germany and Italy.

Address, 14 Avon street, Cambridge, Mass.

CHARLES BOHLEN

Was married Jan. 14, 1902 to Miss Celestine Eustis, daughter of Hon. James B. Eustis, U.S. Senator from Louisiana and Ambassador to France. A son, Henry Morgan Bohlen, was born Dec. 13, 1902.

Lived at Aiken, S.C., in winter, and Clayton, N.Y., in summer. Permanent address for letters, Philadelphia Club, 1301 Walnut street, Philadelphia, Pa.

Has been to Egypt three times, also Greece, Turkey, Sicily, and Japan.

WILFRED BOLSTER

Is still practising law, associated with Bailey, Dickinson, and Pulsifer, all of '88. Member of Boston School Board 1901, 1902, 1903. Was appointed Special Justice, Boston Municipal Court, in 1902. Has two children, both boys.

Business address, 417 Barristers Hall, Boston. Home address, 137 Ruthven street, Roxbury.

FORDYCE HUNTINGTON BOTTUM.

"Since October, 1888, I have lived in the city of Milwaukee and have practised the profession of law there since 1891. Since 1898 I have been a member of the firm of Ryan, Ogden & Bottum, engaged in a general practice of law.

"My travelling has been almost wholly that connected with professional work.

"Business address is Wells Building, Milwaukee, Wis. Home address, 9 The Majestic, Milwaukee, Wis."

JOS. H. BOWEN.

"I am still associated with my father in the coal and coastwise shipping business at 13 South Main street, Fall River. I have been married since 1890, and have three boys, who are twelve, seven and three and one-half years old, respectively.

"Address, 168 Belmont avenue, Fall River, Mass."

FREDERICK J. BRADLEE.

Three sons, F. J. Bradlee, Jr., Sargent Bradlee, Malcolm Bradlee.

Is a member of the Corporation of Provident Institutions for Savings. Travelled in Mexico and Southern California in winter of 1901. Was in Florida with W. P. Daniels, '88, in winter of 1902.

Business address, 28 State street, Boston, Mass. Home address, 26 Marlboro street, Boston, Mass.

GRAHAM H. BREWER.

"Since September, 1888, I have been connected with the Washington Life Insurance Company of New York. In April, 1896, I was appointed secretary of the company and elected a member of the Board of Directors, which positions I still hold. In 1900 I was elected to the Board of Trustees of South Orange, N.J. (my native town and present residence) for a term of two years. Was re-elected without opposition in 1902 for a second term of two years.

"On April 28, 1892, I was married to Alice Humphrey, formerly of Albany, N.Y. Have three children: Theodore Graham Brewer, born May 13, 1895; Graham Hunting Brewer, Jr., born Nov. 21, 1899; and Elsie Brewer, born Jan. 19, 1903.

"Member of 'Harvard Club' of New York, one of the corporate members of the 'Underwriters' Club' of New York and now one of its governors. Member of Century Lodge No. 100, F. & A. M., South Orange, N.J.

"Have travelled more or less in the United States, principally on business. In 1902 spent two weeks in and about Yellowstone Park, which every American should visit. Stopped at Portland, Ore., Seattle and Tacoma, Wash., returning via Vancouver and Victoria, over the Canadian Pacific.

"Business address, 141 Broadway, New York. Home address, South Orange, N.J."

GEORGE ATWOOD BROCK.

"Since leaving Harvard I have attended Yale Divinity School, from which I received the degree of B.D. in 1891.

"In June, 1891, I settled in Saxonville, Mass., as pastor of the Congregational Church. Here I remained just eight years. Others tell me that my pastorate was very successful, but I am not ready to say 'amen.' The work was pleasing, but not flattering.

"In 1899, May, I became pastor of the East avenue Congregational Church of Lockport, N.Y. I was better equipped for the work in a city after my eight years of study in the country. The problem here has been a financial one. The church was unfinished and yet bankrupt. By four years of patient effort we have organized the debt so that it is not a menace, and in addition had quite an increase in our membership. Expect to stay here for several years yet.

"Have a wife; no children by birth, but one seven-year-old daughter by legal adoption, and one older girl (thirteen years) who is my ward according to Massachusetts law.

"Life has been singularly homespun. Work, sleep, eat, and vacation have been the extent of my tether.

"Address, 88 Waterman street, Lockport, N.Y."

CAUSTEN BROWNE, JR.

"Since the last installment of my autobiography there is but little to add. I am still living in Salt Lake City, and at present connected with one of the banks of that place.

"On Oct. 18, 1899, I was married to Caroline Wilhelmina Zeigler, at Saint Mark's cathedral in Salt Lake City.

"Address, Salt Lake City, Utah."

THOMAS Q. BROWNE, JR.,

Is associate principal of the Morristown school (1898–1903). Is honorable secretary Egypt Exploration Fund for Morristown, N.J. (1899–'03). Member of the Victoria Institute, London (Philosophical Society of Great Britain), '99–03.

"Travelled through Italy with a well-known artist; delightful mornings in Vedder's studio, and evenings looking out over Rome from his terrace. Switzerland, France, Paris Exposition.

It may possibly be news to some lovers of the sea that there is a first-class line to New Orleans, and as pleasant a two-weeks trip as one could ask for (barring the accident of a West India hurricane, such as the one we encountered).

"Address, Morristown School, Morristown, N.J."

HENRY G. BRUCE

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

W. FRANKLIN BRUSH.

"I have made efforts in the cause of good government in New York City, but no political preferment has come my way.

"I have issued no publications beyond appeals for money and reports of charitable institutions.

"I have travelled once since the last report, and as far as Japan. This was a delightful experience, but of all the impressions which I received the only one which I would chronicle for your notice was the prevalence of Harvard men, both Japs and otherwise, about the dominion of the Mikado.

"I have discontinued the practice of the law. I have studied theology even in theological schools, but without final entrance into orders or the ministry, and I have tried teaching history in the Hackley School at Tarrytown, N.Y.

"Address is 16 East 37th street, New York City."

MYRON LUTHER BRUUER.

"For the past five years I have been living quietly at home carrying on my father's farm.

"Address, Wilbraham, Mass."

CYRIL HERBERT BURDETT.

"At the time of the last class report I was practising law in the employ of the Title Guarantee and Trust Company of New York City. On the 1st of January, 1902, I associated myself with the new company, organized for the purpose of guaranteeing titles to real estate in New York City, called 'The Title Insurance Company of New York,' and was elected secretary of this company, as well as of the New York Mortgage and Security Company and the Chelsea Realty Company, two allied corporations, and am now seeking to put in practical form the results of my experience of the past ten years in this specialized field of work.

"Business address, 149 Broadway, New York City.

"Home address, 257 East 14th street, Brooklyn, N.Y."

ARTHUR PIERCE BUTLER.

"The spring of the year of the last report — 1898-99 — saw the break up of the school with which I had been associated since the autumn. Such was the belief of my associates, Woodman and Browne and myself, in the opportunities for work in the field where we had been so unexpectedly drawn together that we spent the following summer in reorganizing the school. With the help of friends, many of whom were among the members of '88, sufficient money was raised to form a new corporation and buy the property from the receiver for the old school.

"Since that time we have been pretty completely engrossed in mastering the problems of an undertaking with which we had had but little practical experience. The combination has proved an excellent one, however, and little by little the scope of the work has widened, and the progress been steady towards a permanent usefulness.

"We like to feel that '88 is largely responsible for making the school a possibility. Our doors are always open and our home elastic, so that visitors are always welcome, and we hope that those interested in education or life, young or old, will come to see us as often as they can to give us the benefit of their friendly criticism.

"Address, Morristown School, Morristown, N.J."

CHARLES M. CABOT.

"Am still junior member of the firm of Moors & Cabot, stock brokers, 111 Devonshire street, Boston.

"My son, James Elliot Cabot, was born June 16, 1899.

"Business address, 111 Devonshire street, Boston. Home address, 297 Marlborough street, Boston."

BENJAMIN CARPENTER

Is in business with George B. Carpenter & Co., as by the last report. Has two children born since the last report.

Is president of the Harvard Club of Chicago.

GEORGE ALBERT CARPENTER.

"I am still practising law in Chicago, and so far have had my share of success. Have never held a public office, although I have been accused by some Yale men of being a political boss on the North Side. Anything they say, however, must be taken (owing to constitutional and perhaps acquired prejudices) cum grano salis.

"Address, 49 Delaware place, Chicago."

PERCY CHASE.

"During the summer I live in Topsfield, where I built a house four years ago. The rest of the year in Brookline.

"Business address, 53 State street, Room 813, Boston. Home, Brookline, Mass."

H. DURANT CHEEVER.

"I am still managing director of the Okonite Company, Ltd., manufacturing insulated wire and cables, which business has steadily grown and is in a most prosperous condition.

"Have made a number of trips to Europe, but in no case out of the beaten path familiar to every one.

"Addresses:

"Office, 253 Broadway, New York.

"Home, 32 East 51st street, New York."

RICHARD PERCY CHITTENDEN.

"After graduating with the Class of '88 at Harvard, I entered the Harvard Law School and was graduated with the Class of 1891. The same year I was admitted to the Suffolk Bar, and opened an office in the Tremont Building in Boston, where I remained for two years. I was married Jan. 28, 1892, to Miss Fisher, of Montreal, Can., and have two children. In 1893 I went to Chicago and became a member of a law firm. After practising in Chicago for two years, I entered the office of Davies, Stone & Auerbach, New York, and was counsel for the Manhattan Elevated Railroad. In 1895 I was made Counsel for the Brooklyn Elevated Railroad Company, and remained with them for three years. In 1898 I was appointed Assistant Corporation Counsel, and in 1901 was reappointed by the new administration. I resigned April 1, 1903, to become a member with Frank Harvey Field, of the firm of Field & Chittenden, where I am now engaged in the practice of law.

"During the five years and two months in which I was in the Corporation Counsel's office, I had an extensive practice in municipal law. I conducted on behalf of the city the trial and appeal of the most important cases arising in the Borough of Brooklyn subsequent to consolidation, and took part in many cases involving the interpretation of the New York Charter. I am a member of the Crescent and Brooklyn Clubs and a Son of the Revolution. I am also a member of the Corporation of the Polytechnic Institute of Brooklyn.

"Address, 8404 12th avenue, Brooklyn."

CHARLES FRANCIS CHOATE, JR.,

Has been in the active practice of law in Boston since the last report.

Address, 506 Sears Building. Home, Southboro, Boston, Mass.

ASAPH CHURCHILL.

"Married, June 14, 1900, to Helen Olivia French, of Jamaica Plain.

"Moved to Milton, Mass., where I now reside. Went into the paper business for myself in August, 1901, in which occupation I still remain. Was appointed treasurer of the Rockwell & Churchill Press in March, 1904.

"Have two children: Olivia Churchill, born Oct. 28, 1901, and Barbara Ellen Churchill, born Nov. 21, 1903.

"City address, 522 John Hancock Bldg., Boston, Mass."

HENRY MARTYN CLARKE.

"In December, 1900, I retired from the practice of law and began a real estate brokerage business, in which I have been reasonably successful.

"Business address, 50 State street, Boston. Home address, Union Club, Boston."

MARSHALL B. CLARKE.

"Was appointed Assistant District Attorney of New York County, by District Attorney Jerome, on Jan. 1, 1902, and am still serving in that capacity.

"Am member of New York Bar Association and Society of Medical Jurisprudence.

"Office address, District Attorney's Office, New York.

"Temporary residence, Lawrence Park, Bronxville, N.Y."

FREDERIC P. CLEMENT.

Business, lumber manufacturing. Three children.

Address, Harrisville, N.Y.

Home address, Harrisville, N.Y., and Rutland, Vt.

MARSHALL HILL CLYDE

Was married on June 18, 1901, to Margery Lanman Bucklin, of New York City.

Address, 19 State street, New York.

THOS. CLYDE.

"My life since leaving college has been devoted mainly to the various interests of the Clyde Steamship Company, first in connection with its trade with Santo Domingo and Hayti, and later with its coastwise trade. I am now secretary and assistant treasurer of the company, and a member of the firm of Wm. P. Clyde & Co., its general agents.

"I have also devoted much time to the business of dry docking and repairing vessels, and am treasurer of the John N. Robins Company, the largest owner and operator of dry docks and repair shops in New York.

"I have also devoted some time to coal mining in Pennsylvania and Virginia and Tennessee, and am a director of the Morrisdale Coal Company, and the Interstate Coal and Iron Company.

"I worked for a good part of three sessions of Congress in Washington in support of the Ship Subsidy Bill.

"My recreation has been the breeding, training, and racing of horses. I am now half owner in a fairly successful breeding farm and racing stable in this country, and sole owner of five steeplechase horses in England, where I have also won some fair races.

"The great ambition of my life, after paying my debts, is to win the Grand National Steeplechase of England, which explains the five horses there.

"Address, 19 State street, New York."

STEPHEN R. H. CODMAN

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 6 Beacon street, Boston.

CHARLES N. COGSWELL

Is practising architecture at 1 Beacon street, Boston.

Address, 61 Kirkland street, Cambridge.

GEORGE P. COGSWELL.

A daughter, Josephine Freeman Cogswell, born in Cambridge, March 5, 1901.

Is a member Boston Society of Medical Sciences, the Boston Medical Library, and of the Oakley County Club of Watertown, Mass.

Is still engaged in the practice of medicine in Cambridge, and is a member of the Out-Patient Staff of the Cambridge hospital.

Has been off for a fortnight's trip into the territory leased by the Laurentian Club, on the St. Maurice river, Canada, in 1901, and a five days' round trip to Powa in April, 1902.

Address, 18 Garden street, Cambridge, Mass.

GEORGE W. CRAM.

"Am still in the service of the college as recorder, my tasks growing more varied and interesting each year.

"On Jan. 1, 1902, I was married to Miss Elizabeth Hixon Bent, daughter of George H. Bent, of Cambridge. A daughter, Elizabeth, was born July 4, 1903.

"Address, 50 Buckingham street, Cambridge, and 4 University Hall."

KENDALL FOX CROCKER.

"I am a director and secretary of the Dolliver Mountain Mining and Milling Company, Ltd., a gold mine situated at Isaacs Harbor, one hundred miles east of Halifax.

"Address, 11 Pemberton square, Boston."

ALAN CUNINGHAM

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 838 Market street, Wilmington, Del.

BENJAMIN F. CURTIS.

"Uneventful, serene life, busy with the interesting work which publication of the 'Copley Prints' constantly provides. James B. Noyes, '91, is still my partner in this work. Abbey's Quest of the Holy Grail, St. Gaudens's Shaw Memorial, and a number of pictures by Sargent are among the more important of our recent subjects.

"Two children born since last report: Mary Carroll Curtis, named after Carroll Edson, and Helen Child Curtis, named after a daughter of Professor Child.

"Business address, care Curtis & Cameron, Pierce Building, Boston.

"Home address, Wellesley Hills, Mass."

FRANCIS BRYDEN DANA

Has made no report further than to say that his address is the same.

Address, 28 Pearl street, Boston.

JOHN DANE, M.D.

"My publications consist entirely of articles upon orthopedic surgery, contributed to magazines or read before societies.

"I am a member of Massachusetts Medical Society, American Orthopedic Association, Boston Society of Medical Sciences, Boston Natural History Society.

"Since my last report I have been quietly at work practising orthopedics and children's surgery at the same office as before.

"Assistant Surgeon to the Infants' Hospital, Junior Assistant Surgeon to the Children's Hospital, and Assistant in Orthopedics at Harvard University make up the sum of my present appointments. Besides active work I have spent much time during the past four years in studying problems of animal mechanics and in original investigations upon the development and structure of the human foot.

"Having taken but little time for vacation I have had no opportunity for travel. The extent of my wanderings being very short trips for rest during the summer.

"Address, 29 Marlborough street, Boston, Mass."

WILLIAM P. DANIELS.

"Since the publication of the last class report, I have been in business in New York, as the General Manager of the Mason & Hamlin Co., until January, 1903, when the New York business of that company was sold to Wannamaker. Most of my time since then has been devoted to overcoming the baleful effects of typhoid fever, of which dread disease I had a severe attack early in 1902. My future plans are rather indefinite.

"Address, University Club, New York."

WALTER DORSEY DAVIDGE, JR.,
Is practising law in Washington, D.C.
Address, Bond Building, Washington, D.C.

T. D. DAVIDSON.

"A good deal of my time is taken up looking after some ranch property in which I am interested. This work is somewhat

"spasmodic" and in the intervals I have designed a few instruments and mechanical devices, some of which are new and others improvements.

"'Uneventful' describes my existence with sufficient accuracy.

"Address, 530 California street (business); 2221 Washington street (home), San Francisco, Cal."

CHANDLER DAVIS.

"I am still with the Department of Docks and Ferries, to which I was appointed on my return from the West after the completion of the Cairo Bridge, which was constructed by the Illinois Central Railroad Company over the Ohio river near its junction with the Mississippi.

"I am now the First Assistant Engineer of the department. This last summer I was sent abroad by the city of New York to investigate concrete piles reinforced with iron or steel, the ferro-concrete systems of which there are several hundreds, and at the same time study the systems with the view of adapting them to the construction along the New York water front.

"I am a member of the American Society of Civil Engineers.

"Address, 5 West 39th street, New York."

FRANK L. DEAN.

"Have been practising law, and have served two years in the common council of Worcester.

"Business address, 314 Main street, Worcester, Mass.

"Home address, 10 Cedar street, Worcester, Mass."

FRANKLIN H. DEWART

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, St. Albans, Vt.

DAVID TAGGART DICKINSON.

"Still practising law in Boston, and notice with pleasure that other '88 men, who have not strayed into politics, are becoming the leaders of the bar in this city.

"Have gained some experience, and possibly rendered some public service as mayor of Cambridge in 1901.

"Now have four children, and am surpassed in this respect by only a few of my classmates in this vicinity.

"Address, 416 Barristers Hall."

RUSSELL DUANE.

"Since the publication of the last class report I have continued without interruption in the practice of the law in Philadelphia. In the autumn of 1900 I removed my law offices to the corner of Broad and Chestnut streets, and have since occupied rooms 1218–1220 Real Estate Building. Of recent years I have devoted myself mainly to the trial and argument of cases in the Federal and State courts sitting in Philadelphia, occasionally at Washington before the Supreme Court.

"I have continued, as a member of the Republican party, to take an active interest in politics and to do some work as a speaker in political campaigns and at public banquets. I have served upon several committees, among others that which secured the selection of Philadelphia as the place at which to hold the National Republican Convention which nominated McKinley and Roosevelt; and that which originally urged the nomination of Judge Pennypacker for the office which he now holds of Governor of Pennsylvania. I have also held the office of President of the Lawyers' Republican League ever since the formation of that organization in the campaign of 1901, for the purpose of electing to the office of District Attorney John Weaver, the present Mayor of Philadelphia. I do not recall having published anything recently with the exception of an oration which I delivered in October, 1900, at the celebration in Philadelphia of the fiftieth anniversary of the Phi Kappa Sigma Fraternity, of which I became a member when a student in the Law School of the University of Pennsylvania.

"On June 14th, 1899, I was married to Mary Burnside Morris, of Philadelphia. We have one son, Morris Duane, who was born March 20th, 1901.

"Address 911 Pine street, Philadelphia, Pa."

CARROLL E. EDSON.

"Since the last report my life has been uneventful. I have lived in Denver and been occupied with the daily routine of medical practice.

"I was secretary of the section on medicine of the American Medical Association in 1899. I am a member of the Medical Board of the Agnes Memorial Sanitarium, founded by Mr. L. C. Phipps for the care of tuberculous invalids and have been engaged during the last year in the planning and organization of the institution.

"I am still professor of therapeutics in the medical department of the Denver University.

"Am a member of the American Climatological Association and was a delegate from it to the British Congress on Tuberculosis in 1901.

"Address, 305 McPhee Bldg., Denver, Col."

HENRY EDWARDS

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, Quincy, Mass.

JOHN RICE ELDRIDGE

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 172 Benefit street, Providence, R.I.

WENDELL PHILLIPS ELKINS.

"Married, June 6, 1899, to Ruth Dexter Carter, of Marion, Mass.

"Two children: Enoch, born Oct. 31, 1901, and now in Paradise; Kimball Carter, born Jan. 24, 1903.

"Removed from Peterboro, N.H., to Manchester, November, 1899, and was there a theological student, candidate for Holy Orders, and lay preacher in the Protestant Episcopal Church for nearly a year.

"Then entered the Congregational Church, and have been preaching constantly. Pastor at Wareham, Mass., February, 1901, to October, 1902, when assumed the pastorate of the Congregational Church and Society at Bath, N.H.

"Address, Bath, N.H."

CARL ADOLF EWALD

Gave up medical practice in Boston after a few years, re-entering business in Deckertown, N.J. Later went to the Klondike, and has returned, establishing himself in the lumber business at Fall City, Washington.

No report has been received from him, and the above account has been made up from such vague information as has been obtainable.

FRANK L. FALES.

"For the past four years have been here in the Engineer Department of the Commissioners of Water Works engaged in design of details for the construction of the new works.

"Am still unmarried, and consequently have no home address.

"Business address, City Hall, Cincinnati."

CHAS. E. FARNUM.

"I am still engaged in ranching and stock raising, but I came to this country because I had become interested in irrigation development. I made irrigation engineering my profession, and have seen the country change from a frontier to a well-settled irrigated district. All this section comes under one of the government irrigation projects, the St. Mary's canal system, and its greatest development is still in the future.

"This season I am engaged in carrying out the irrigation projects of the Indian Department in Fort Belknap, Indian Reservation.

"Have been in politics only to the extent of making three unsuccessful runs for position of county surveyor, on a ticket which elects none of its candidates. Sheep men are in an overwhelming majority, and they think they must have protection.

"Have at present two children,—a boy five years old, Chas. Ernest Farnum, Jr., and a girl, Eunice Farnum, born in August, 1902.

"Address, Harlem, Choteau Co., Mont."

HERBERT HAVILAND FIELD.

"Since the last class report my life has been spent in the Alpine town of Zürich, where the drift of tourists occasionally brings a classmate to my door. My occupation has been that of director of the Concilium Bibliographicum, a central agency founded by the International Congress of Zoölogy for the purpose of recording scientific publications. The Institute is supported by contributions from the Swiss Federal Government and various scientific organizations, including the American Association for the Advancement of Science and the Elizabeth Thompson Science Fund. The work is quite unique, since all the results are recorded on Library Bureau cards, of which some twelve millions have been issued by us. I see that in the last class report the work seems to have been classified as 'Business.' I doubt the accuracy of this designation for such a money losing undertaking. A member of the Swiss parliament recently assured me that in all his parliamentary experience nothing had suprised him so much as the unanimous vote of the subsidy for the Concilium, granted as it was in the interest of pure science and administered by a foreigner.

"Your circular reaches me ten weeks too early for me to be able to announce my marriage to Miss Nina Eschwege of London. At the time of the class anniversary, however, this will doubtless be an accomplished fact.

"My publications of the last five years have with almost no exceptions been confined to discussions on scientific bibliography.

"I am a member of numerous learned societies, all of them foreign; none of these elections has any particular significance, however. My nomination to the post of Honorary Associate in Zoölogy to the University Museum in Cambridge forms a new bond with the Alma Mater, which has caused me real pleasure.

"As to travel, I have gone out from Zürich in all directions since the last class report, having now visited every country and principality of Europe with the single exception of Portugal and the Balkan states.

"Few of my classmates can realize what it is to live in a city having all the facilities one could desire for hearing good music, good theatrical and operatic productions, for keeping in touch with university work, and for studying in well-endowed libraries, and yet to be able by a few hours in the train and some easy climbing to reach the regions of everlasting snow. Twenty minutes' walk from the Concilium suffices to reach a point from which the whole panorama of the Alps from the Jungfrau to the Sentis stretches before one.

"Address, Field, Zürich."

GROVER FLINT

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 90 Brattle street, Cambridge.

WALTER GREENWOOD FORSYTH.

"My name still falls in the list of librarians. In the summer of 1898 I arranged and catalogued the library of the Attorney-General at the State House in Boston.

"In January, 1899, I went to Lexington, Ky., where I spent three months overhauling the Public Library, and training the new librarian and her assistants. This library has since secured a beautiful new building through the generosity of Mr. Carnegie.

"In June, 1899, I went to the Arnold Arboretum at Jamaica Plain, where I rearranged the library, and, under the direction of Prof. Charles Sprague Sargent, started a bibliography of forestry.

"In April, 1900, I was appointed Librarian of Lafayette College at Easton, Pa., where I remained almost two years. During that time I moved the library from its old quarters to the beautiful new Van Wickle Memorial Library, and started the library afresh with new staff and new methods.

"In February, 1902, I resigned my position in Lafayette to accept a position in the Catalogue Department of the Boston Public Library. Last autumn I was transferred from the Catalogue Department to the Fine Arts Department, where I now have charge of the Fine Arts Reading-room.

"I am still a member of the American Library Association, and of the Massachusetts Library Club. I am also a member of the University Club of Boston, the Harvard Union, and of other social clubs.

"Business address, Boston Public Library, Boston, Mass.

"Home address, 125 Parker street, Newton Centre, Mass."

WILLIAM EVERETT FOWLER.

"I have simply been trying to know a little more law each year than I knew the year before, and that is about all I can report.

"Address, Whitney House, Westborough, Mass."

CARLETON S. FRANCIS.

"After graduating from college I went through the Harvard Medical School. Then I served for one year as interne at the Worcester City Hospital. I then went to Europe, and while there spent two months in work at the Rotunda Hospital, Dublin. Since my return from Europe I have been practising medicine in Brookline.

"In 1896 I was married to Elsie B. Wesson, of Orange, N.J.

"I have two children, Tappan Eustis, 2d, and Carleton Shurtleff, Jr.

"Last summer I received the appointment of Visiting Physician to the Burrage Hospital.

"Address, 26 Davis avenue, Brookline."

CHARLES FRIEND.

"I have been engaged in the practice of the law since my graduation from the law school in 1892, in the city of Milwaukee. I have been engaged as counsel for various undertakings of considerable importance, but they have only a local interest. I shall continue the practice of the law, which I enjoy and in which I am meeting a fair measure of success.

"Address, 201 Old Insurance Bldg., Milwaukee, Wis."

ROBERT H. FULLER

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, "Evening Journal," Albany, N.Y.

HORACE HOWARD FURNESS, JR.

"In June, 1900, I resigned my position of Teacher of Physics at the Episcopal Academy in Philadelphia, which position I had held for the last nine years. My chief work while at the school was a small book of 'Problems in Physics' (published by Butler, Sheldon & Co., Phila., 1900), which is used, I believe, in one or two schools here.

"The main cause for my resignation was a suggestion from my father, Dr. Horace Howard Furness, that I should enter the field of Shakesperian study with a view to carrying on his Variorum Edition. I at once began work on a revision of one of his earlier volumes, 'Macbeth,' published in 1873. This work I have now completed, and the volume is to be published by J. B. Lippincott Company in February, this year. My line of work is to be the historical plays, and I shall shortly take up 'Richard III,' independently of my father, who is still at work upon the comedies.

"Home address, 2034 De Lancy place.

"Office address, 631 Witherspoon Bldg., Philadelphia, Pa."

WILLIAM HENRY FURNESS, 3D.

Report made, in his absence, by his father, H. H. F.

Literary work:

"Glimpses of Borneo." Read before the Am. Philosophical Soc., Dec. 1896, and printed in Report of Proceedings.

"Life in the Luchu Islands," Bulletin of Museum of Science and Art, University of Pennsylvania, 1899.

"Folk-Lore in Borneo." Privately printed, 1899.

"The Home-Life of Borneo Head-Hunters: Its Festivals and Folk-Lore." Phila., 1902. pp. 197. 8vo.

"Fellow of Royal Geographical Society; Member of Am. Philosophical Society; of the Am. Oriental Society; de la Soçiété de Géographie, Paris; Fellow of Anthropological Institute of Great Britain and Ireland.

"Read a paper at the meeting of the Royal Society in Belfast in October, 1902.

"Lectured in Cambridge (England) and in London in the following month."

Is now (January, 1903) in Sydney, New South Wales, preparing for a visit to Yap, one of Caroline Islands. His outfit has been made solely with reference to the study of anthropology, in which he is greatly interested.

HERBERT ELBRIDGE GALE.

"Since leaving college my time has been devoted to managing shoe factories, and am still treasurer and general manager of Gale Shoe Manufacturing Company, of Haverhill, Mass., Milton Mills, N.H., and Epping, N.H.

"Director Haverhill National Bank.

"Trustee City Five Cents Savings Bank.

"Clubs.— University, Exchange of Boston, Corinthian Yacht Club, Pentucket, Tedesco, and Island Club.

"Travel.— Europe twice. Florida for March (usually each year).

"Address, 35 Summer street, Haverhill, Mass."

WILLIAM WAKEFIELD GALE.

"Until June of 1898 I had, since my marriage in September, 1890, been teacher of Greek in the Smith Academy, a department of Washington University, Saint Louis, Mo. During that time both Mrs. Gale and I had grown very fond of the city and had found its people most kind and hospitable, but for some reason or other one of us three — my daughter was born in November, 1891 — seemed to be ailing nearly all the time, while during the summers, which we always spent on the eastern coast, we appeared vigorous enough. Finally, after an unusually bad malarial experience, we decided that we could not stand the climate, and with very great regret I resigned my position, planning to take my family to Germany and put in a couple of years' study. After our plans were all made and our trunks labelled, matters came up which required my presence in this country, and we spent the next twelve months in North Carolina, Lakewood, Atlantic City, New York, and New Hampshire.

"From December, 1899, to June, 1900, I was a member of the Harvard Graduate School. Since September, 1900, I have been Assistant Head-master of 'The Washington School for Boys,' a private school which was founded that year under favorable auspices, and I find my position and life here in Washington very pleasant.

"Our summers — with the exception of that of 1902, which we spent in England and on the continent — are passed in West Falmouth, Mass.

"Business address is 4401 Wisconsin avenue.

"Home address, 1722 S street, N.W., Washington, D.C."

JAMES A. GALLIVAN.

"Since my report of 1898 I have been chosen Street Commissioner of Boston, having been elected as a Democrat. The term of office is three years, and my term expires this year. The work of the office is interesting and instructive, most of the duties being of a judicial nature. I have had considerable dealings with '88 men in my present official position, particularly with our worthy class president.

"Nothing else to write about, excepting the birth of a boy (my first), on January 8 of the present year, who is to be known as James A. Gallivan, Jr.

"Business address, City Hall, Boston.

"Home address, 353 W. Fourth street, South Boston."

WILLIAM J. GALLIVAN.

Member of Boston School Committee from 1894–97, 1897–1900, 1900–1903. President of the School Committee 1900 and 1901.

Two children: Agnes Gallivan, William J. Gallivan, Jr.

Address, 743 Broadway, South Boston, Mass.

LLOYD McKIM GARRISON.

The following notice, contributed by the secretary, appeared in the December number of the "Harvard Graduates' Magazine" for the year 1900:

"Lloyd McKim Garrison died on October 4, at Lenox, Mass. He was born on May 4, 1867, at Orange, N.J., and was a son of W. P. Garrison, '61, editor of 'The Nation,' and grandson of William Lloyd Garrison. His mother was Lucy McKim, daughter of J. Miller McKim, of Philadelphia, who was actively associated with his grandfather in his anti-slavery work. He was educated at the Dearborn-Morgan private school at Orange, N.J. Before coming to college he was principally interested in ornithology, and was an associate member of the American Ornithologists Union and a member of the Nuttall Club, 1885, of Cambridge. During his college course his literary and athletic activities took a wide range. He was secretary and managing editor of the 'Crimson,' 1886-87, and president of the 'Advocate,' 1887-88. He frequently contributed Harvard and other correspondence to the New York 'Evening Post' and 'The Nation.' He was a member of the Institute of 1770, the Pudding, the O. K., and Chi Phi societies; also the Natural History Society, the Harvard Union, the Chess and Whist Club, the Deutscher Verein, and was president of the ill-fated Ornithological Club. He was poet of the Institute of 1770, poet at the Junior Class dinner, Senior Class Day Poet, and author of the 1888 Pudding Play, 'Constance, or the Beau, the Belle, and the Bandit.' He delivered poems at various meetings and dinners, and was the Odist at the two hundred and fiftieth anniversary of Harvard College, Nov. 5, 1886. He belonged to the Lacrosse team, and at various times was manager, vice-president, and president of the Harvard Lacrosse Association. After graduation he entered the Harvard Law School, where he took the degree of LL. B. in 1891. He entered the law office of Charles W. Gould, New York City, and in April of 1892 was admitted to the bar. In July, 1892, Mr. Gould, John L. Wilkie, and he formed the law firm of Gould & Wilkie. He took an active part in various political campaigns, though never himself a candidate for office, and in 1892 accompanied the late Gov. W. E. Russell on his canvass of Cape Cod. He was an active member of the New York Bar Association, and attorney for the Grievance Committee. After leaving Cambridge he wrote comparatively little. The best of what he had previously written was published, in 1891, under the title of 'Ballads of Harvard and other Verses.' He wrote, however, the 'History of the Hasty Pudding Club,' first printed in the 'Graduates' Magazine' for March, 1896, and published by the club in 1897, and also reviews and articles for 'The Nation' and the 'Graduates' Magazine,' including two on the commitment and trial of Dr. Jameson, a part of which he witnessed, a pamphlet describing Governor Russell's canvass of Cape Cod in 1892, and two books relating to the law of foreign corporations. He wrote for the 'Graduate's Window,' in the 'Graduates' Magazine,' and also contributed a description of the New York City Harvard Club. He was a member of the Harvard and University Clubs, New York, and of the Papyrus Club, Boston, and of the Harvard Graduates' Magazine Council. He served for three years in Squadron A of the New York National Guard, and was with it during the Brooklyn Street Railway strike in 1895. On May 12, 1896, he married Alice Hamlin Kirkham, of Hastings-on-Hudson, and their two children, a boy, born Nov. 19, 1897, and a girl, survive him. On Sept. 5, 1898, he went to Havana as secretary to his partner, C. W. Gould, counsel to the military commission. He had always been deeply interested in the Cuban struggle for independence, and during the stay of the commission in Cuba he worked very hard on the task of the investigation and revision of the Spanish laws. The climate and the work told on his strength, and he was ill with fever for a time after his return. Last August, 1900, he went to Lenox with his family for a visit, and was stricken with typhoid only a few days after his arrival."

A committee appointed by the president of the class shortly after Garrison's death, consisting of James A. Bailey, George B. Leighton, Robert Treat Paine, Jr., C. F. Adams, 2d, and F. B. Lund, framed the following resolutions. It was also voted at the meeting that a copy of these resolutions be sent to Mrs. Garrison.

RESOLUTIONS: LLOYD MCKIM GARRISON.

Lloyd McKim Garrison was born at Orange in the State of New Jersey on the fourth day of May, 1867, and died at Lenox, in Massachusetts, on the fourth day of October, 1900. It was ordained that he should die at an age when life begins to be enjoyed in its reality. Experience had tempered some of his enthusiasms and had justified many more, while to his sober toil and thinking had begun to come the great joy of achievement. To some this is given for many years; to him it was not given in such large measure, but what years he lived, after he had put on harness, were good years, what work he did in them was good work. He was true to his blood and training, being ever prompted to the desire of righteousness.

It was his happy fortune to bring to one profession the love of another; to have a fine and true taste in letters, yet never for their sake to turn aside from the law, but rather by their aid to give point and grace to the less adorned profession. His mind was pliable and strong. He could make trifles pleasant, while in greater matters he could be very firm.

To him was given the genius of loving kindness, which lived and glowed in him and gave to others its cordial strength; in him it was an essential quality, showing in his words and acts, and it knit to him that great number of friends who for a little time must be without him.

That stately mother by the Charles, who nourished and trained him, had in him a very faithful son. To gather her traditions, to glorify what she had done in the past, to study and to record what concerned her, divided with him his hope and faith in what the future might bring to her. Neither time nor distance abated his zeal. The lesson which she teaches of scorn for all things base and sordid he had learned well, and he took from her and retained always that independence of mind and soul which give a radiant courage. This courage he took with him in the performance both of his duty as a private citizen and in the doing of those things which appertain more nearly to the public good. He was guided by principles which gave to him an influence in his lifetime that survives him.

LLOYD M. KIMGARRISON
MEDAL AWARDED TO

His friends grieve that he is dead, but they rejoice more in his life, and to recall him will always be a hearty comfort to them, for they know that he did his work well, that his voice was always raised on the side of justice, and that they are of the many who love him.

Few men in a short period of activity so impress themselves on their times; fewer still leave such memories in the hearts of their friends.

As a further testimonial of the esteem in which Garrison was held by his class, a fund of $3,500 was raised through the efforts of a committee consisting of C. F. Adams, 2d, E. R. Thayer, Lockwood Honoré, W. H. Rand, and James Loeb. Subscriptions were received from a large number of '88 men and from a few friends who asked to be allowed to subscribe. The purpose of the fund is to encourage the writing of good English poetry at Harvard, a gift with which Garrison was well endowed by nature. Eight hundred dollars was expended in securing from Mr. V. D. Brenner, the well-known medalist, a very beautiful art medal. One medal is to be struck from the die each year and presented, together with one hundred dollars in cash, being the income of the balance of the fund invested by the treasurer of the college, to the winner of the competition. A committee of the English department is each year to select the subjects for the poems and to award the prize. Arrangements have been made with the editors of the "Harvard Monthly" to print the best five poems in that paper, the successful competitor becoming ipso facto an editor of the periodical. It is hoped that this will act as a further incentive to increase the number of competitors each year.

Regarding the medal Mr. Brenner writes from Paris as follows: "The size of the medal is two by two and a half inches. The obverse represents the Muse of Poetry, who, after paying tribute to the departed in whose name the medal is given, is again inspired by the rising sun which represents the coming youth. The reverse has the seal of Harvard encircled by the words 'Lloyd McKim Garrison Medal' and a plate for the name of the recipient." This highly fitting commemoration of Garrison and his literary work is illustrated in the foregoing cuts of the medal which has been provided by Mr. Brenner.

MARSHALL J. GASQUET.

"Business, practising law.

"Societies: Metropolitan Club, New York Genealogical and Biographical Society, Racquet and Tennis Club, Ardsley Club, Ardsley-on-the-Hudson, Harvard Club, Fencers Club, Metropolitan Club of Washington, Boston Club of New Orleans, Bar Association.

"Have been abroad about six or seven times since last report.

"Address, Gasquet, Rutherford & Putnam, 31 Nassau street, New York City."

ARTHUR P. GAY.

"In the autumn of 1898 I quietly folded up and laid away my degree of Doctor of Medicine, which for two years previously I had been exercising along with a more or less desultory study of law, and applied myself to an earnest effort at securing the degree of LL.B. from Boston University. This I obtained in June, 1899, and after the usual examination was admitted to the Suffolk bar in September of that year. Since then I have been steadily plodding along trying to catch up with the procession ahead of me on the road I was so late in entering.

"Business address, 6 Beacon street, Rooms 1025 and 1026, Boston."

GEORGE B. DE GERSDORFF.

"Since the last class report I have continued to live in New York, and have been occupied in the practice of the profession of architecture. Under Mr. C. F. McKim, of the firm of McKim, Mead & White, I worked on the drawings and construction of the Symphony Hall in Boston and the Harvard Union in Cambridge. In June, 1900, I made a short trip to Europe on business for McKim, Mead & White, which included a week in London and a week in Paris at the time of the Exposition.

"For about six months, up to June 1, 1902, I was engaged upon the work of preparing drawings for the report of the Commission to Improve the Park System of the District of Columbia, of which Mr. McKim was a member. After this work was finished I spent about three months in Boston, associated with H. D. Hale, of the class of '88, in two competitions. Since May, 1902, I have been practising architecture under my own name, with an office at 1133 Broadway, New York.

"The drawings of the two competitions referred to above were published, the Washington Municipal Hospital in the

'Brickbuilder,' and the Boston Athenæum in the 'American Architect and Building News.'

"Address, 953 Madison avenue, New York."

HENRY LOTHROP GILBERT.

"Married April 11, 1901, to Laura Fullerton. Son, born May 20, 1902, now preparing for Class of 1920, Harvard.

"My life has been 'strenuous' only to the extent made necessary by being in a business controlled by The United Mine Workers of America.

"Business address, Wyandotte Bldg., Columbus, O.

"Home address, 100 Jefferson avenue, Columbus, O."

JOHN MILTON GITTERMAN.

"In 1898 I married Alice, daughter of Mr. Simon Sterne, (author of 'Constitutional History of the U. S.,' and an authority on railroad and constitutional law). With my father-in-law I was associated in the following cases: The Amsterdam avenue four-truck litigation, the foreclosure of the Leavenworth bridge, etc., etc.

"In 1900 I was appointed delegate to the National or Third Party Convention at Indianapolis, and to the Gold Democratic Convention in the same city. In our party were first, that most lovable of men, Prof. Francis Philip Nash, of Hobart College, Oswald Garrison Villard, Everett Abbott, '86, John Jay Chapman, Dr. Emerson, and a host of other men, among whom Harvard was largely represented.

"In the fall of the same year I ran an Independent ticket on the Third Party platform in my district (Greenwich, 5th Assembly District, N.Y.C.), managing the campaign for Edward S. Merrill, who kindly allowed his name to be used for candidate for State Assemblyman, as a protest against existing conditions. I personally secured most of the five hundred signatures required by the New York law to place an independent ticket in the field, and in this way, interviewing at least four thousand people, in tenements and brown stone mansions, people white, black, and off color, got a practical lot of experience and knowledge, till I felt that I knew every segment of society in my district. We had meetings every night, and John Jay Chapman, Professor Harden, Everett Abbott, and other Harvard men lent hand and voice in the exciting campaigning.

"At present, while keeping my law office in New York open at 63 William street, I am doing some work in the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington, D.C., as assistant to the Commission's secretary, Hon. Edward B. Moseley of Massachusetts.

"I am a member of the Dante Society at Cambridge, the Free Trade League in Boston, the Municipal Art Society, Greenwich Citizens' Club, City History Club and Bar Association in New York City, and the Washington Humane Society, etc.

"Address, 1317 F street, N.W., Washington, D.C."

CLARENCE WILLARD GLEASON.

"I am completing my fourteenth year at the Roxbury Latin School. I have published several Greek and Latin text-books and have a Greek Primer now in press. Have taken no long journeys except two to Yale Field — absit omen! Joined the American Philological Association last year."

SIDNEY GLEASON.

"I am still in the banking business, and the only news to report is my marriage to Marion H. Stanwood on Sept. 20, 1900.

"Business address, 115 Devonshire street, Boston.

"Home address, 121 High street, Medford."

GUSTAVUS ADOLPHUS GOEBEL.

"I am manufacturing uniform cloth caps in Chicago.

"Address, 192 East Madison street, Chicago, Ill."

SAMUEL AMORY GOODHUE.

Only children, Samuel Stocker and James Proctor, born Feb. 10, 1896.

Business address, P.O. Box 1302, Boston.

Home address, 1 Willow avenue, Salem, Mass.

JOSIAH FERDINAND GOODING

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 96 Prescott street, Cambridge, Mass.

ERNEST BARRON GORDON

Is at present in London (report may follow), where he has been for three years.

Address, Nordavaren, Jaütland, Sweden.

CHARLES LAMSON GRIFFIN.

No change since previous report.

Address.— 37 Liberty street, Manhattan Borough, New York, N.Y.

Residence.— Camp Nelson, Harrisville, P.O., Cheshire County, N.H.

HERBERT O. HALE.

"In 1895 I returned from Europe, after having spent a number of years studying architecture at the Paris schools. I opened an office in Boston and have since been practising there continuously. Four years ago I started a branch office in Philadelphia.

"I have taken a great deal of interest in schoolhouse work, and also have been engaged for some time upon some large public swimming baths for the city of Boston. Most of my Philadelphia work has been in connection with one of the newer shipbuilding plants, and since the construction of the buildings themselves, I have done a good deal of work in connection with the interior decoration of their steamships.

"During the past year I have been in a way associated with George B. de Gersdoff, whose office is in New York, and we have done a certain amount of competitive work together.

"My youngest son, Robert Beverly Hale, was born Jan. 29, 1901.

"Business address, 15 Exchange street, Boston."

GEORGE GILMAN HALL.

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 690 Broadway, Chelsea, Mass.

SAMUEL STICKNEY HALL.

"Since graduating have been engaged in business in New York City, excepting from July, 1890, to April, 1861, when I was in Omaha, Neb. for the Union Pacific R.R. On Oct. 1, 1891, entered the Actuarial Department of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, as clerk. Have worked my way upward, acting on several occasions as assistant actuary, until I now hold the position of Actuarial Assistant. This position was created for me Jan. 1, 1902, and gives me an official standing.

"In October, 1897, passed the examination for Associate of the Actuarial Society of America. May 15, 1901, I became, by examination, a member of that society.

"We have four children, one since the last report: Reginald Saxton, born Jan. 27, 1900. Author of 'Bond Values for United States Bonds.'

"Business address, 32 Nassau street, New York.

"Home address, 17 Upper Mountain avenue, Montclair, N.J."

JAMES MOTT HALLOWELL.

"Since the last class report I have resigned my position as Assistant Attorney-general, and in January, 1902, began the practice of the law in the city of Boston in the firm of Knowlton, Hallowell & Hammond, my two partners being respectively the attorney-general under whom I had served and one of the other assistants. On Dec. 18, 1902, my senior partner died, and the firm business has continued under the name of Hallowell & Hammond. Beyond assisting in the nomination of Mr. McKinley at the National Republican Convention in 1900, I have held no political office, unless an appointment as City Solicitor of Medford should be deemed such. My time has been almost entirely occupied with my professional work, and otherwise my life has been uneventful.

"On April 14, 1903, married to Louise Tucker Harding, of Milton.

"Business address, 50 State street, Boston."

P. M. HAMMETT.

"My life has been one of inconspicuous hard work, and most of my spare time has been spent with my family. My only distinction is in having refuted the idea that Harvard men have no children, or too few to replace themselves and wives. I have two boys now nine and six years old and a daughter of one and a half.

"I have spent six years in the employment of the Pennsylvania railroad, five and a half with the Boston & Maine railroad, and one and a half as superintendent of motive power of the Maine Central railroad. I belong to the American Railway Master Mechanics' Association, and to the Master Car Builders' Association.

"Home address, 10 Clifford street, Portland, Me.

"Business address, 238 St. John street, Portland, Me."

COLMOND ROSE HAMMERSLOUGH

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 46 West 84th street, New York.

HORACE WARE HANSON

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

JAMES FRANCIS HARLOW

Died June 26, 1904, in North Carolina, of tuberculosis.

He had practised law in Quincy, and had been City Solicitor. His wife died some time ago of tuberculosis, and a son four years old died of the same disease. He himself suffered for a long time before he gave up his work, but in the spring of 1904 went South and remained until his death.

A baby two years old survives him.

EDWARD AVERY HARRIMAN.

"Elected member of Library Board of Winnetka, Ill., 1901.

"Publications: 16th edition of Greenleaf on Evidence, volumes 2 and 3, Boston, Little, Brown & Co., 1899. Second edition of Harriman on Contracts, Boston, Little, Brown & Co., 1901. Essays: Educational Franchises, Reports of American Bar Association, 1898. Ultra Vires Corporation Leases, Reports of American Bar Association, 1900.

"Appointments to Societies: Director of the Harvard Club of Chicago, 1900. Member of American Bar Association and of the Graduates' Club, New Haven.

"Professional work, etc.: Professor of Law and Secretary of Northwestern University Law School until 1902. In September, 1901, formed a partnership with William H. Williams, State's Attorney of New Haven County, and since that time have been engaged in the practice of law at Derby, Conn., under the firm name of Williams and Harriman.

"Address, Derby, Conn."

EDWARD BRISTOL HARVEY

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 91 Jewett avenue, Buffalo, N.Y.

CHARLES HAMANT HARWOOD

Has been practising medicine in Boston since the last report, devoting special attention to obstetrics and gynecology.

Address, 907 Boylston street, Boston.

GUSTAVUS HAY, JR.

Born in Boston, Mass., May 1, 1866.

Died in Avon, Mass., Sept. 18, 1901.

After graduating at the Law School, in 1893, he went into the office of Ropes, Gray & Loring, where he remained until January, 1894, when he went to Springfield, Mass., where he was employed as counsel for the Boston & Albany Railroad until 1897. His work dealt chiefly with accident cases, and he did it thoroughly and enthusiastically. Although he represented the corporation in the settlement of personal injury cases, his consideration, his rugged honesty, and his devotion to the highest ideal of what was just and right, endeared him equally to the relatives, physicians, and counsel of his claimants, many of whom became his firm friends and were among the most sincere mourners for his early death.

While in Springfield he wrote his book, "The Law of Railroad Accidents in Massachusetts," a work which, in the judgment of his fellow lawyers, is so characterized by thoroughness, accuracy, and balance as to make it a standard, if not the best book on the subject. He published in the "Harvard Law Review" the following articles: "Death as a Civil Cause of Action in Massachusetts," November, 1893, and "The Law and its Limitations," October, 1897. After returning to Boston he practised his profession in partnership with James W. Austin at 53 State street.

Such is the bare record of the facts of his life, with regard to which it is said that in all his work he was thorough, scholarly, and true to his highest ideals.

His work, good though it was, was to those who knew him a small part of his manly, generous, and noble personality. Modest he was to a fault, in spite of his rare mental powers. He was a scholar and a ripe and good one, loving his classics and having always on his tongue the poetry of the Greeks and Romans, while his wonderful memory prevented his ever making a mistake in quoting them.

Devoid of all bitterness, he was manly and generous to a fault in his judgment of others. Full of humor, he was a constant joy to all his friends, to whom his devotion was absolutely without limit. His superb physique and boyish enthusiasm particularly fitted him for all out-of-door sports and activities, and he loved them all, but his chief delight was in the sea, where he could sail, rig, and even build his own boat. His courtesy and unique hospitality were the spontaneous overflow of his own generous nature. No note of pessimism marred his outlook on life, which to him was full of the pleasures of work and play.

He was married in London, England, in July, 1901, to Miss Caroline Barker Whiting.

The irony of fate was never more cruelly shown than in his sudden death. In the full strength of his early manhood, and on the way to greet his bride of a few weeks, he was instantly killed in the accident to the Cape express at Avon, on Sept. 18, 1901.

Many eminent men of his profession, many friends and classmates, and no less sincere mourners in the humbler walks of life, whose friendship and esteem he had gained in the practice of his profession, attended his funeral at the Arlington-street Church in Boston. In the hearts of all these he had held a place which never could be filled by any other, for, perhaps, none more noble, and surely none more lovable, have any of them been privileged to number among their friends.

HARRY EDGAR HAYES.

"Married Oct. 16, 1901, to Miss Emma S. Tilton of Exeter, N.H.

"Have been with the engineering department of the American Telephone & Telegraph Co. since the last report, and am still with them.

"Transferred from New York to Boston last spring.

"Business address, 125 Milk street, Boston, Mass.

"Residence, 43 Summit avenue, Allston, Mass."

WILLIAM PRIDE HENDERSON.

"For eight years after graduation taught in Plainfield, N.J.

"One summer vacation three of us took a bicycle trip through Belgium, across France into Germany, and back down the Rhine.

"Since January, 1897, have taught in the Boston Latin School.

"Married July 8, 1897, Edith Eloise Atkins, in Port Medway, Nova Scotia.

"Business address, Boston Latin School.

"Home, 61 Thetford avenue, Dorchester, Mass."

HOMER W. HERVEY.

"My practice has been general in nature, and has led me into practically all the departments of the law. I have avoided the allurements of politics on the one hand and the attractions of the criminal law on the other. The law in itself is a liberal education, and I have found no occasion to seek appointments 'educational or otherwise,' nor have I found the opportunity to inflict upon the world 'publications.'

"I have found little time to devote to travel, and the most 'strenuous details' of my life have been experiences hunting and camping in the woods of Maine, or yachting along the coast of Nova Scotia.

"Business address, Merchants Bank Bldg., 97 William street.

"Home address, 191 Hawthorn street, New Bedford, Mass."

NORMAN F. HESSELTINE.

"Since the last report I have been practising law with success at the same old stand.

"Two children I can boast of, the elder a boy and the younger one a girl.

"Home address, 22 Thayer street, Brookline.

"Office address, 10 Tremont street, Boston."

ALBERT FAIRCHILD HOLDEN

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, Glenville, Ohio.

DANIEL CURTIS HOLDER.

"Since sending you my report for your 1898 publication, I have remained in business in the firm of Holder & Herrick.

"April 17, 1900, my marriage with Miss Agnes Stewart, of New Orleans, took place in that city.

"We have two children; a son born Feb. 1, 1901, and a daughter born March 15, 1903.

"Business address, 47 Broad street, Boston.

"Home address, 311 Marlboro street, Boston."

OSCAR HOWE HOLDER

Is practising medicine in New York City.

Address, 27 West 44th street, New York.

ROBERT AFTON HOLLAND

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 805 Union Trust Bldg., St. Louis, Mo.

LOCKWOOD HONORÉ.

"Since the date of the last class report — I was married on August 12, 1902, to Beatrice C. Richardson, and am the proud parent of a very attractive daughter.

"As to my business, I continued to practise at the bar of this State until June 1, 1903, when I was elected Judge of the Circuit Court of Illinois."

WALTER GREGG HORTON.

"On Dec. 3, 1900, I was married in St. Louis to Miss Elizabeth Sumner Wood and then travelled in Europe. Am now settled at 26 Braemore road, Aberdeen, Boston.

"I have a daughter, Elizabeth Sumner, born June 27, 1902."

EDWARD S. HOSMER.

"Since the last report I resigned my position as one of the attorneys to the Department of Buildings of the city of New York, and commenced the general practice of law, since which time I am glad to say that I have been kept extremely busy.

"Address, 32 Nassau street, New York."

ARTHUR L. HOWARD.

"In 1901 I was admitted to the bar, and have since been practising law; at present with J. D. Bryant, Harvard '53, and L. E. Griswold, Harvard '84, at 53 State street, under the firm name of Bryant, Griswold & Howard.

"On Aug. 6, 1901, John Bryant Howard was born, making the sum total of my children up to date three."

ARTHUR C. JACKSON.

"Still practising architecture with Carrére & Hastings at 28 East 41st street, having an interest in the firm. Travels limited principally to a short trip to Europe and as many and long trips as possible to the Harvard-Yale games. Home address, 55 West 33d street, New York City, where I will always be glad to see or hear from members of '88."

HERBERT K. JOB.

"Married in 1891, I have but one living child, George Curtiss Job, born 1892, my oldest. Several daughters died.

"Professionally, I am still in the ministry, having held pastorate of Congregational Church at North Middleboro', Mass., 1891–1898. I am now, and have been since 1898, pastor of Congregational Church at Kent, Conn.

"As an avocation I have taken up ornithology and photography as applied to it, in the last few years making vacation explorations in North Dakota, the Gulf of St. Lawrence, Virginia, and Florida, in the wilder and more remote parts. During the past year I have begun to bring forth the results in illustrated magazine articles, particularly in 'Everybody's Magazine' and 'Outing,' and in May, 1902, I published my first volume,

'Among the Water-Fowl,' Doubleday, Page & Co., N.Y., illustrated from my own photographs. I find that I am already attaining some reputation as a nature writer and in scientific circles, having been elected to full membership ('member') of the Am. Ornithologists' Union in 1901. I also am being asked a good deal to lecture upon my travels and observations, and am doing so, with lantern slides from my negatives. Also I am doing some general illustrative work in nature photography for magazines."

ARTHUR TREADWAY JOHNSON

Is practising law at 113 Devonshire street, Boston.

DEMETRIUS KALOPOTHAKÉS

Has remained in Athens, and of late has been interested in the development of the olive oil industry in Laconia. (No personal report received.)

LINDLEY MILLER KEASBEY.

"In 1894 I came east to Bryn Mawr College, and here I have been ever since. The life of the professor cannot be called 'strenuous' in the accepted sense of the term, and the 'or not' details of our lives repeat themselves in the regular order of college routine. We have the advantage of the free summer, however, and I have made the most of this by building me a box in Chester, on the south shore of Nova Scotia, where the latch-string hangs outside the door and a welcome awaits my classmates who care for fishing or shooting, and in the bay before my door our yachtsmen will come to good anchorage and find a fine port to make in their cruises down East.

"Married I was before the last report. I now have two children, both girls, as fits Bryn Mawr. To run down the list of items, publications come next. One book written, 'The Nicaragua Canal and the Monroe Doctrine;' another translated and edited, 'The Economic Foundations of Society: from the French of 'Achille Loria,' and another sticking on the stocks to be christened next year I hope. Of societies, 'learned or otherwise,' the distinction is hard, so the list shall suffice: American Philosophical Society, American Economic Association, American Historical Association, American Anthropological Association, Fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, etc., etc., toward the 'otherwise.' No travel, except down East every summer, because of babies and the lack of a sabbatical so far. Home and business addresses are the same with us professors,— we belong to George Ade's class of husbands, their wives can't shoo from the fireside,— Bryn Mawr College, Bryn Mawr, Pa., October to June; 'The Jib' Chester, Nova Scotia, June to October."

MICHAEL EDWARD KELLEY.

Unmarried.
Practising law at 31 Nassau street, New York City.
Residence, New Brighton, Staten Island, New York.

RALPH A. KELLOGG.

Is practising law in Buffalo, N.Y., in partnership with E. C. Mason.
Address, 798 Ellicott square, Buffalo, N.Y.

FREDERIC H. KENNARD.

"Since the last class report was issued, I have been presented with a daughter and a son, Margaret Alice Kennard, born Sept. 25, 1899; and Frederic Hedge Kennard, Jr., born March 6, 1902. Another son was born June 26, 1903.

"With the above two exceptions my life has been uneventful. In general, I have been working hard at my profession and taking my vacations, when I had the time, with my family, hunting or fishing in the Adirondacks. I have never ceased to bless the day when I decided to go back to the prettiest profession in the world.

"I belong to a few scientific societies, ornithological, horticultural, natural history, forestry, etc.

"My business address is 85 Devonshire street, Boston, and my home address is Brookline, Mass."

WILLARD R. KIMBALL.

"The last ten years have been engaged in promotion of electric street railways.

"Business address, 13–16 Gridley Bldg., Syracuse, N.Y.

"Home address, Yates Hotel, Syracuse, N.Y."

FRANCIS KNOWLES.

In 1895 he left the practice of law in New Jersey and went into the publishing business in New York, publishing high school and college text-books.

Three or four years ago he organized a chemical company, of which he is still president, though at present taking no active part in its management. He later became manager of the Investment Department of the Business Opportunity Company at No. 1 Union Square, New York.

PERRY LAWTON

Has since the last report been engaged in the practice of his profession of civil engineering in Quincy, Mass.

WILLIAM A. LEAHY.

"Am Secretary of the Music Department of the City of Boston.

"Office address, 64 Pemberton square.

"Home address, 523 Fourth street, South Boston."

GEO. B. LEIGHTON.

"Since last report I have purchased a large interest in the old-established iron firm of Shickle, Harrison & Howard in St. Louis. The business having changed to that of steel castings and a large new plant being erected, the name was changed to Leighton & Howard Steel Co., with capital of $2,000,000. The new plant was in operation eighteen months, then merged into the American Steel Foundries. I am on the Executive Committee of this company. For a year I have been president of the Civic Improvement League of St. Louis — a strong organization with large membership, whose aim and purpose is 'to make St. Louis a better place to live in.' Indirectly connected with this work, I was appointed chairman of the Kings Highway Commission, so-called, May, 1902, by the mayor, which commission is preparing plans for a twelve-mile parkway connecting the parks here in St. Louis.

"St. Louis started the Associated Harvard Club movement, and the writer was the originator and first president. What that movement has become it is not possible to state in a few words. Suffice it to say I believe it will become the event of the interested Harvard graduates' year, not excepting commencement. At commencement men meet by classes,— not as members of a great university,— while the university feeling, enthusiastic and alone, prevails at the meetings of the association.

"My interests in New Hampshire have continued to grow, my farm embracing over fourteen hundred acres and my herd containing over one hundred and thirty animals. A silver medal at Paris, 1900, for butter, and several first prizes, locally, sufficiently show the character of the product of Monadnock Farms.

"Last summer I was elected one of the directors of the Westmorely Trust. My only government office is that of postmaster at Monadnock, N.H. I am one of the trustees of several institutions in St. Louis.

"My travelling has at times been over twenty-five thousand miles a year, but chiefly on business. The strenuousness of my life can be best judged by the reader. I can only feel with three boys and their mother that I have little to ask for and much to be thankful for.

"Address, St. Louis and Monadnock, N.H."

ROBERT HAMILTON LELAND

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

GEORGE H. LENT.

"There is no change to be made since my last report, no children to announce, nothing except a fairly prosperous, humdrum life. My addresses remain the same: home, 2229 Washington street; office, 14 Post street, San Francisco, Cal."

ROBERT C. LEROY.

"Since the last report I have been travelling all the time, having been all over this country, Mexico, Central America, and Canada.

"Most of my time is spent fishing and hunting.

"I am still unmarried, and my address is Union Club, New York."

LEO RICH LEWIS.

"After leaving Harvard I went abroad for music and language study. I was registered at the Munich Conservatory from September, 1889, to July 15, 1892, taking my diploma on the latter date, in which diploma, under Bemerkungen, is entered: 'Im Schlussoouncerte, 1891–2, ist er wegen seiner Leistungen in der Composition öffentlich belobt worden.' The 'Leistungen' referred to are a quartet for piano and strings, and a short cantata for soli, chorus, and orchestra entitled, 'Trost der Musik.' The latter is published, as is also a violin sonata, written while in Germany. While abroad some rather extended trips were taken to Austria, Italy, and France. On my return home, in 1892, I was appointed Instructor in French at Tufts College. In 1895 the Department of Music was established at Tufts, and I was made Professor of the History and Theory of Music. It was understood privately that this was a five years' experiment. In 1900 the trustees voted to make the department permanent, and the professorship was made uniform with the other regular appointments. Have done comparatively little in 'abstract music' composition recently. Some songs and choral works have been done; but, in instrumental work, hardly anything except an overture to Browning's 'Blot on the 'Scutcheon' for full orchestra. I also did the music for the revival of Milton's 'Comus' at Tufts in 1900, basing it on the earliest copy of the original Lawes manuscript in the British Museum, supplying one lost number by an original song in Lawes's style, and setting the whole for miniature orchestra with spinet. Publications have been chiefly in the line of works and arrangements for schools: Two small volumes of the National School Library of Song, and numerous single numbers; arrangement for school use of the chorus parts of standard cantatas and oratorios; progressive exercises for four-part chorus, etc. Also had something to do with a volume called 'New Songs for College Glee Clubs,' published in 1901. The routine work of the Music Department has seemed to grow in interest and importance. So far as the public is concerned, the setting of all our local college lyrics for full brass band and full orchestra — done by pupils in my orchestration classes — has been the most considerable product. My only connection with non-collegiate clubs has been as a 'charter member' of the Twentieth Century Club of Boston. My connection with politics is restricted to appearance at the polls on election days, and at caucuses for an occasional lift. I was married Dec. 21, 1892, to Carrie Nichols Bullard. Our only child, Philip Bullard Lewis, was born June 15, 1895.

"Full address, Box 236, Tufts College, Massachusetts."

CHARLES JACOB LIVINGOOD.

"Still connected with the Estate of Thomas Emery's Sons at Cincinnati, and still working for others in other ways. I have taken no active interest in politics, but I am doing my duty in a fiduciary capacity as treasurer of the Historical and Philosophical Society of Ohio, treasurer of the Fresh Air Society, and as custodian of the Endowment Fund of Christ Church, this city. The only writing done of late has been for the Literary Club (founded 1848), of which I am clerk. For the past two years I have served as vice-president of the local group of L'Alliance Francaise, and on the Executive Committee of the Cincinnati Conference of Art and Literature. I am a member of the Harvard Club of this city, and also a member of the Municipal Art League.

"In December, 1902, the Associated Harvard Clubs, an organization which I need hardly explain, which owes its origin and continuance to Leighton, met in Cincinnati. I congratulate the cities which shall have the honor of entertaining them in future years, for a jollier reunion cannot be imagined. We have not yet finished talking about it here.

"Since the last report my first child, Nathaniel Foster Livingood, died suddenly in July, 1898, and that same week my brother, Dr. Louis E. Livingood, was lost on 'La Burgoyne.' I have now two children: Josephine Lytle Livingood, aged two years and a half, and a son, John J., who was born on the seventh of March last.

"Occupation. — Business.

"Address. — Care of Thomas Emery's Sons, 111 East Fourth street, Cincinnati, O.

"Marriage. — To Lily Broadwell Foster, Cincinnati, O., Dec. 30, 1896.

"Births. — *Nathaniel Foster, Dec. 29, 1897; died July 9, 1898; Josephine Lytle, Oct. 3, 1900; John J., March 7, 1903."

JAMES LOEB.

"Since my last official communication, my life has become steadily less eventful. This is chiefly due to the fact that overwork in the banking business, in amateur politics, and music resulted in completely breaking up my health, so that after a protracted absence from business I decided on Jan. 1, 1902, to retire from all active participation in affairs. Since that time an occasional trip to Europe and a very quiet retired life on my little farm at Shrewsbury, N.J., make me quite the 'Beatus ille' whom old Horace sings about.

"I am still unmarried; have had no political appointments. The only distinction conferred on me by learned societies are an appointment to the Visiting Committee on Classics at Harvard University, and my recent election to the English Society for the Promotion of Hellenic Studies.

"By way of general retrospect I may say that, while I have no cause to regret having spent upward of thirteen years in a very active life, the gathered experiences of that time make keener my appreciation of the quiet and contemplation that I am now able to enjoy. I have been devoting much of my time during the past year to studying the Greek drama.

"My happiest memories are still gathered about the four years I spent in Cambridge.

"Business address, 27 Pine street.

"Home address, Shrewsbury, N.J."

FRED BATES LUND

Is practising surgery in Boston. Has the position of Assistant Visiting Surgeon at the Boston City Hospital.

Is a member of various societies, all professional in character, and of several clubs, including the Tavern and Country Club.

Has made several contributions to the "Boston City Hospital Reports," to the "Boston Medical and Surgical Journal," and to the "Journal of the American Medical Association."

Two children since the last report: Edward Griffing Lund, born May 18, 1901; Zoe Stetson Lund, born Feb. 7, 1904.

Address, 529 Beacon street, Boston.

ROWLAND B. MAHANY.

Law office, 1004–6–8 Prudential Bldg., Buffalo, N.Y.

R. C. MANNING, JR.,

Was Assistant Professor of Latin and Greek in Hobart College, Geneva, N.Y., until Sept. 1, 1903, when he was appointed Professor of Latin at Kenyon College, Coambier, O.

Address, Kenyon College, Coambier, O.

FRANCIS SKIDDY MARDEN.

"In the spring of 1900 I entered the employ of Dominick & Dominick, and started an investment branch of their business, and I am still at it.

"I am now president of the Washington Storage Warehouse & Van Co., Ltd., a small warehouse corporation which I helped form about thirteen years ago.

"I was married on April 29, 1893, to Fannie Louise Clark, and have three children: Francis Skiddy, Jr., who was born on Dec. 16, 1894; Ruth Requa, who was born on April 29, 1898; and Alice Clark, who was born Sept. 24, 1899.

"Address, 100 Broadway, New York."

ALEXANDER BECKWITH MARKS

Died. Date and circumstances unknown.

On learning of the death of Marks about three years ago, the secretary wrote several letters to a lawyer in New Orleans, whom a Harvard man living there thought would know about him. He also wrote to the postmaster of Bastrop, La., but received no reply. The only answer he received from the lawyer was vague, gave no facts, but darkly hinted that his death was due to betrayal by a friend in whom he trusted.

GEORGE E. MARSH, Jr.,

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Pingry School, Elizabeth, N.J.

EDWARD CAMPBELL MASON

Is practising law in Buffalo, in partnership with R. A. Kellogg.

Business address is 798 Ellicott Square, Buffalo, N.Y.

Home address is 76 Johnson's Park, Buffalo, N.Y.

HENRY LOWELL MASON.

"Am still with the Mason & Hamlin Company, being its vice-president and one of its directors.

"Am not married.

"Have published various articles in musical periodicals, the most important being 'The History and Development of the American Cabinet Organ' and 'The Modern Artistic Pianoforte: Its construction.

"Have travelled considerably, having been in Russia, Poland, Norway, and Sweden, and over the European continent generally, as well as the British Isles, and across this continent.

"My home address is the Charlesgate, Boston, Mass."

GEORGE HERBERT MEAD.

"I have nothing further to report except my continued connection with the University of Chicago as a member of the Philosophical Department, and advancement from position of Assistant Professor to that of Associate Professor."

FREDERICK H. MEANS.

"My life has continued to be the busy but uneventful one of a country pastor. We are sending out young men and women to the cities all the time from the two villages in my parish, including many college students, and one graduate of West Point. A large preparatory school in Chicago is conducted by three college graduates from Windham.

"In one of our villages a new church building has been erected,— the first in the place,— which is to be used by people of all denominations. As I am still the only resident minister, I find no lack of occupation, but am well aware that ten years is about long enough for me in this location.

"In 1898 I spent four months abroad with my wife, mainly in Italy, England, and Switzerland. Since then I have made three trips to Atlanta, Ga., as trustee of Atlanta University, one of the best of the Southern schools for negroes.

"My vacations have been spent alongshore on the New England coast. July 26, 1899, was born our third boy, Winthrop Johnson Means."

After leaving Windham, in the spring of 1903, Means lived a year in Winchester, and in the summer of 1904 supplied the pulpit of the Congregational Church in Lincoln, Mass.

WILLIAM STETSON MERRILL.

"I am still at the Newberry Library, where I am just now finishing the reclassification of our collection of some two hundred sixty thousand volumes and pamphlets.

"In 1899 the Bibliographical Society of Chicago was organized. I am a charter member, and a short paper of mine on 'General and National Bibliographies,' read before the society, appears in the first Year-book for 1899–1900. Other papers on various literary topics have appeared in the 'Catholic World' and elsewhere.

"My family now consists of a wife and three children: John Hancock Merrill, born Oct. 10, 1900; Wilfrid Allen Merrill, born Sept. 14, 1901; Margaret Mary Merrill, born March 10, 1903, all at Chicago.

"My home address is 1624 Belmont avenue, Chicago.

"My business address is The Newberry Library, Chicago."

H. F. MESERVE.

"Last year I took a trip around the world, and was married in London, Sept. 10, 1902, to Helen Struve MacCulsky.

"With the exception of this one trip I have lived in Korea the last five years, acting as general manager of the Oriental Consolidated Mining Company, which owns the American Gold Mining Concession in Korea.

"The American Concession covers the Wunsan District, which lies in the northwestern corner of Korea very near the Manchurian border.

"My work and life in Korea is attractive and most interesting.

"Address is Care of Oriental Consolidated Mining Company, Chemulpo, Korea."

HARRY ROBERTS MILES.

"In June, 1899, I moved from Hartford Conn., to Vermont, and became pastor of the Congregational church in Brattleboro. My second child, John Shepley Miles, was born Dec. 21, 1899.

"My brother and I spent three months in Europe in the summer of 1900, putting in most of our time out doors, and a good deal of it in out of the way places. My work has been uneventful, and, though full of interest to me, there is little about it that there would be any excuse for reporting to my classmates. I wish more of you had summer homes in Vermont, and that my latch-string was more frequently pulled by some of you. I think that the only institution with which I am connected is the Brattleboro Free Library, of which I am a trustee.

"Address, Brattleboro, Vt."

SIDNEY ROBY MINER.

"I have always taken an interest, and sometimes a very active one, in all elections, generally as an anti-machine Republican.

"Three addresses: one on 'Queen Esther at Wyoming,' referring to an incident in local history; another on 'Col. Isaac Barré,' one of the two men after whom this city was named; and one on 'The Free Mason as a Citizen,' have been published in pamphlet form.

"Have been a member of the Pennsylvania Bar Association, from the time of its inception in 1892, was a member of its Standing Committee on Legal Education until 1901, when I was elected a member of the Executive Committee. In August, 1903, I attended the meetings of the American Bar Association as a delegate from the State Association.

"Have been Recording Secretary of the Wyoming Historical and Geological Society for several years. Delivered one lecture before an evening law class of the local Y. M. C. A.

"With the exception of a trip to California and Mexico, in search of health, I have not done any extensive travelling.

"Robert C. Shoemaker (Yale '55), with whom I shared offices many years, died in February, 1902. I remained alone until the early part of this year (1903), when I took in Franck G. Darte (Yale '96) as an associate.

"Harvard men are very scarce in this neighborhood, and it was a red-letter day when one came from Boston to investigate the strike(1902). I wish more Harvard men had had the same sort of Yankee curiosity in sufficient quantities to bring them here to see for themselves what the conditions were.

"I went to commencement last year, and hope to go again this year.

"My business address is, as formerly, 65 Coal Exchange Building, and my home address, 264 South Franklin street, Wilkesbarre, Pa."

WILLIAM MITCHELL.

"After five years in Terre Haute, Ind., as Rector of St. Luke's Church there, I moved to Redwood Falls, Minn., Oct 1, 1900.

"From that parish I was called to St. Paul, and have been engaged as City Missionary for two years now. I am also Rector of the Church of the Epiphany near Hamlin University. We have funds on hand for the building of a church this fall.

"I am Chaplain of St. Luke's Hospital, and much of my work lies in visiting the charitable and penal institutions of St. Paul.

"I have written 'The Religious Insight of Tennyson's Poetry,' besides a number of theological papers.

"I always attend the meetings of the Harvard Club, and I prize very highly a rudder, tied with crimson ribbon, which hangs in my study, reminding me of '88 and the River Charles.

"It is easier to steer a crew to victory than it is to steer people to Heaven."

CHARLES DEVERD MUSAUS

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

WILLIAM NELSON.

"Am still at the head of the firm of Chas. Nelson, operating the 'Green Brier' Distillery. Have been elected vice-president of the Nashville Trust Company, one of our largest and most successful financial institutions, and am devoting considerable of my time to the financial business.

"Have served as a member of the City Board of Education, but was forced to give up all outside engagements on account of the condition of my health which has been very bad for almost three years. I suffered from a severe attack of the 'Grip'; the after-effects were serious and lasting.

"Have been abroad, as well as to almost every health resort in this country, and finally came back home to spend my days as best I could. The climate agrees with me and am getting back to my old time proportions, and am glad to say that I begin to feel as if I still had a future ahead of me.

"Have no addition to report in my family, the total number remaining at three.

"Office address, 134–136 N. Market street, or Nashville Trust Company."

WILLIAM K. NORTON.

"Since your last report the conspicuous event in my life has been my coming to Boston. In September, 1900, I resigned my position as submaster in the New Bedford High School to accept Dr. Moses Merrill's invitation to become a Junior Master in my alma mater, the Boston Latin School, where I am now teaching mathematics. It is a source of no little satisfaction to know that there are three of us '88 men in the old school.

"In the course of elementary work in algebra and geometry, I was pleased to discover a somewhat simple method of ascertaining, within stated limits, all the combinations of integral values, which expresses the three sides of any right triangle.

"Home address, West Roxbury."

RUPERT NORTON.

"Since the year 1900 I have been living in Paris in the employ of the Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, as Assistant Medical Director for France.

"My address is, Care of The Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York, 200 Boulevard Montmartre, Paris, or 28 d'Offémont, Paris."

PETER J. O'CALLAGHAN.

"For most of the time since my last report, I have continued the labors of a missionary priest of the Paulist Community. For one year (1898–9), I was novice master of the community and teacher of Dogmatic Theology in the Paulist College that is affiliated with the Catholic University in Washington, D.C. While in that position I renewed membership in the Harvard Club, which I had joined some nine years before, while a student of theology at the Catholic University. My missionary efforts have been divided between preaching to Catholics what are called 'missions,' and giving for benefit of non-Catholics lectures on Catholic teaching and practice. Similar lectures are given by many of my brethren. They have everywhere aroused the deepest interest among people of every shape of belief. The audiences consist mostly of non-Catholics; no Catholic is admitted except he come as the companion of a non-Catholic. The purpose of these lectures is primarily an educational one. A question-box is always opened at the door of hall or church, and all are invited to ask questions concerning the Catholic Church. All questions thus asked are answered in public before the lecture of each evening. The character of these questions shows the almost universal need of education in things Catholic. The widespread interest that is aroused demonstrates the vital nature of the questions discussed. I have given these series of lectures from the bench of court-rooms, the stage of theatres, and the pulpit of many churches. At this writing I have just returned from Sioux City, Iowa, where the closing lectures, which had to be given in the Opera House for room, called forth about three thousand people, over a thousand of whom could not find entrance into the hall. No controversy is encouraged, and bitterness is never engendered. On the contrary, a spirit of fairness and an honesty of thought are developed, and these mean a growth of Christian charity.

"Among several schools and institutions addressed, I recollect only one of special interest. Last fall I preached in the State Normal College of Iowa. It was the first time a Catholic priest had spoken in the institution.

"Associated with mission work I have done considerable work in the cause of temperance. A year ago last fall I laid the foundation of a diocesan temperance society in diocese of Dubuque, Iowa. I established over a dozen branches of this society, which afterwards became affiliated with National Catholic Total Abstinence Union, and entertained the convention of that union which met in Dubuque last summer.

"During spare moments, while in New York, I have established an association for the support of a little community of nuns who are known as the Dominican Sisters of the Sick Poor. These good women are doing heroic work in nursing the sick in the homes of the poor of our great metropolis. Travel in this country and Canada has been almost constant. My address is always the same — 415 West Fifty-Ninth street, New York."

NATHAN OPPENHEIM.

"The past five years have been satisfactory in various ways. During this time I wrote four books which the Macmillan Company published: 'The Development of the Child' (1898), 'The Medical Diseases of Childhood' (1900), 'The Care of the Child in Health' (1901), and 'Mental Growth and Control' (1902). I continue to act as Attending Physician to the Children's Department of Mt. Sinai Hospital Dispensary, and also as Attending Neurologist to the New York City children's hospitals and schools. I have been doing a fair amount of lecturing on the subject of children.

"Last year I was fortunate enough to obtain a tract of land in Vermont (township of Ferrisburg) on Lake Champlain, where I am now building a summer camp.

"My business and home address is 50 East Seventy-ninth street, New York City. The summer address is Basin Harbor, Vt."

ROBERT LEE OVERTON.

Robert L. Overton was born at the old Overton Home Place near Nashville, Jan. 15, 1866.

His preliminary education was completed in the Nashville schools, particularly the Montgomery Bell Academy, a branch of the University of Nashville, and his final preparation for Harvard University was at Phillips Academy, at Exeter, N.H.

On his return to Nashville he entered into the mining and wholesale coal business with his brother, Jesse M., a graduate of '86.

In his business life he was very successful, and the result of the business undertaken by these two brothers was the development of one of the largest coal and iron mining and manufacturing concerns in the South — The Bon Air Coal and Iron Company.

His business life was devoted entirely to this line. On Jan. 6, 1892, he was married to Miss Nannie Baxter, a daughter of Judge Edmund H. Baxter, one of the best-known railroad attorneys in this country.

He died April 10, 1900, of typhoid fever, and leaves his widow and four little sons.

He was of a very quiet, unassuming disposition — he enjoyed his home and his family. He had no political aspirations, and devoted his time to his business. His mother died about a year and a half before him, and within a short time thereafter his father breathed his last. He came into a good inheritance, which, together with his own efforts, leaves his family well provided for.

HERMAN PAGE.

"My work continued in Fall River till the last of September, 1900, when I came to Chicago as rector of St. Paul's Church, Hyde Park, not far from the World's Fair Grounds and within a few blocks of the University of Chicago. In the ordinary sense, the transition from a work among mill operatives was as great as possible. As a matter of fact, from the minister's standpoint, human nature is an impressively constant factor. My last years in Fall River were much engrossed in church building both in Fall River and Swansea. Since my arrival here my time has been largely occupied in the building of a new church.

"Last July I went with my family to England for a couple of months.

"I am a member of the Harvard Club and the University Club.

"My address is 5025 Madison avenue, and my church is but a few doors away."

ROBERT T. PAINE, Jr.

"Married Marie Louise Mattingly, of Washington, D.C., Dec. 7, 1898. Have two children: Dorothy and Robert Treat, 3rd, who were born Sept. 5, '99, and Dec. 15, '00.

"Nominated by the Democrats for governor in 1899 and 1900, and received one hundred and three thousand and one hundred and thirty thousand votes.

"December, 1901, elected to the Boston School Board for three years, having been nominated by the Public School Association, the Independent Women Voters, and the Republican and Democratic parties, receiving fifty-five thousand votes, said to be the largest number received in the city for any election office.

"Have been interested, as a member of the Public Franchise League and other organizations, in securing the public ownership of the subways and due compensation for franchises.

"Address, 85 State street; House at Queensbury street, Boston."

BRADLEY W. PALMER.

"Since graduation, my time and efforts have been devoted to practising law in Boston. I have not had any public position or appointment of any kind, and I regret to think that there is little in my legal routine that would interest my classmates. My name has appeared twice in the public print,— once as the owner of a high-jumping horse, and again as the builder of a house made of field stones. Possibly this notoriety may not be calculated to add to the lustre of our worthy class, but candor compels me to acknowledge it.

"Business, 53 State street.

"Residence, 24 Marlborough street, Boston."

FRANKLIN D. PEALE.

"After graduation spent three months in a trip through the Western and Pacific Coast States, then entered the law office of Hon. Robert Snodgrass at Harrisburg, Penn., as a student. In October, 1889, entered the Class of 1891 at the Harvard Law School. After graduating in June, 1891, entered the law office of Anderson & Howland in New York City as a student. Was admitted to the bar in the latter part of 1892. In the spring of 1893 took a position in the Right of Way Department of the American Telephone & Telegraph Company and remained with them until the latter part of 1896, when I resumed the practice of the law in New York City. Since November, 1896, have been devoting my entire time to my profession. In December, 1902, formed a partnership with Charles Benton Blair, formerly of Grand Rapids, Mich., and a member of the Class of '80 at Harvard, under the firm name of Peale & Blair, with offices at 68 William street, New York City.

"Was married in April, 1895, to Martha Vail Tufts, and have two boys, named respectively Franklin Vail and Rogers.

"Home address is Summit, N.J."

EDWARD ALLEN PEASE.

In November, 1899, he changed his residence to 483 Beacon street, where he has continued the practice of medicine. He is not married. In 1900 he was appointed Visiting Surgeon to the Carney Hospital, where he has about fifty patients under his care during the three spring months, and has to perform all sorts of abdominal and other serious operations. As surgeon at the Boston Dispensary he has to do with the minor surgical things, such as broken arms and felons, for the three fall months. Three years ago he was appointed Out-patient Department Surgeon to the Free Hospital for Women, and this service he has two afternoons a week the whole year around, besides operating a month or so at the Free Hospital in Brookline. These three positions keep him in touch with surgical things, although he still remains a general practitioner.

He is a member of the Massachusetts Medical Society, The American Medical Association, and the American Academy of Medicine. In the fall of 1899 he was elected to the St. Botolph Club, a social, musical, and literary club, which he enjoys very much. The Puritan Club he has not given up, as it really is to Boston about what the Harvard Club of New York is to New York, and one can always find acquaintances there. He has been a member of the Harvard Club of New York two or three years. He enjoys very much an old club called "The Harvard Musical Association," for here, every other Friday night, one hears first-class music for an hour or two, and afterwards has a good simple supper. He is also a member of the Harvard Union at Cambridge. As to athletics he has not done much, for although formerly a member of the Boston Athletic Association, and now a member of the Union Boat Club, which has hand-ball and so forth, in winter, he has so little time that he finds it difficult to use the club much. For a time he took up horse-back riding, but his horse, after a few months, threw him, and so dampened his ardor that he sold said horse. He is sorry to state that the surgeon with whom he has been associated ever since leaving the Massachusetts General Hospital, Dr. John Homans, who is known all over Europe, as well as this country, for his abdominal surgery, has recently died.

In the fall of 1899 the writer went with Ned Grew, '89, to a delightful spot in northern New Brunswick, fifty miles into the woods from Newcastle, and on the way in, as it was early, got some wonderful salmon fishing on the southwest Miramichi, the finest sport he ever had, although while in the woods he shot a moose and a caribou; the moose having as fine a set of horns as is often seen, spreading forty-eight inches and having seventeen points and rarely symmetrical. The moose weighed about twelve hundred pounds, and his skin and head, as well as those of the caribou, are up for the inspection of any curious eighty-eight man.

Address, 483 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.

HENRY PENNYPACKER.

"Since the last report I have continued teaching in the Boston Public Latin School. Henderson and Norton of our class are in charge of rooms adjacent to mine in the same school. My experience contains nothing strenuous at all. I have led a very quiet life, passing my winters in Cambridge, where I occupy a small house at No. 6 Chauncey street, and my summers at Chatham, on the Cape, where I have a shanty on the bank in front of the lights. Sometimes in the shooting season Ned Pease comes down with his trusty fowling-piece, and together we lay waste the plover and the peeps. At least that is our intention. In the past the plover have pretty generally survived.

"A little over a year ago our headmaster of the Latin School, Dr. Merrill, died, and he was succeeded by Mr. A. I. Fiske, Harvard '69. With this change my own work in the school was confined entirely to Greek, so that now everybody who goes to college from that school has to endure me in Greek for one year at least.

"Address, Boston Latin School, Boston, Mass."

VALENTINE MOTT PIERCE.

"I have been married several years. No children.

"My literary work has been confined to advertisements which appear in the daily newspapers of the country advertising patent medicines. Wrote one article for 'Forest and Steam,' May 17, 1902, entitled 'The Delights of Houseboating.'

"At the present time am vice-president of the Association of American Advertisers, with office in Park Row Building, New York.

"I have not practised my profession (that of medicine) since my graduation, but have devoted all my time to the general management of the laboratory and press of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N.Y.

"My travels have been confined to occasional trips to New York and two winter trips to Florida, visiting a houseboat and catching a tarpon in the Gulf of Mexico.

"I have been leading an active life as general manager and secretary of the World's Dispensary, Buffalo, N.Y., vice-president Ideal Cash Register Company, Bound Brook, N.J., and president of the Pierce Motor Vehicle Company, Bound Brook, N.J. The Pierce electric vehicles were sold mostly to newspaper publishers throughout the United States, and there are some still running.

"Business address is 663 Main street, Buffalo, N.Y."

EDMUND PLATT.

"Since the last class report I find by comparison of dates that I have grown five years older. I am still young enough, withal, to prefer tennis to golf. The five years have brought some measure of success and satisfaction, and some of the vicissitudes of life, but I find little that would interest my classmates. My activities are wholly local. I do much the same work as at the time of the last report, belong to the same clubs and organizations with one addition, and am not often tempted far away from home even by the offer of free railroad transportation. My only public office is that of trustee of the city (Adriance Memorial) library. Am also a trustee of Vassar Institute, and a member of the governing boards of all but one of the organizations and clubs to which I belong. My summer vacations are spent at Grove Beach, Conn., or camping in one of the valleys of the southern Catskills, and when I can get a day off at any time it is usually spent in a long tramp with one or two friends among the neighboring hills along the Hudson. I am somewhat interested in ornithology and in any other "ology" that requires open eyes and adds to the pleasure of out-of-door life — a humble disciple of John Burroughs, a visit to whose home at West Park is included in many of my outings.

"Address, Eagle Office, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

"Home address, 30 Carroll street."

FREDERICK PLUMMER.

"I have not taken any active part in politics except to serve as Warden in my precinct, an office to which I have been appointed for about ten years. Am a member of the Newton Boat Club, Woodland Golf Club, Auburndale Village Improvement Society, Newton High School Alumni Association, Life Member of the Harvard Union, also two local social clubs, Game Club and Evening Club, and Delta Upsilon Alumni Society of Harvard.

"I have not had time to travel extensively, but visited the Pan American Exposition at Buffalo in 1901, and have taken short trips to the mountains and seashore during my vacations. Have been engaged with my brother, W. E. Plummer, in the note brokerage business under the style of W. E. & F. Plummer, until

Feb. 1, 1902, when Mr. Walter T. Bent became associated with us, and the firm name was changed to Plummer, Bent, & Co.

"I do not think of anything additional to write about, except to say that outside of business, which occupies very much of my time, I am interested in out-of-door sports, such as canoeing, yachting, golfing, and skating, and am an enthusiastic follower of foot-ball, having attended every Harvard-Yale game up to the present time since I entered college.

"Business address, 24 Milk street, Boston, Mass.

"Home address, 155 Woodland road, Auburndale, Mass."

HENRY M. PLUMMER.

"Have another boy born Oct. 11, 1900, and named Thomas Rodman Plummer, 2d. This makes four boys to the good. Have been vastly interested in two publications, both of my name spelled out in full. The first was in a morning paper because I had won a boat-race, the second was in an evening paper because I hadn't. Have travelled extensively between Boston, Sharon, and New Bedford. Being the most successful life insurance agent that ever trod in sole-leather, my days are not totally devoid of activity, yet seem to be filled with more of the joy of living than is accorded to the lot of many.

"Home address, Sharon, Mass."

HENRY T. POPE.

"At the time of the last report I was in the pottery business at Fort Payne, Ala. After being in this for some time I saw that it was likely to prove a better one for some one else in the future, and so sold out. In the trade I got quite a good-sized farm about two miles out from town and moved on to it, staying there some two years. Of course farming is not a money-making business, at least in this section, and while we enjoyed the life very much and I got to be considered quite a good farmer, even by my neighbors, we could not afford to settle down to farming. About a year ago, having been offered the position of manager of the Chickamauga Knitting Mills here at Chattanooga, I accepted, and we have been here since.

"I recollect having seen but one '88 man in the last four years, and but very few Harvard men anyway. After coming here I discovered C. N. Woodworth who was in our class in his Freshman year, coming from Exeter, I believe. He is now manager of one of the most successful manufacturing plants in the city and quite prominent in city affairs.

"Now have three children, one boy and two girls."

CHARLES ALLEN PORTER.

"Since the last report nothing has happened to me of marked interest in my profession. I still hold the positions of Surgeon to Out-patients at the Massachusetts General Hospital and Instructor in Surgery at the medical school, and Surgeon to the New England Baptist Hospital.

"I have to announce the birth of a daughter, Isabel DeCourcy Porter, on Sept. 21, 1902.

"Owing to insufficient literary education at college, my writings have been few and far between.

"Almost all the hair is gone, and with it much of the brawn so carefully acquired at college. Some ginger still remains.

"Address, 254 Beacon street, Boston."

EDWARD B. PRATT

To be heard from.

Address, 704 Tremont Bldg., Boston, Mass.

HENRY A. PULSFORD, M.D.

"Since the last class report, in 1898, a second child has been born, James Arnold Pulsford, April 1, 1900.

"I have been elected a member of the Practitioners Society of Orange and the Orange Mountain Medical Society, and was one of the charter members of the William Pierson Memorial Library Association, of which institution I am at present the librarian. In the Orange Mountain Medical Society I hold the office of reporter.

"I am still in general practice in 'the Oranges.' I have been appointed Lecturer on General Anatomy to the Orange Training School for Nurses and Attending Physician to the House of the Good Shepherd.

"Address, 139 South Orange avenue, South Orange, N.J."

GEORGE ROYAL PULSIFER.

"Since March of 1897 I have practised law with my classmates Bailey, Bolster, and Dickinson.

"Home address, 20 Birch Hill road, Newtonville, Mass.

"Business address, 413 Barristers Hall, 25 Pemberton square, Boston, Mass."

WILLIAM RAND, JR.

"I continued to practise law in the firm of Daly, Hoyt & Mason until Jan. 1, 1902, when I accepted an appointment to be Assistant District Attorney of New York County, which I still hold.

"Business address, 11 William street, New York City.

"Home address, Rye, Westchester County, N.Y."

ALBERT W. RANTOUL.

"I am in the employ of Perry, Coffin & Burr, 60 State street, Boston.

"Address is Newburyport, Mass."

JOHN E. REYNOLDS.

"Since the last class report I have been in general business in Meadville, Pa. I am president of the Crawford Mutual Fire Insurance Company, treasurer of the Meadville Gas and Water Company, and president of the Meadville Chamber of Commerce.

"I am serving my second term of two years as a member of the City Council. In 1903 was elected mayor of Meadville.

"Address, Meadville, Pa."

GEORGE JOSEPH RICHARDS

Was born at Weymouth, July 9, 1867, and died at Weymouth April 18, 1900. He was the son of Augustus J. and Mary (Clapp) Richards. He was educated in the Weymouth schools, passing from the North High School to the Adams Academy, of Quincy, where he fitted for college. He was graduated from Harvard in the Class of '88. After graduating from Harvard he entered business life as a partner in the firm of Augustus

J. Richards & Sons. His special department has been the management and care of the large grain business of the firm at Quincy. He was a director in the Union National Bank of Weymouth, the Mt. Wollaston Bank of Quincy, and of the Hercules Iron Supply Company of Anniston, Ala. He was a member of the Granite City Club, the Quincy Yacht Club, the Weymouth Club, and the Cochito Club of Braintree. At the time of his death he was engaged to be married, and was actively at work upon plans for a new dwelling-house. His death was from typhoid fever, the result of exposure on a shooting excursion.

Resolutions:

Whereas we have been saddened by the loss of our friend and classmate, George J. Richards,

Resolved, That we desire to record our appreciation of his kindly and generous nature, his modesty, loyalty, and devotion to duty, and our deep regret at the untimely ending of a life which promised much of useful service to his fellow-men.

A. P. Butler,
M. H. Clyde,
H. D. Hale.
Class Committee.

Such a simple and uneventful life derives its interest from character and disposition. It is safe to say that Richards never made an acquaintance, old or young, without making a friend. Geniality combined with firmness, energy with sweetness, made those who met him, even in the most casual business relations, feel his loss like that of an old friend. His parents and sisters who survive him had not yet recovered from the loss of his elder brother (Henry A. Richards, H. C. 1886) when this second blow fell; and to them, to his teachers, his schoolmates, his classmates, and all who knew him, the name of George Richards will mark a gap in life which can never be filled.

W. E.

CHARLES B. ROGERS.

"Political appointments: Manager State Hospital for the Insane, 1895–1899; Commissioner Common Schools, Utica, 1899–1902; Trustee and secretary Utica Public Library, 1899 to date.

"Married Jan. 31, 1894, to Susan Brayton, who died April 3, 1898.

"Married May 3, 1900, to Eugénie Doumaux. We have one child, a daughter, Elizabeth Butler Rogers, born Jan. 14, 1903.

"President First National Bank, Utica, N.Y.

"Treasurer and director of various corporations.

"House address, 161 Park Avenue, Utica, N.Y.

"Business address, First National Bank, Utica, N.Y."

CHARLES JOSEPH ROLFE.

"I am practising law, and have been doing the same since my admission to the bar in 1891.

"I have one daughter, Josephine, born Dec. 10, 1898.

"Address, 6 Beacon street, Boston, Mass., and 405 Broadway, Cambridge, Mass."

WILLIAM ROPES

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 11 Dwight street, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.

HENRY W. SAMPSON

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

EDWARD HOSMER SAVARY.

"In the summer after graduation I went abroad and took a walking trip up the Rhine and across England. I entered the law school in the fall and remained there two years, and then went into offices of various law firms as student. In January, 1891, I was admitted to the bar, and in the following February began practice.

"In several cases where I have been counsel, points, either new or obscure, have been determined, the details of which may be found in the cases of Barnes v. Barnes, 161 Mass. 381; Ryder v. Jenkins, 163 Mass. 536; Uhland Club v. Schupbach, 168 Mass. 430; Leighton v. Ricker, 173 Mass. 564; Gilman v. American Producers Controlling Company, 180 Mass. 319; Boston and Maine Railroad v. William H. Hurd, Administrator, 47 C.C.A. 615; 108 Fed. 116; 56 L.R.A. 193; 184 U.S. 700.

"In the summer of 1898 I wrote a book on the War Revenue

Law. After it was done, Mr. John M. Gould came into the undertaking and wrote the index, and offered certain suggestions as to substance and form, and the book goes under the name of 'Gould and Savary on the War Revenue Law.' It was published by Little, Brown & Co.

"For nine months in the year I live at Groveland, on the right bank of the Merrimac, between Haverhill and Newburyport, almost directly opposite the point on the other bank where Whittier was born. This is a very charming country, and is steeped in those legends which were given outlet in many of the most beautiful of Whittier's poems. In the lull in business from Saturday noon until Monday morning I try to be a farmer.

"My business address is 40 State street, Boston. Residence, Groveland, Mass."

JAMES A. SAXE.

"I believe I had removed from Brookline, Mass., to Worcester when the last class report went to press.

"I have been working hard and steadily at the law, and find each year more to do at my desk and less chance to get out-doors for the exercise that ever drew me away from books.

"I belong to the Commonwealth Club, the Worcester Antiquity Society, the Art Club, several musical organizations, still sing in a church quartette, and have run for political office.

"My life has been even, happy, and fairly successful, and the promise for the future is that the best of it is still before me.

"Address, 'Saxeholm,' Worcester."

JOHN W. SAXE.

Married April 11, 1889, to Sarah F. Burtis of New York City.

Children: Eleanor Saxe, born April 8, 1900; John Burtis Saxe, born July 27, 1902.

Admitted on motion of Walter D. Davidge, '88, to Bar of Supreme Court at Washington, Oct. 20, 1902.

Still practising law.

Offices, 16 State street, "Devonshire Bldg.," Boston.

Home, 322 Tappan street, Brookline.

BERNARD T. SCHERMERHORN.

"On Nov. 27, 1901, my daughter Eleanor was born.

"My business and home address is Clarkston, Washington.

"Life in the West is always rather more than less 'strenuous.' The facilities and conveniences of life being difficult to get except when a saddle-horse may be the means to the end.

"My travels have been limited to such as might be made on horseback, except one to Tacoma, the latter being of no special interest except that some who love salt water will know perhaps how I felt at seeing salt water for the first time in five years. My bull-pup, 'Brannigan,' had better luck, for I sent him East with a friend who was going through Salt Lake City, and he dropped in at the University Club and spent Christmas with one Causten Browne, Jr., which is the nearest I have come to seeing any one of '88 since I left Boston."

JOHN H. SEDGWICK

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, Milton, Mass.

THOMAS T. SEELYE

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 829 Society for Savings Bldg., Cleveland, O.

JOHN M. SEIP

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

CHARLES TILDEN SEMPERS.

"Since 1899 I have been engaged in library work in New York. I have been an occasional contributor to literary magazines and papers. Some of these contributions have subsequently appeared in published volumes. I do not regard them of enough importance to name them. I have also done some lecturing under the auspices of the University Extension Courses of Free Lectures maintained by the Board of Education of New York City.

"Address, 881 Seventh avenue, New York."

JEREMIAH SHEEHAN

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, Newburgh, N.Y.

HERMAN T. SHEPARD.

"My ten years of ministerial service in the States of Washington, Montana, South Dakota, and California closed in 1901 with a four years' pastorate in San Francisco, and a short temporary charge in Arizona, which, by the way, did not impress me with its fitness for statehood — far from it. Since 1901 I have been sojourning in the home of my boyhood in New Hampshire, and taking a much needed 'sabbatical year,' preaching only occasionally. Next Sunday I occupy the pulpit of the 'Phillips' Church' at Exeter, where my academic days of worship were spent.

"Unlike my friend and classmate from Pennsylvania and of the Boston Latin School, in his letter to the 1898 Report, I have no wife to give me a son whose observation should constitute my vocation, but during my avocation of preaching I have found much compensation for this want in the enjoyment of reports of an ever increasing number of my classmates that have entered this happier state.

("Not of Wesleyan University as stated in the class list of the 1898 Report.")

Address, W. Epping, N.H.

THOMAS OSBORNE SHEPARD

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, Salem, Mass.

CHAUNCEY SMITH.

"Continue in the telephone business. Am now special agent in charge of toll traffic for the Southern Bell Telephone and Telegraph Company, and in this capacity look out for the long distance business within the States of Alabama, Georgia, Florida, North Carolina, South Carolina, Virginia, and the greater part of West Virginia. This means spending a good part of my time in travelling over these States. Life very quiet. No strenuosity in it at all, only a lot of hard work.

"Business address, No. 78 South Pryor street, Atlanta, Ga. No home address. Wander around too much."

EDWIN W. SPAULDING

Writes: "I was married about nine years ago.

"My professional work is confined to the practice of the law, especially in connection with the Government Departments and the Court of Claims.

"I have had no opportunity to travel.

"I have been quite busy, but my life has been very uneventful.

"Business address is Pacific Bldg., Washington, D.C. Home address is No. 1617 21st street, N.W., Washington, D.C."

EUGENE SONDHEIM.

"I have been practising law in New York City since 1891, and am a member of the firm of Sondheim & Sondheim. I regret to be compelled to report that I have accomplished nothing wonderful or startling. As heretofore recorded in the class history, I am married and have two daughters. (Just up to the average, according to President Eliot.)

"My business address is 35 Nassau street, New York City. My home address is Scarsdale, Westchester County."

WILLIAM S. SPAULDING

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

Address, 23 Broad street, Boston.

FREDERICK D. STETSON.

"I have no items of interest to add to previous reports. I am no longer a member of New Bedford's City Council, having retired voluntarily and not at the request of the voters.

"Mrs. Stetson and I are living an uneventful life here at New Bedford. We are in the habit of spending a month in South Carolina (Summerville) in the winter, and a month in the summer at some Maine coast or inland resort.

"Business address is New Bedford, Mass.

"Home address is 42 Grove street, New Bedford, Mass."

EDMUND CHANNING STOWELL.

"Since September, 1900, I have been Assistant Professor of Children's Diseases, Tufts College Medical School. On June 1, 1902, Samuel Stowell was born. Since the summer of 1898 have practised during the summer months in Dublin, N.H.

"Address and office, 9 Massachusetts avenue, Boston."

LYNDE SULLIVAN

Writes: "What a man does in this world is of very little moment provided he satisfies his own conscience, if he has one, and if he has none the State usually looks after him in time. If he has a conscience he usually gets out into the world and 'bucks up' and tries to make himself felt, and he dies and some one steps into his shoes, and it is as if he never was. What becomes of all the pictures exhibited annually in the Paris 'Salon'? Miles of hard, conscientious work. Read me that riddle. All lost, strayed, destroyed, and rarely stolen. What a man does or has done in this world to-day is of little moment. What is he worth in dollars and cents is the question. Has he been the greatest blackguard, divorced his wife, seduced his neighbor's, robbed his best friend by giving him pointers on his pet stock which he is booming to sell out, or wrecked half a dozen corporations by false rumors and statements, and dies worth a million or more, there is a visible halo around his head during life and after death which keeps him in polite society in this world and in the politer society of His Majesty in the nether world. How much is he worth? — that is all there is to it.

"When you ask me that question it reminds me of an occasion when I was asked to write some lines on the wall of a house where a number of celebrities had their several insignia of their professions. I felt I had done nothing to deserve the honor, as I now feel I am worth nothing. I could not very well decline, therefore I wrote:

Where many a hand has traced the thought
Of poet, painter, priest,
I'm sure my own will scarce be sought;
Of value 't is the least.

"My career during the last fifteen years has the same value. The only person who has any interest in it is one valued friend.

"I think you ask me to state whether I have served in any political office. I don't think I have served in any political office, because to admit that would be to admit that I had been the tool of some political party. I am drawing a nice distinction around the word 'serve,' which means to be in service obedient to some one. If you ask me if I have occupied any political office, I am unable to answer the question personally. The public is the only judge of whether I have occupied any office or not. I might think I had, the public might think differently.

"You ask me to relate what I have done. That is a question I can answer candidly and frankly. I have to my own personal knowledge done no one in the last fifteen years. As to the future I cannot say, and I decline to answer, as such a declaration at this time might spoil my plans.

"Three members of the Class of '88 have crossed the threshold of my office and house in the last fifteen years. I have not 'sported my oak,' the latch has always been up. Can I do otherwise than draw the conclusion that my deeds must be uninteresting to them? I am sure they would have found my legal deeds very uninteresting had they called on me.

"I feel certain you will appreciate the readiness of my reply and its promptness. Necessarily a prompt reply is of service to you in preparing your report. Excuse my slopping over. One must be human now and then. I also feel sure that you will appreciate my endeavor to frankly reply to all your questions, and my endeavor to obey your implied demand to fill this fools-

cap. I think I have given you all the facts that would interest the members of the Class of '88.' I have been so busy during the last fifteen years that I have been unable to find time to attend any of the dinners. Do you still have those interesting speeches you used to have that seemed so interesting, or do you have the men who have done something bore one by telling about their work? I would really like to know.

"I sign myself, after Thackeray,

'Your obliged servant,'

Lynde Sullivan."

Address, 40 Water street, Boston.

WILLIAM LAWSON SUMRALL.

"A Democrat by birth as by breeding, I 'reformed' in 1896, and as ever since I have actively affiliated with the party of Roosevelt, and as politically Kentucky is given over to a reprobate mind, it is almost supererogatory to add that I have no political appointments or elections to report. But candidacies — that's another story.

"Without solicitation I was, in 1897, made the joint candidate of the Republicans and Gold Democrats for City Attorney of Harrodsburg, but as only the year before I had committed the unpardonable sin of 'treason' to 'The Matchless Leader,' a bitter personal fight was made against me, and I was defeated by an apparent majority of six votes. 'For ways that are dark and tricks that are vain,' the Goebelized Democracy, which was in absolute control of the election machinery, is 'peculiar as the heathen Chinee!

"Nor is this all. In September, 1902, while I was in Nova Scotia on a pleasure trip, the Republicans of the Eighth Congressional District of Kentucky nominated me for Congress. The nomination was the more complimentary because without my knowledge and in my absence it was bestowed upon me in preference to several worthy and active aspirants. While I well knew that the hope I was called to lead was forlorn, I accepted the nomination, and canvassed the district. One of my speeches in the campaign was published in full in the newspapers of Louisville and Lexington, neither of which is in my district.

This is the nearest approach to 'publications' of which I have been guilty.

"As the habits of thought revealed in the published speech had been largely produced by my study of Herbert Spencer's works, I took the liberty of sending the aged philosopher a copy of it, and was highly elated to receive from him a letter in which he said he was gratified to know what rational political views were held and publicly expressed by me, and hoped they would meet with wide acceptance.

"In 1899 I was in the thick of Kentucky's desperate battle against Goebelism, not because William Goebel was a Democrat, but because, in my deliberate and honest opinion, he was the most dangerous man to American institutions that ever rose to the surface of American politics. Had he marched on Frankfort at the head of an invading army he would have been no more deeply guilty than he was guilty of destroying a republican form of government in the State. That he preferred pusillanimous fraud to perilous force was to my mind merely an aggravation of his crime, and so far from apologizing, I have always rejoiced that the liberty-loving people of Kentucky rose in determined rebellion. To them political robbery 'under the forms of law' was no less robbery.

"Since my last report to you I have continued to practise law, and I may at least say that the result does not discourage me. I still hold the position of Counsel of the Mercer National Bank, to which I was elected two years ago.

"As jealous a mistress as, however, the law proverbially is, I have never permitted it to interfere with my passion for that culture, which, according to Matthew Arnold, consists in the systematic and harmonious development of all one's powers, and as I am far removed from 'the fitful fever and the stir unprofitable' of urban life, I command much time for the eager study of those books which have been felicitously described as 'the precious life-blood of a master spirit.'

"Last December I had the pleasure of attending the brilliant dinner given at the Queen City in Cincinnati by the Harvard Club of that city in honor of the Associated Harvard Clubs. New York, Chicago, St. Louis, Kansas City, Milwaukee, Louisville, and other cities were represented. Dr. Peabody attended as the representative of Harvard, and the occasion was vociferous and halcyon. I met there Baldwin, Leighton, Livingood, and other '88 men.

"Address is Harrodsburg, Ky."

HAROLD SWAIN.

"I have nothing to report but hard work at the law here in New York, — competition with men cleverer than I ever hope to be, some of them '88 men, — and yet a degree of success better perhaps than I deserve.

"The firm is still Reeves, Todd & Swain.

"Address, 55 Liberty street, New York City."

S. L. SWARTS.

"Nothing of importance to report. Other than as a member of the firm of Lyon & Swarts I have been quite busy. For some years past I have given a course of lectures on 'Agency' in the Benton College of Law. At the last meeting of the Associated Harvard Clubs I was made secretary and treasurer. I take advantage of this report to remind my classmates that in 1904 a great exposition will be held in St. Louis, and to beg of them to look me up.

"My home address is No. 4476 West Pine boulevard.

"My office address is 615 Missouri Trust Bldg., St. Louis, Mo."

EDWARD WYLLYS TAYLOR.

"In 1899 received the degree of A.M. from Harvard University, and in 1900 was made Assistant Editor of the 'Boston Medical and Surgical Journal,' following F. B. Lund, who resigned because of stress of professional work. In 1899 and 1901 held the position of Professor of Neurology at the University of Vermont. In 1898 was appointed Instructor in Neurology at the Harvard Dental School. Have been made a fellow of the American Association for the Advancement of Science, and a member of the American Association of Pathologists and Bacteriologists. Publications have been largely confined to technical medical subjects in the field of neurology. In 1904 appointed Assistant in Neurology, Harvard Medical School, and one of the consulting staff of the Framingham Hospital. Two daughters: Ruth Wyllys, born May 13, 1900, and Katherine Brewster, born June 7, 1903.

"Address, 416 Marlborough street, Boston."

EZRA R. THAYER.

"I am practising law at 53 State street, Boston, as a member of the firm of Storey, Thorndike, Palmer & Thayer.

"My home address is 77 Bay State road, Boston.

"My daughter, Eleanor Arnold Thayer, was born on March 20, 1902. I think I reported in my last report the birth of my son, James Bradley Thayer, on May 15, 1899. In 1901–2 I lectured on Massachusetts practice at the Harvard Law School."

LUCIEN S. THAYER.

"I am still with the New England Telephone Company as manager of the Archive Department.

"Business address, 119 Milk street.

"Home address, 46 Hereford street."

WILLIAM G. THOMPSON.

"I am still a member of the firm of Matthews & Thompson, lawyers, 1134–1138 Tremont Bldg., Boston. My partners are N. Matthews, Jr., '75 and S. R. Spring, Williams '94. I live as before at No. 1 Mercer Circle, Cambridge. I have two children, both girls.

"In answer to the fourth question it may be worth while to say that I have had a small part in forming the Germanic Museum Association of Harvard University, — an institution well worthy, it seems to me, of the attention and support of graduates.

"Publications (with N. Matthews, Jr.): Public Service Company Rates and the Fourteenth Amendment, — 15 Harvard Law Review, 249, 353,— December, 1901; January, 1902."

HARVEY P. TOWLE.

"Since the last report I have been practising medicine, confining myself, however, to dermatology and not practising general medicine. This statement really tells my whole story, for private practice and the hospital clinics occupy most of my time. The hospitals with which I am connected are the Boston City Hospital and the Carney Hospital, in both of which I hold the appointment of Assistant in the Out-Patient Dermatological Clinics.

"The most important events of my life were the birth of a son in November, 1900, who, however, died, and of a daughter in September, 1902."

He has since resigned his positions at the Boston City Hospital and the Carney Hospital, and received the appointment of Assistant Physician in the Dermatological Department at the Massachusetts General Hospital.

EDWARD WARREN TRULL

Writes: "I am living in Lowell and still hold the office of Assistant Clerk of the Police Court. The pleasures and responsibilities of a busy life are mine.

"On the twenty-ninth day of December, 1898, I married Ellen Burrows Duckworth, of Lowell.

"Address, 308 Arsworth street, Lowell."

RALPH HENRY VAN DEMAN.

Captain Twenty-first U.S. Infantry.

"Upon the outbreak of the Spanish-American War I was a second lieutenant, and on duty in the Military Information Division, Adjutant-General's Office, Washington, D.C. When my regiment, the Twenty-first Infantry, was sent to the mobilization camp at Tampa, I did all in my power to have myself relieved from duty in Washington and ordered to my regiment, but could not do it. In May of 1898 I was sent to Camp Black on Long Island to assist in mustering the New York volunteers into the United States service. While here Gen. Geo. W. Davis asked me to come on his staff as an Aide-de-Camp, and I was so assigned on the 26th of May. General Davis was assigned to command the Second Division of the Second Corps, then in camp at Camp Alger near Washington. We remained in camp there until August, when the Division marched to Thoroughfare Gap, where it remained for a short time, and was then taken by train to Camp Meade, Pa., where it rejoined the remainder of the Corps.

"Late in the fall the Corps was sent to camps in the South, the Second Division being sent to Greenville, S.C. After remaining here a short time, General Davis was sent to Pinar del Rio Province, Cuba, as Department Commander. In March he was ordered to Washington as a member of the board to investigate the alleged issue of 'embalmed beef.'

"While in Washington my regiment was ordered to the Philippines for active service, and, much as I regretted leaving General Davis, I felt that it was my duty to ask to be released from his staff and ordered to join my regiment. I went with my regiment to the Philippines, arriving in Manila on the 11th of May, 1899. After one week of police duty in the Tondo district I was assigned as Aide-de-Camp on the staff of Gen. R. P. Hughes, then Provost Marshall General of the city of Manila, but under orders to proceed to Iloilo and take command of the Department of the Visayas, embracing the islands of Panay, Negros, Bohol, Cebu, Samar, and Leyte. We arrived in Iloilo on June 3, finding the city completely invested by the insurgents. Owing to the condition of the country, it then being the rainy season, it was impossible to move against them, and we remained in Iloilo in a state of siege until the 10th of November, when we moved against them. In a half-dozen lively fights we whipped and scattered them, and then marched completely across the Island of Panay, from Iloilo on the south coast to Capiz on the north. In addition to my duties as Aide-de-Camp, I was also the Engineer Officer of the Department, and had my hands full repairing roads and building temporary bridges to enable the troops to get over the country. We returned to Iloilo in the latter part of December, and in the early part of January, 1900, started on the expedition up the west coast of Panay, ending at Calivo on the north coast and scattering the insurgents along the west and north coasts. At the end of the first campaign we took two companies of infantry by transport, and with two naval gunboats took the town and island of Romblon. From there we went with a batallion of Infantry to Cebu, and landed them to reinforce the troops there on that Island.

"After the second campaign there was a period of comparative quiet, but guerilla warfare soon became general all over the department. This was owing principally, I am sorry to say, to advice from anti-imperialist and anti-administration citizens in the United States, who hoped, by persuading the Filipinos to continue the war, to so embarrass the administration that President McKinley's re-election would be made impossible. God only knows how many Filipino and American lives these people are responsible for.

"In February my promotion to a captaincy took me off General Hughes' staff, and I was sent to Manila to take charge of the topographical section of the Military Information Division at Division Headquarters. In August I was placed in charge of the Military Information and remained in that position until August, 1902, when I was ordered to the United States and assigned as Aide-de-Camp to Major-general Hughes, then commanding the Department of California. General Hughes retires for age in April, 1903, when I will probably be ordered to my regiment, now at Fort Snelling, Minn.

"As an army officer has no permanent home, communications addressed to me in care of the Adjutant-General, U.S. Army, Washington, D.C., will always reach me."

WILLIAM MANNING VAN HEUSEN

After a brief but courageous struggle with pulmonary tuberculosis, the inroads of which upon his strength were so evident to his classmates at the tenth reunion in 1898, Van Heusen died in California, where he had gone in a vain search for health, in February, 1899.

In his death his class lost one of its most loyal members. Although he did not graduate with us, he was ever a most stanch and enthusiastic supporter of Harvard College.

He was known pre-eminently as a lover of good fellowship, a hater of cant, a man capable of making the greatest sacrifices upon the altar of friendship.

His brief but brilliant career was cut short within six months of our decennial dinner which he rose from a sick bed, against his physician's advice, to attend.

His classmates will not soon forget the spirit of the man who, though evidently struggling for every breath, rose, and in a brave and brilliant speech presented them with the beautiful loving cup in behalf of the New York members, the money for which had been collected by his efforts. The pathos of his closing words will abide in the memory of all who heard them while life shall last — "Here's a health to you and your families, and may you live long and prosper."

JOHN W. H. WALDEN.

"Married Grace Reed, of Cambridge, Dec. 27, 1900, thus bringing the event within the last century. Have no children up to date. Have published since the last report several articles on the subject of Classical Philology, all of which will be found in the 'Harvard Studies in Classical Philology.'

"Am a member of the American Philological Association and the Harvard Teachers' Association.

"Have been teaching in Cambridge since the last report. This year have an appointment at Radcliffe College.

"Went abroad for the second time in the summer of 1896, when I travelled through Belgium and Holland, took a tramp through the Harz mountains, and visited friends in Berlin.

"Address, 13 Mt. Auburn street, Cambridge."

ERVIN WARDMAN.

"Editor of 'New York Press.'

"Married May 14, 1902, Caroline Kliod Eyre, at Washington, D.C.

"Business address, 'New York Press,' NewYork City.

"Home address, 2 East 45th street."

HENRY STEELE WARDNER.

"Since September, 1901, I have been attending to law matters for the New Jersey Zinc Company and allied interests. I am treasurer of that company and of several subsidiary companies. During the past year business has taken me West beyond the Mississippi three times and to the South once. My vacations have been meagre. A few days in the last of May, 1902, I visited the timber region of southern Vermont, and took a short driving trip in the Berkshires. On this excursion T. O. Shepard was to have been my companion, but a broken leg prevented his joining me. I have not written for publication, except two short articles for a country newspaper — one, a notice of the late Roswell Downer, who for more than fifty years was landlord of a locally famous road-house in Weathersfield Township, Vermont, and one a notice of Gilbert Thayer, who for many years, and with rare skill, gathered and wrote the news items of the town of Hartland, Vermont, for the 'Vermont Journal.' I had the pleasure of serving on the committee which arranged the very enjoyable New York Harvard dinner in February, 1903. At that dinner, as has become usual, my seat was next that of G. H. Brewer.

"Business address, No. 11 Broadway, New York City.

"Home addresses are No. 238 East 13th street, New York City, and Windsor, Vermont."

EDWARD ROSS WARREN.

Address, Walnut place, Brookline.

F. H. WHIPPLE.

"Practising medicine, otherwise my career is uneventful.

"Address, 1079 Boylston street, Boston."

WALTER M. WILLETT.

"On my return from Nome, where I spent four months, I became interested in Wakelee & Co., wholesale and retail druggists in this city. I have also done something in the crude oil business, becoming interested in the Kern River Oil Company (occupying the position of vice-president), one of the largest companies operating in California. Banking has also claimed part of my time, as I am one of the directors in the Germania National Bank of this city. I have moved my law office to the tenth floor of the Crocker Building."

FRANK BACKUS WILLIAMS.

"I have served a term in the Common Council. Life has been busy and interesting to me, just 'practising law' and doing almost nothing else.

"Business address, First National Bank Bldg., Hartford, Conn. Home address, Danielson, Conn."

FRANK BEVERLY WILLIAMS

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

NATHAN HOWARD WINSLOW.

After leaving college he was connected for a time with the Lehigh Railroad; later he was in the government employ at the Custom House in Buffalo, and at the time of his death was associated with Albert J. Wright, a stock broker in Buffalo. He died on Aug. 21, 1901, under chloroform, which had been administered for the performance of a minor operation.

(The secretary regrets that the report of Winslow's life is so meagre. He never answered requests for information, and the above account was sent by his sister in reply to a letter requesting information after learning of his death.)

J. WALTER WOOD, JR.

"Since the last class report was issued, I have continued to pass my nights as a quiet 'commuter' at Short Hills, N.J., and by day as a partner of N. von Hoffmann & Co., at 56 Wall street, New York. I have joined in that gentle struggle for dollars which puts the strenuousness of a Yale rush-line in the shade. Arbitrage in stocks between the New York and London markets is our particular 'line,' and I recommend it to those of my classmates who seek a quiet life!

"In June, 1900, a son arrived to keep my daughter (vintage of 1896) company, and in July, 1902, another came to make the number lucky. Between these events, I yielded to the call of Kipling's 'Red Gods,' and spent two months in the mountains of British Columbia,

> "Where the baffling mountain eddies > chop and change,"

stalking the elusive Ovis montana. I had the good luck to kill three very fine rams, and also some good specimens of Haplocerus montana (white goats). The country hunted is known as the East Kootenay District, and it is full of game and fish for any one who is not afraid of good hard work; but the timber is very dense in the valleys, and the mountains above tree-line rough and precipitous, and to reach game requires an average climb of some twenty-five to thirty miles a day and a rise of some 9,000 to 10,000 feet above camp.

"Last year I purchased Hickory Island in the St. Lawrence river, above Clayton, N.Y., and am spending my spare time in developing a stock farm there. Any of my classmates who happen to be in that neighborhood during the summer months will always find a hearty welcome if they care to look me up."

FRANCIS CALL WOODMAN

Writes: "We are living the simple life, and are trying to teach the rising generation how to live it. Away in the country, one hour west of New York, you will find us building a little world of our own, slowly hammering out a good future. Our interests are, of course, mainly educational. One-third of each year is free to us for a change of scene and work. I secured this last summer in Cambridge, at the Harvard Summer School; the preceding summer at New England haunts dear to me; the summer of 1900 in Germany; and of 1896 in France, Italy, and Greece (including a Kalapothakesian experience). Since 1896; when I 'shook' New York and the book business for educational work in the open, my experiences have all been concerned with the training of the American boy, a very fine species of a distinctly wild animal. Our menagerie is up on the hills just outside of Morristown, N.J., and we have three rings, — the whips being handled by Tom Browne, Arthur Butler, and yours truly."

WILLIAM McMICHAEL WOODWORTH.

In 1897 he was appointed assistant in charge of the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy, and also made an expedition to the Samoan Islands. In 1889 he accompanied Alexander Agassiz on an exploring expedition among the islands of the Pacific in the U.S.S. "Albatross." In 1901 he accompanied Alexander Agassiz on an expedition to the Maldive Islands. He is now keeper of the Museum of Comparative Zoölogy at the University.

JULIUS F. WORKUM.

"After graduation I entered the Harvard Law School, from which I was graduated in 1891. My first taste of practical law work was in the office of Messrs. Kramer & Kramer, of Cincinnati, Ohio, with whom I remained a year and a half. From there I entered the office of Messrs. Simpson, Thatcher & Barnum, lawyers of New York City, and have ever since been with these gentlemen associated under different firm names. When the Hon. Thomas B. Reed retired from public life and entered that firm its name was changed to Reed, Simpson, Thatcher & Barnum, and after his death it became Simpson, Thatcher, Barnum & Bartlett. In January, 1903, I became a member of the latter firm. Our offices are 25 Broad street, New York, where my friends and classmates will always find a warm welcome.

"On Oct. 17, 1895, I was married to Bell Blake Fifield, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. B. F. Fifield, of Montpelier, Vt. Our union has been blessed with two children, B. F. Fifield Workum, born Oct. 25, 1899, and Clara Workum, born July 27, 1902.

"I have never sought or filled any public office, and my life, if given in detail, would scarcely be interesting to any one but myself, as it has been merely that of a hard-worked lawyer."

TEMPORARY MEMBERS.

BENJ. L. BOODRY.

"I can make no change in my report since the last."

AMOS COTTING.

"Since leaving college I have been in my father's office at No. 11 Pemberton square taking care of and managing real estate, occasionally travelling, once going abroad for three months. Am still unmarried, and live at home with my father at No. 249 Commonwealth avenue."

PHILIP DEXTER.

"Married April 16, 1895, to Edith Wood. Son, William, born July 15, 1897.

"Professional work, practising law. No educational appointments or connection with institutions of learning.

"Travel. Went abroad (Paris and London) for four weeks in spring of 1902. Had four days ashore when it didn't rain. Got enough to last another ten years. No other travel, except three weeks in the spring of 1901 in Michigan, Wisconsin, and Minnesota, inspecting telephone properties, which was purely business and of no interest except to telephone people.

"I have been practising a hybrid mixture of law and business, calculated to unfit any one for either the one or the other, but rather amusing. It has not been particularly strenuous nor of much interest to any one except myself.

"Business address, 40 State street, Boston, Mass.

"Home address (winter), 29 Massachusetts avenue, Boston, Mass."

WILLIAM F. DRAPER

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

E. A. FARGO

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

H. M. FEDERHEN

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

PAUL F. FOLSOM

Served one year in Boston Common Council in 1898.

Married in July, 1901.

Still continues being one of Boston's active merchants, with no apparent prospect of becoming too rich. Member of usual local clubs.

Home address, 69 Village avenue, Dedham, Mass.

Business address, 82 Essex street, Boston, Mass.

HENRY FRANC

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

CHARLES R. HOLMAN

Has not been heard from. The secretary would like some information concerning members who make no report.

HARRY VAN CORTLANDT HOMANS

Was born in San Francisco, Cal., Dec. 25, 1864. His birth occurred during a short sojourn his parents made there. At the age of nine he accompanied his family to Europe, which, from that period, became his permanent home. Later on he resided in Paris. Mr. Homans, senior, was the European partner of the New York Life Insurance Company. Therefore Paris became the headquarters of the Homans family.

Harry Van Cortlandt was a remarkable linguist. He also was gifted with a beautiful voice, and was possessed of unusual personal attractions. His warm heart and great charm of manner endeared him not only to his equals, but to his inferiors as well. He entered Harvard College at the age of nineteen, becoming a member of the Class of '88. He was a general favorite, and was prominent in athletics. Much of his time was passed in the social life of the college. His course there was interrupted by a serious illness, close upon which came the death of his father. These unfortunate incidents prevented his return to college. In the year 1891 he married Isabella Randolph De Witt. From that time forward he called New York his home. He had a comparatively uneventful life in the brokerage business until the date of his death. The latter occurred at Short Hills, N.J., on Sept. 23, 1902. A widow and one child survive him.

GEORGE A. HOPKINS.

"There is no change in my life story, except that my business address is 70 Federal street, Boston, instead of 31 State street. Am still insuring property and lives."

JOHN H. METZEROTT.

"I am not dead, notwithstanding the report that during my Sophomore year I contracted tuberculosis and went out to California and Arizona to die. It is true that I had the disease and had it in a virulent form, and was given up by a noted Boston specialist as an absolutely hopeless case, climatic treatment or anything else. It is also true that I went to the great southwest, but it is not a fact that I died. I cured myself of this malady by living out in the open air in the mountain and desert, by riding horseback, by living on good wholesome food, and above all by seeking the light. I lay stress on the subject of light, since I believe it the most important therapeutical agent of the day, and since I believe that when I exposed my bared chest to the hot rays of the sun for almost an hour each day I was one of the first to employ this agent successfully as a therapeutical procedure, and I speak of it at the exclusion of other more pertinent matters, because I have unlimited faith in its worth and absolute assurance of its application in the future. Needless for me to say that in the practice of medicine I have advocated its use, and have employed it in its natural or artificial form whether it has been the sunlight itself, the violet ray from the arc light, or the ray emanating from a Crooks tube. Should any of my colleagues or their children ever become afflicted with the 'Morbus Communis' may they take hope from what I have written, and do likewise. This little digression then may not have been in vain.

"When after a sojourn of three years in the desert and mountains I returned East a cured man, I took up the subject of medicine, studying in Philadelphia, New York, and the local school here in Washington. Like most students I fell in with a face that appealed to me, found an opportunity to say what I wanted, and shortly after my severance as interne in the Garfield Hospital, married and went abroad to complete my studies at Vienna, where I remained nearly four years. During my stay in the Austrian capital a son was born to us, whom we gave the family name of my wife, Kirk, and later a little girl 'Gertrude,' and still later a boy, 'John.' The great panic of ninety-four struck me like many others, and I sustained great losses and like many others experienced great cares and anxieties, all of which I would have avoided had I known then what I know now, how senseless and useless it is to worry about anything, for when I think of it, the world has been good to me none the less, and I envy no man. As regards the strenuosity of my life, like most doctors it has been such indeed, but were it not so I am sure I should not sleep as well as I do or enjoy with such profound pleasure rest when it is afforded. I have written my share of monographs, have done considerable translating, adapted a German medical work, and have affiliated myself with several scientific societies, both European and American. Of course I have done considerable travelling by reason of my environment, three or four times across the continent and half a dozen times to Europe. While travelling I have taken the greatest pleasure in touring it on foot, especially in the Tyrol and Switzerland. I invariably avail myself of my vote in Maryland, but I have taken no active part in politics. My address is Metzerott Bldg., Washington, D.C."

WALTER SANDS MILLS.

"I have two children: Emma DeLong Mills, born Sept. 16, 1894, and DeLong Mills, born Aug. 6, 1897.

"In June, 1896, owing to ill health, I left Stamford, Conn., where I had practised medicine for five years, and went West. I spent five months at Albuquerque, New Mexico, five thousand feet above sea level. The succeeding five months I spent in travelling about Texas. I covered nearly six thousand miles in the State of Texas alone, visiting and sleeping in every town of any consequence, and a good many that were of none. Texas is a wonderful place, it has an area of 265,000 square miles, or about 50,000 more than either France or Germany. It contains vast virgin forests, much undeveloped mineral wealth, immense areas of the best of farming lands, of the worst of arid deserts. In fact, Texas could be cut off from the rest of the world and support millions of people on its own resources, — but enough of Texas.

"I returned East by way of steamer from Galveston to New York late in April, 1897, and again put up my shingle in my native town, New York, May 1, 1897. I have been here ever since.

"Just at present I am secretary of the Homeopathic Medical Society of the County of New York, corresponding secretary of the Alumni Association of the New York Homeopathic Medical College and Hospital, president of the Academy of Pathological Science, president of the New York Homeopathic Materia Medica Society, and member of various other organizations.

"I am Visiting Physician to the Metropolitan Hospital, Department of Public Charities, an institution of a thousand beds, and also to the Hahnemann Hospital.

"I am associate editor of the 'North American Journal of Homeopathy,' and have made numerous contributions to other journals, homeopathic and otherwise.

"In December, 1900, I issued a history of the Ward's Island Metropolitan Hospital. It commemorated the twenty-fifth anniversary of the placing of the hospital under homeopathic control, and was printed at the expense of the hospital alumni.

"Address, 324 West 89th street."

FRANCIS L. H. NOBLE.

"Three children: Mark, born 1894; Christopher, born 1899; and Emily, born 1901.

"Publications, all 'yellow' consisting of Sunday newspapers since 1888, 'San Francisco Examiner,' 'New York Journal,' and 'New York World.'

"Have been backward and forward across the continent some twelve or fifteen times, and hustling for the almighty dollar with varying success. That has taken all the 'strenuosity' I could produce.

"Address, Sunday editor, 'New York World.'

"Home address, Flushing, Long Island."

FRANK C. ROBY.

"I have been practising law in Illinois since 1888, in Chicago until 1896, and with office at Decatur, Ill., under the firm name of Outen & Roby since that time. For some few years I have been chiefly occupied in railroad legal matters. Have at present an office at Ironton, Ohio, under the nominal title of President of the Toledo & Ohio River Railway Company. In reality I am supposed to guide matters clear of legal difficulties and get good title to corporate rights, public and other franchises, and property, etc., and exercise sufficient diplomacy to accomplish the purposes of the corporations I represent in a community. Have dabbled in practical politics on the Republican side in Illinois for many years. Never held an office except delegate to National Convention in 1896 and various party committeeships, and have no ambition to hold office. Would prefer to say who shall hold the offices. Have been very fortunate, however, in factional political battles, as well as in the material end of the practice of law.

"I am still married and have three strong, healthy children.

"I have no publications to my credit aside from abstracts and briefs, and no strenuous accomplishments except in connection with business deals for my clients."

ALLAN T. SIMPKINS.

"I married Miss Mary Lee Ridgely, May 8, 1894, and have a daughter, Enid Ridgely.

"Am engaged in lead mining and smelting in the southeastern Missouri district.

"Home address, 3700 Westminster place, St. Louis.

"Business address, 423 Roe Bldg., St. Louis."

ISAAC RAND THOMAS.

"After the panic of 1893 I retired from active business for a while. In July, 1894, Messrs. B. H. Dickson & Co., cotton brokers of Boston, asked me to come with them, and a year later admitted me to the firm. I remained with this firm until the summer of 1902, when I was persuaded by Messrs. Geo. H. McFadden & Bro., cotton merchants of Philadelphia and New York, to retire from B. H. Dickson & Co., and take charge of McFadden's Boston office, which they intended to open.

"The only strenuous event of my business career was the running of a special freight train from Lowell to New York, to help break the cotton corner of January, 1901. I am told the train broke all freight records for speed between Lowell and New York, and also between Providence and Harlem River. The cotton was sold and the deal successfully completed with about twenty minutes to spare at the finish.

Feb. 9, 1899, at Brookline, I made a new American record for submarine swimming by raising the old record from 175 feet to 206 feet, being under water about one minute and seventeen seconds. Whether the record still stands or not, I am unable to state.

"Since the last report there have been no marriages, births, or deaths in my immediate family; for all of which I am very thankful.

"From October 1 to June 1 my home address is 134 Marlboro street, and my office is Geo. H. McFadden & Bro., 70 Kilby street, Boston, Mass."

JULIUS R. WAKEFIELD.

"As at the time of the last report, I am with the Old Colony Trust Company, Ames Building, Boston, in the capacity of Trust Officer. I am still unmarried. I have travelled a little in Canada, and have made two most interesting trips to the City of Mexico, one in 1899 and the other in 1901, visiting also a number of the other large cities of the Republic."

FRANKLIN B. WILEY.

"In the spring of 1899 I was most unexpectedly offered the position of literary editor of 'The Ladies' Home Journal.' As I had been on the staff of 'The Boston Transcript' for nearly eight years, and had bought the house in which I lived at Waban, in Newton, Mass., only the previous summer, it was somewhat of a wrench to resign my Boston position, sell my home, and remove to Philadelphia. I settled at Wayne, a pretty town about fifteen miles out on the main line of the Pennsylvania railroad, and have since lived there at 207 Walnut avenue.

"There has been no increase in my family since the last report, and I still have two children, a girl and a boy.

"My time has been wholly taken up with editorial work and special writing for various periodicals, newspapers, and other publications. For a while I was first the Boston and then the Philadelphia representative of 'The Independent,' of New York, but pressure of other duties obliged me to resign the post.

"My only travelling has been in this country on business trips and in my summer vacations. I am a director in the Protective Association of my home town, and a member of the Franklin Inn Club (the literary club of Philadelphia, of which Dr. S. Weir Mitchell is president) and of the Harvard Club of New York.

"Home address, 207 Walnut avenue, Pa.

"Business address, 425 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa."

STATISTICS.

MARRIAGES.

Adams, C. F., 2d	Francis Lovering	April, 1899.
Allen, Geo. L.	Florence Levers Hobbie	Salem, Mass., June 1, 1904.
Amory, Copley	Mary Forbes Russell	Milton, Mass., Dec. 5, 1899.
Anderson, Larz	Isabel Weld Perkins	Boston, Mass., June 10, 1897.
Astor, John Jacob	Ada Lowle Willing	Feb. 17, 1891.
Bailey, Jas. A., Jr.	Helen Gage Dolliver	Arlington, Mass., Feb. 1903.
Balch, Franklin G.	Lucy Rockwell Bowditch	Jamaica Plain, Mass., Nov. 7, 1894.
Baldwin, C. H.	Lillian King White	Evanston, Ill., Sept. 10, 1891.
Bancroft, Wilder D.	Katharine Bott	Middlebury, Vt., June 19, 1895.
Barnes, William, Jr.,	Grace Davis	Albany, N.Y., June 12, 1888.
Bartlett, Nathaniel E.	Annie W. Poole	Nov., 1894.
Bliss, W. J. A.	Edith Grantham West	Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 19, 1896.
Bôcher, Maxime	Marie Niemann	July 12, 1891.
Bohlen, Charles	Celestine Eustis	Jan. 14, 1902.
Bolster, Wilfred	Jeanie T. Pond	Roxbury, Mass., Oct. 4, 1893.
Bowen, J. A.	Mary S. Whitney	Cambridge, Mass., June 19, 1890.
Bradlee, F. J.	Elizabeth Whitwell Thomas	Boston, Mass., Jan. 15, 1900.
Brewer, Graham H.	Alice Humphrey	Albany, N.Y., April 28, 1892.
Brock, Geo. A.
Browne, Causten, Jr.,	Caroline Wilhelmina Zeigler	Salt Lake City, Oct. 18, 1899.
Burdett, C. H.	Winella White Stratton	Boston, Mass., Feb. 21, 1890.
Cabot, Charles Mills,	C. E. Perkins	Brookline, Mass., Sept. 21, 1893.
Carpenter, Benj. F.	Helen G. Fairbank	Chicago, Ill., Sept. 18, 1893.
Carpenter, George Albert	Harriet Isham	Chicago, Ill., May 10, 1894.
Chase, Percy	Marion Crowell Monks	April 14, 1896.
Cheever, H. D.	Maud Russell Barnard	Boston, Mass., Oct. 1, 1890.
Chittenden, Richard P.	Miss Fisher	Montreal, Can., Jan. 28, 1892.
Choate, Charles F.	Louise Burnett	Southborough, Mass., June 15, 1892.
Churchill, Asaph	Helen Olivia French	Jamaica Plain, Mass., June 14, 1900.
Clement, Frederic P.	Maude Morrison	Elizabeth, N.J., Nov. 19, 1891.
Clyde, Marshall H.	Margery Lanman Bucklin,	New York, N.Y., June 18, 1901.
Cogswell, George Proctor	Anna Willis Bumstead	April 30, 1895.
Cram, George W.	Elizabeth Hixon Bent	Cambridge, Mass., Jan. 1, 1902.
Crocker, K. F.	*Hester Edith Miles	Fitchburg, Mass., Sept. 19, 1889; died 1892.
Curtis, B. F.	Mary E. Mudge	Lynn, Mass., June 23, 1891.
Dana, Francis Bryden	Florence Knight	Boston, Mass., June 1, 1892.

Dean, Frank Lincoln, Mabel Houghton . . . . . Worcester, Mass., Jan. 13, 1891.
Dexter, Phillip . . . Edith Wood . . . . . April 16, 1895.
Dickinson, David
Taggart . . . . . Carrie Melvin Story . . . Manchester, N.H., Dec. 8, 1892.
Duane, Russell . . . Mary Burnside Morris . . Philadelphia, Pa., June 14, 1899.
Eldridge, John Rice . Imogene Rowell . . . . . San Francisco, Cal., Nov. 25, 1895.
Elkins, Wendell P. . Ruth Dexter Carter . . . Marion, Mass., June 6, 1899.
Farnum, Charles E. . Mary L. Everett . . . . . May, 1896.
Flint, Grover . . . . Maud Fiske . . . . . 1897.
Folsom, P. F. . . . . July, 1901.
Francis, Carlton S. . Elsie Wesson . . . . . Orange, N.J., April 7, 1896.
Fuller, R. H. . . . . Bessie Clagett . . . . . Boston, June 13, 1895.
Furness, H. H. . . . Louise Brooks Winsor . . Philadelphia, Pa., May 3, 1899.
Gale, Herbert E. . . Martha Pollard . . . . . Clifton, Mass., Sept. 29, 1892.
Gale, W. W. . . . . Ellen Rowell Kelly . . . . Exeter, N.H., Sept. 9, 1899.
Gallivan, James A. . Louise Agnes Burke . . . Roxbury, Mass., Feb. 21, 1898.
Gallivan, Wm. J. . . Charlotte Louise Gilfether, Boston, Mass., June, 1894.
*Garrison, Lloyd McKim . . . . . Alice Harrison Kirkham . Hastings-on-the-Hudson, N.Y., May 12, 1896.
Gay, Arthur P. . . . Ellen A. K. Hutchinson . New Albany, Ind., Aug. 1, 1895.
*Gibson, Howard
Beers . . . . . Marie V. Doupe . . . . . London, Eng., April, 1892.
Gilbert, H. L. . . . . Laura Fullerton . . . . . April 11, 1901.
Gitterman, J. M. . . Alice Sterne . . . . . 1898.
Gleason, C. W. . . . Nellie Francis Morrison . Natick, Mass., July 1, 1890.
Gleason, Sidney . . Marion H. Stanwood . . Sept. 20, 1900.
Graham, Perley W. . Nellie J. Ballard . . . . Malone, N.Y., Oct. 1, 1892.
Griffin, Charles L. . Lillie Adelaide Johnson . New York, April 12, 1893.
Hale, Herbert D. . . Margaret Curzon Marquand . . . . . New York, April 2, 1892.
Hall, Sam'l Stickney, Eleanor S. Borst . . . . . Clinton, N.Y., June 21, 1893.
Hallowell, J. M. . . Louise Tucker Harding . Milton, Mass., April 14, 1903.
Hammerslough, C. R. . . . . Hortense Rohr Frank . . . April, 1898.
Hammett, P. M. . . Marie Louise Black . . . . Altoona, Pa., June 27, 1893.
Harriman, E. A. . . Bertha Cornwall Ray . . . Chicago, Ill., Aug. 31, 1897.
Harvey, Edward B. . Laura Smith . . . . . Buffalo, N.Y., Dec. 10, 1895.
Harwood, Chas. H. . Helen M. Hunneman . . . Roxbury, Mass., Nov. 22, 1892.
*Hay, G., Jr. . . . . Caroline Barker Whiting . London, Eng., July, 1901.
Hayes, H. E. . . . . Emma S. Tilton . . . . . Exeter, N.H., Oct. 16, 1901.
Henderson, Wm. P., Edith Eloise Atkins . . . Port Medway, N.S., July 8, 1897.
Hesseltine, Norman F. . . . . Alice A. Burt . . . . . Boston, April 29, 1897.
Holden, Albert F. . Katherine E. Davis . . . Davis, West Va., April 27, 1894.
Holder, D. C. . . . . Agnes Stewart . . . . . New Orleans, La., April 17, 1900.
Holman, C. R. . . . Susan Lee Longstreth . . Philadelphia, Pa., Oct. 11, 1893.
*Homans, Harry V. C. . . . . Isabelle Randolph De Witt, 1891.
Honoré, Lockwood . Beatrice C. Richardson . . Aug. 12, 1902.
Hopkins, George A., Frances Ames Barrett . . Boston, May, 1893.
Horton, W. G. . . . Elizabeth Summer Wood . St. Louis, Mo., Dec. 3, 1900.
Howard, Arthur L. . Emily Stewart . . . . . Des Moines, Ia., Dec. 3, 1892.
Job, Herbert K. . . . Elsie A. Curtis . . . . . Mayville, N.D., Sept. 10, 1891.
Keasbey, Lindley Miller . . . . . Nellie Sumrall . . . . . Louisville, Ky., June 8, 1892.

Kimball, W. R. . . . Mary Knowlton . . . . . Utica, Ohio, Nov. 20, 1890.
Kellogg, Ralph A. . Ellen Kemp Chester . . . Clinton, N.Y., Aug. 25, 1896.
Kennard, Frederic
H. . . . . Sarah Harrison Eisenbrey, Philadelphia, Pa., May 27, 1896.
Kidder, Edward H. . Edith Aldrich Irons . . . . Assonet, Mass., Oct. 7, 1895.
Knowles, F. W. . . Emma James Jarrett . . . Philadelphia, Pa., June 17, 1891.
Lawton, Perry . . . Maude Kenyon . . . . . Newport, R.I., Sept. 17, 1896.
Leighton, G. B. . . . Charlotte Kayser . . . . . St. Louis, Mo., April 12, 1893.
Leland, R. H. . . . Cora Eugenia Sanger . . . Sherborn, Mass., June 28, 1890.
Lent, George H. . . . . 1892.
Lewis, Leo R. . . . Carrie Nichols Bullard . . Dec. 21, 1892.
Livingood, Chas.
Jacob . . . . . Lily Broadwell Foster . . Cincinnati, Ohio, Dec. 30, 1896.
Lund, Fred Bates . Zoe Meriam Griffing . . . Lexington, Mass., May 13, 1893.
Marden, Francis S. . Fannie Louise Clark . . . New York, April 29, 1893.
Marks, A. B. . . . . Emily J. Felton . . . . . Natchez, Miss., Nov. 18, 1891.
Mason, E. Campbell, Martha Sprague . . . . . Arlington, Mass., Oct. 6, 1892.
Means, Frederick H., Helen Chandler Coit . . . Winchester, Mass., May 25, 1893.
Merrill, Wm. S. . . Mary Hancock Allen . . . Chicago, Ill., June 13, 1896.
Meserve, H. F. . . . Helen Struve MacCulsky . London, Eng., Sept. 10, 1892.
Metzerott H. . . . . Miss Kirk.
Miles, Harry R. . . Helen A. Clark . . . . . New Haven, Conn., Nov. 8, 1894.
Mitchell, William . . Gertrude Wakelin . . . . New York, June 23, 1892.
Nelson, William . . . . . 1890.
Noble, F. L. H. . . . Leidy . . . . . July 8, 1893.
Emily M. Potter . . . . . Philadelphia, Pa., Nov. 27, 1897.
Norton, W. K. . . . Eliza Maria Marion . . . Boston, June 28, 1888.
Oppenheim, Nathan, Bertha A. Elsberg . . . . New York City, June 15, 1897.
*Overton, Robert L. . Nancy Baxter . . . . . Nashville, Tenn., Jan. 6, 1892.
Page, Herman . . . Mary Morehead Riddle . . Pittsburg, Pa., June 25, 1891.
Paine, Robert Treat,
Jr. . . . . Marie Louise Mattingly . Washington, D.C., Dec. 7, 1898.
Peale, F. D. . . . . Martha Vail Tufts . . . . Elizabeth, N.J., April 17, 1895.
Pennypacker, Henry, Anna H. Carpenter . . . . Philadelphia, Pa., June 20, 1889.
Pierce, V. Motte . . *Laura B. Severance . . . Pittsburg, Pa., June, 1888.
Platt, Edmund . . . Adele Innis . . . . . Poughkeepsie, N.Y., June 23, 1892.
Plummer, H. M. . . . Alice Hussey . . . . . New Bedford, Mass., Sept. 12, 1888.
Pope, Henry T. . . . Jessie Lenora Colburn . . Ft. Payne, Ala., April 27, 1893.
Porter, Charles A. . Margaret Cochran Dewar . Stirling, Scotland, April 13, 1898.
Pulsford, H. A. . . Arian Gertrude Baldwin . So. Orange, N.J., Dec. 10, 1896.
Pulsifer, George R. . Helen Webster Root . . . Chicago, Ill., June 20, 1893.
Rand, William H. . Rosalie Crockett . . . . . Medford, Mass., June 15, 1892.
Roby, F. C. . . . . Sept. 19, 1893.
Rogers, Charles B. . *Susan Brayton . . . . . Utica, N.Y., January, 1894; died April 3, 1898.
Eugene Doumaux . . . . May 3, 1900.
Rolfe, C. J. . . . . Josephine Jefferson . . . . Buzzard's Bay, Mass., June 29, 1876.
Ropes, William . . . Grace E. Thorn . . . . . New York, Feb. 19, 1891.
Saxe, James Alfred . Mary Wick . . . . . Cleveland, Ohio, June 23, 1892.
Saxe, J. W. . . . . Sarah F. Burtis . . . . . New York City, April 11, 1889.
Schermerhorn, B. T., Madeleine West . . . . . Elizabeth, N.J., Nov. 20, 1897.
Sedgwick, John H. . Rachel Meriweather Griffith . . . . . Boston, Feb. 11, 1893.
Seelye, T. T. . . . . May Elizabeth Whittaker, Cleveland, Ohio.
Simpkins, A. T. . . May Lee Ridgely . . . . . St. Louis, Mo., May 8, 1894.
Snow, Daniel Kimball . . . . . Clara Anthony . . . . . Boston.

Sondheim, Eugene	Helen Stettheimer	New York,	April 26, 1893.
Stetson, Fred D.	Helen Prescott	New Bedford, Mass.,	Oct. 3, 1891.
Stowell, Edmund C.,	Sarah Russell May	Dorchester, Mass.,	June 1, 1893.
Sullivan, Lynde	Katharine Torrey Baldwin,	Worcester, Mass.,	April 29, 1897.
Swaln, Harold	Margaret Reid	New York,	September, 1893.
Swarts, S. L.	Florence Mary Eiseman	St. Louis, Mo.,	Feb. 14, 1898.
Taylor, E. W.	Elsie Brewster Howe	New York,	Oct. 14, 1897.
Thomas, Isaac R.	Gertrude S. Fabyan		June 12, 1899.
Thompson, William G.	Mary Hinckley Huntington	New York,	Sept. 25, 1896.
Trull, E. W.	Ellen Burrows Duckworth,	Lowell, Mass.,	Dec. 29, 1898.
Waldron, J. W. H.	Grace Reed	Cambridge, Mass.,	Dec. 27, 1900.
Wardman, Ervin	Caroline Kliod Eyre	Washington, D.C.,	May 14, 1902.
Wiley, Franklin B.	Jessie L. Glen	Cambridge, Mass.,	June 1, 1896.
Willett, Walter M.	Viola Voorman	San Francisco, Cal.,	June 1, 1893.
Wood, J. W., Jr.			Sept. 24, 1895.
Workum, Julius	Bell Blake Fifield	Montpelier, Vt.,	Oct. 17, 1895.

BIRTHS.

Adams, C. F., 2d . . Catherine . . . . . April, 1902.
Amory, Copley . . . Copley, Jr. . . . . Nov. 12, 1890.
Henry Russell . . . . . Oct. 25, 1892.
John Forbes . . . . . March 8, 1897.
Walter . . . . . June 13, 1899.
Thomas Chace . . . . . Nov. 30, 1901.
Balch, F. G. . . . . Chas. Bowditch . . . . . May 3, 1896.
Franklin G., Jr. . . . . May 3, 1896.
Lucy Bowditch . . . . . Jan. 12, 1898.
Henry Gordon . . . . . Aug. 8, 1901.
Bancroft, W. D. . . . Mary Warner . . . . . Sept. 12, 1896.
Hester . . . . . May 2, 1900.
John Chandler . . . . . April 11, 1902.
Barnes, William, Jr., Thurlow Weed . . . . . June 6, 1889.
Landon . . . . . March 31, 1894.
Bartlett, N. E. . . . Elizabeth Poole . . . . . Oct. , 1895.
Eleanor Wilder . . . . . April , 1897.
2 children since last report.
Bliss, W. J. A. . . . Eleanor . . . . . Aug. 16, 1899.
Francis McDowell . . . . Nov. 6, 1900.
Bôcher, Maxime . . Helen . . . . . Aug. 23, 1892.
Esther . . . . . Sept. 22, 1893.
Frederick . . . . . May 18, 1898.
Bohlen, Charles . . Henry Morgan . . . . . Dec. 13, 1902.
Bolster, Wilfred . . Philip W. . . . . Sept. 23, 1897.
Son since last report.
Bowen, J. H. . . . . Joseph Whitney . . . . . May 18, 1891.
Harold Corey . . . . . May 26, 1896.
1 boy since last report.
Bradlee, F. J. . . . . F. J., Jr. . . . . Dec. 20, 1892.
Sargent . . . . . .
Malcolm . . . . . .
Brewer, Graham H., Theodore Graham . . . . May 13, 1895.
Graham Hunting, Jr. . . . Nov. 21, 1899.
Elsie . . . . . Jan. 19, 1903.
Cabot, Chas. M. . . Frances Anne . . . . . July 19, 1894.
James Elliott . . . . . June 16, 1899.
Carpenter, Benj. . . Benjamin, Jr. . . . . Jan. 23, 1896.
Cordelia Fairbank . . . . April 12, 1898.
2 children since last report.
Carpenter, Geo. A. . Katherine Snow . . . . . April 14, 1895.
Chittenden, Richard P. . . . . 2 children.
Churchill, Asaph . . Olivia . . . . . Oct. 28, 1901.
Barbara Ellen . . . . . Nov. 21, 1903.
Clement, F. P. . . . Maud Morrison . . . . . July 31, 1893.
Frederic Percival, 2d . . . March 20, 1895.
Roger Conant . . . . . Nov. 2, 1896.

Choate, C. F.	Joseph B.	May 3, 1893.
	Chas. F., 3d	May 3, 1893.
Cogswell, Geo. P.	George Russell	June 25, 1896.
	Josephine Freeman	March 5, 1901.
Cram, Geo. W.	Elizabeth	July 4, 1903.
Crocker, Kendall	Alfred Miles	June 27, 1891.
Curtis, Benjamin	Gordon	Dec. 19, 1892.
	Robert Mudge	Sept. 10, 1894.
	Mary Carroll	Dec. 17, 1896.
	Helen Child
Dana, F. B.	Ralph Francis	Nov. 18, 1893.
	Marion	Aug. 23, 1895.
	John	Feb. 18, 1898.
Dexter, Philip	William	July 15, 1897.
Dicklnson, David T.	4 children.
Duane, Russell	Morris	March 20, 1901.
Eldridge, J. R.	Carlton Rowell	Oct. 27, 1896.
Elkins, Wendell P.	*Enoch	Oct. 31, 1901; died.
	Kimball Carter	Jan. 24, 1903.
Farnum, Chas. E.	Ernest	Oct. , 1897.
	Charles E., Jr.
	Eunice	Aug. , 1902.
Francis, Carlton S.	Tappan Eustis, 2d	May 13, 1897.
	Carlton Shurtleff, Jr.
Gale, H. E.	John Elbridge	July 17, 1893.
	Barbara	Aug. 16, 1894.
Gale, W. W.	Eleanor Edwards	Oct. 30, 1891.
Gallivan, James A.	James A., Jr.	Jan. 8, 1904.
Gallivan, Wm. J.	Agnes	Oct. , 1895.
	Wm. M. J., Jr.
*Garrison, L. McK.	Lloyd Kirkham	Nov. 19, 1897.
*Gibson, H. B.	Livingston Beers	1893.
Gilbert, H. L.	Son	May 20, 1902.
Gleason, C. W.	Harold Willard	July 31, 1895.
	Elizabeth Story	Jan. 22, 1898.
Goodhue, S. A.	Samuel Stocker James Proctor	Feb. 10, 1896.
Griffin, Chas. L.	Elizabeth White	Aug. 2, 1894.
Hale, H. D.	Herbert Dudley, Jr.	Feb. 23, 1893.
	*Russell Marquand	April 12. 1896; died in September, 1896.
	Robert Beverly	Jan. 29, 1901.
Hall, Samuel S.	S. S., Jr	April 4, 1894.
	Enid Angeline	April 11, 1895.
	Lawrence Percival	July 10, 1897.
	Reginald Saxton	Jan. 27, 1900.
Hammett, P. M.	Louis Black	April 7, 1894.
	Waldo Bertram	Oct. 19, 1896.
	Daughter
*Harlow, J. F.	Baby two years old
Harwood, C. H.	Willard Baxter	Oct. 30, 1893.
Hesseltine, N. F.	Boy and girl
Holden, A. F.	Elizabeth Davis	July 16, 1895.
	Emery May	Nov. 30, 1896.
Holder, D. C.	Son	Feb. 1, 1901.
	Daughter	March 15, 1903.

Holman, C. R.	Stephen	June 25, 1895.
	Rebecca Lee	Oct. 24, 1897.
*Homans, Harry	1 child
Honoré, Lockwood	Daughter
Horton, W. G.	Elizabeth Sumner
Howard, A. L.	Dorothy	March 24, 1897.
	John Bryant	Aug. 6, 1901.
Job, H. K.	Geo. Curtiss	June 3, 1892.
	*Amy	Feb. 16, 1894; died 1898.
	*Daughter
Keasbey, L. M.	Daughter	Nov. 2, 1893.
	Child since last report.
Kennard, F. H.	Margaret Alice	Sept. 25, 1899.
	Frederic Hedge, Jr.	March 6, 1902.
	Son	June 26, 1903.
Kidder, E. H.	Ethel Warren	June 28, 1897.
Knowles, F. W.	Son
Leighton, G. B.	Geo. Eliot	June 25, 1894.
	John Langdon	Oct. 27, 1897.
	Henry Kayser
Lewis, L. R.	Philip Bullard	June 15, 1895.
Livingood, C. J.	*Nathaniel Foster	Dec. 29, 1897; died July 9, 1898.
	Josephine Lytle	Oct. 3, 1900.
	John J.	March 7, 1903.
Lund, F. B.	Charles Carroll	April.
	Fred Bates, Jr.	December.
	Edward Griffing	May 18, 1901.
	Zoe Stetson	Feb. 7, 1904.
Marden, F. S.	Francis Skiddy, Jr.	Dec. 16, 1894.
	Ruth Requa	April 29, 1898.
	Alice Clark	Sept. 24, 1899.
Marks, A. B.	Alexander	October, 1892.
	Son	Nov. 29, 1897.
Means, F. H.	Paul Howard	Nov. 1, 1894.
	Gardiner Coit	June 8, 1896.
	Winthrop Johnson	July 26, 1899.
Merrill, W. S.	John Hancock	Oct. 10, 1900.
	Wilfrid Allen	Sept. 14, 1901.
	Margaret Mary	March 10, 1903.
Metzerott, J. H.	Kirk
	Gertrude
	John
Miles, H. R.	Margaret	Dec. 19, 1896.
	John Shepley	Dec. 21, 1899.
Mills, W. S.	Emma DeLong	Sept. 16, 1894.
	DeLong	Aug. 6, 1897.
Nelson, William	3 children.
Noble, F. L. H.	Mark	June 25, 1894.
	Christopher	1899.
	Emily	1901.
Norton, W. K.	Marion	Nov. 12, 1889.
	Harvard	Dec. 25, 1892.
*Overton, R. L.	Ed	Oct. 10, 1892.
	John	March 26, 1894.
	Robert L., Jr.	Dec. 6, 1895.
	Son

Page, Herman . . .	Herman Riddle	May 3, 1892.
Paine, R. T., Jr. . .	Dorothy	Sept. 5, 1899.
	Robert Treat, 3d	Dec. 15, 1900.
Peale, F. D.	Franklin Vail	April 24, 1896.
	Rodgers	Dec. 29, 1897.
Pennypacker, H. . .	Thomas Ruston	Dec. 20, 1894.
Pierce, V. M.	*Ray Vaughn	June 26, 1889; died Oct. 21, 1893.
	*Scott Ward	May 24, 1891; died Oct. 23, 1893.
Plummer, H. M. . .	Charles Warren	May 25, 1890.
	Henry M., Jr.	June 25, 1892.
	Morgan Hussey	March 2, 1894.
	Thomas Rodman, 2d . . .	Oct. 11, 1900.
Pope, H. T.	3 children.
Porter, C. A.	Isabel DeCourcy	Sept. 21, 1902.
Pulsford, H. A. . . .	Child	Dec. 5, 1897.
	James Arnold	April 1, 1900.
Pulsifer, G. R. . . .	Royal Root	Feb. 23, 1895.
	Geo. Hale	Nov. 20, 1896.
Rand, W. H.	William H., 3d	Dec. 1, 1895.
	Robt. Crockett	Jan. 23, 1898.
Roby, F. C.	Daughter.
	2 children since last report.
Rogers, C. B.	Elizabeth Butler	Jan. 14, 1903.
Rolfe, C. J.	Josephine	Dec. 10, 1898.
Ropes, William . .	Marcellite Thorn	July 28, 1897.
Saxe, J. W.	Eleanor	April 8, 1900.
	John Burtis	July 27, 1902.
Schermerhorn, B. T.,	Eleanor	Nov. 27, 1901.
Simpkins, A. T. . .	Enid Ridgely	1895.
Sondheim, E.	Stella May	May 25, 1895.
	Mabel Helen	Aug. 23, 1897.
Stowell, E. C. . . .	Channing	July 28, 1895.
	Samuel	June 1, 1902.
Taylor, E. W. . . .	Ruth Wyllys	May 13, 1900.
	Katherine Brewster . . .	June 7, 1903.
Thayer, E. R.	James Bradley	May 15, 1899.
	Eleanor Arnold	March 20, 1902.
Thomas, I. R. . . .	Arthur Malcolm	March 25, 1890.
	Elizabeth Whitwell	June 21, 1891.
Thompson, W. G. .	2 children.
Towle, Harvey P. . .	*Son.	Nov. , 1900.
	Daughter	Sept. , 1902.
Wiley, F. B.	2 children.
Willett, W. M. . . .	Viola
Wood, J. W., Jr. . .	Nathalie	Nov. 4, 1896.
	Son	June, 1900.
	Son	July, 1902.
Workum, J. F. . . .	B. F. Fifield	Oct. 25, 1899.
	Clara	July 27, 1902.

DEATHS.

Clark, Charles Worcester . . . . . Roxbury, Mass., March 31, 1891.
Drake, Harrie Beekman . . . . . Barking Ridge, N.J., Aug. 28, 1894.
Garrison, Lloyd McKim . . . . . Lenox, Mass., Oct. 4, 1900.
Gibson, Howard Beers . . . . . Columbia, Mo., Oct. 18, 1895.
Goodwin, Charles Haven . . . . . Cambridge, Mass., July 6, 1889.
Hall, Edward Jewett . . . . . April, 1890.
Harlow, James Francis . . . . . No. Carolina, June 26, 1904.
Hay, Gustavus, Jr. . . . . Avon, Mass., Sept. 18, 1901.
Kahnweiler, Charles Francis . . . . . Loon Lake, N.Y., July 17, 1892.
Kelham, Frederick Keffer . . . . . New York, N.Y., Oct. 12, 1895.
Kidder, Edward Hamilton . . . . . Jamaica Plain, Mass., July 17, 1898.
McCall, Francis Ellas . . . . . Bath, N.Y., Nov. 22, 1889.
McCammon, John White . . . . . Malden, Mass., May 17, 1892.
McCleary, Samuel Foster, Jr. . . . . At sea, Dec. 2, 1892.
Marks, Alexander Beckwith.
Overton, Robert Lee . . . . . April 10, 1900.
Paul, Heywood Mason . . . . . Philadelphia, Pa., May 17, 1889.
Richards, George Joseph . . . . . Weymouth, Mass., April 18, 1900.
Shoninger, Ferdinand . . . . . Paris, France, Nov. 25, 1893.
Ullrich, Walter . . . . . Asheville, N.C., April 16, 1892.
Van Heusen, Wm. Manning . . . . . California, Feb , 1899.
Winslow, Nathan Howard . . . . . Aug. 21, 1901.

DEATHS OF TEMPORARY MEMBERS.

Chenoweth, Ernest Bernard . . . . . Leicester, Mass., May 21, 1897.
Emery, Sheldon . . . . . Cincinnati, Ohio, Oct. 24, 1890.
Homans, Harry . . . . . Short Hills, N.J., Sept. 23, 1902.
Osgood, William Hicks . . . . . Rochester, N.Y., Feb. 7, 1889.
Sanford, Henry Shelton . . . . . New York, N.Y., Oct. 1, 1891.
Saunderson, Charles Brooks . . . . . Lynn, Mass., Feb. 22, 1888.

THE FIFTEENTH ANNIVERSARY.

The fifteenth anniversary was celebrated on June 22, 23, and 24, 1903. On Monday, June 22, the class met at Young's Hotel in the morning, intending to accept the kind invitation of W. S. Spaulding for a sail to Nahant on his yacht, and lunch at the Nahant Club. Copious supplies of liquid and solid refreshment had been prepared by the host as a precaution against seasickness, but owing to the stormy weather (it was pouring hard that morning) it was decided unwise to brave the perils of the deep. The provisions were therefore transported to the class headquarters at Young's Hotel, where they did such good service that the class toward noon felt well enough to proceed by train to Lynn, where barges, provided by the management, transported them out into the Nahant peninsula with comfort and safety. They then sat down to a lunch, which was a most excellent one, and was finished without serious damage to the Club's property, although it lasted well into the afternoon. The rainy weather prevented any extended indulgence in outdoor athletics, but did not interfere with the feast of (un)reason and outflow of good fellowship that began with the lunch, continued through it, and followed it out on to the lawn after it was over.

The members then proceeded to return to Boston in irregular order, only to reunite at the "Pop" concert in the evening, where they listened to the band with great apparent enjoyment and cheered in a way which reflected credit upon them, even in comparison with the larger and younger classes which vied with them in encouraging one another by vociferous and repeated cheers to demonstrate that the battle of life in the long years since graduation had not seriously affected their vocal organs at any rate After the concert the members returned to their various places of repose in order to recruit themselves for the strenuous ordeal of the two following days.

On the morning of Tuesday, the second day of the reunion, the survivors made their way as best they could to the Country Club, which is situated in a pleasant tract of country in the town of Brookline, conveniently adjacent to the magnificent estate of classmate Larz Anderson, who beside doing all he could in every way to further and assist in the celebration, provided a most delightful lunch for the class in his beautiful and most hospitable home. But the secretary is getting ahead of his story, for before describing the lunch he must not forget to state that before the lunch various games of golf, tennis, and other athletic sports did much to recuperate our classmates, and so restore and invigorate their circulations, digestions, etc., that they were able to do full justice to the excellent repast provided by Anderson. About 12.30, or thereabouts, after hastily removing some of the traces of the conflict in which they had demonstrated that age had not yet completely sapped their youthful strength and vigor, they were glad to gather beneath the standard (also provided by Anderson) which indicated their place of assemblage, and sink back upon the cushions of the carriages and automobiles (which Anderson had generously provided) in which they were whirled up the hill to his house. The secretary remembers that this house is situated on top of a hill reached by a long and sinuous macadam driveway, and is quite contiguous to a very beautiful Italian garden. As the weather was still uncertain, the lunch was held indoors, and the spacious hallway and adjoining rooms, set with small tables, afforded a picture that the class will not soon forget. Anderson was everywhere looking after the slightest wishes, expressed and unexpressed, of his classmates.

After this most delightful lunch, which was not ended without some speaking and cheering, the carriages and automobiles were again requisitioned for the return journey.

On arrival at the Country Club, after marching upon the grounds in column of X's preceded by a band (Anderson's), the class debouched upon the polo field, and halted while a nine was chosen to prove the mettle of the class in a game of baseball with one of the other classes which, by a singular coincidence, was holding a reunion at the Country Club upon the same day. At this distance the secretary does not quite remember what class it was. In regard to the personnel of the class nine his memory is also at fault, but he remembers that it was made up of classmates who have justified their selection to uphold the honor of the class by the eminence which they have obtained in law, medicine, and other pursuits related to, if not identical with, the game of base-ball. One point distinctly remains in the secretary's memory, which is that Rand filled the position of umpire, and officiated with such characteristic impartiality that the class was defeated by a score of —— to ——. The exact figures are not at hand, but it is believed that if the umpire had not tried so hard to overcome a pardonable tendency to favor his own class as to result in almost uniform decisions in favor of our opponents, the result might have been different.

After the ball game the class again returned to Boston in order to recover by another night's rest their strength, exhausted by an active and delightful day. The following day was Commencement. In the morning the class met at 1 Holworthy as usual, and about noon a number of classmates accepted the invitation of the Hon. James A. Bailey, formerly "Jim" Bailey, to lunch at his estate in Arlington. A swim in Spy pond had been scheduled to precede the lunch, but was omitted, again owing to the coldness and dampness of the weather.

Those who attended this lunch had a most delightful time, and in this and other ways the afternoon of Commencement Day quickly passed into eternity, until the evening when the class reunited for a most sumptuous dinner, provided by our class Lucullus, "Swampy" Clarke, and his able and willing assistant, Asaph Churchill, at the Algonquin Club. The dinner was a good one, and fittingly ended a most delightful reunion. Of the speeches made upon that occasion, only one, that of classmate Jack Sedgwick, was committed to paper and memory, and consequently is the only one reproduced in this report. Either Rand or our class president presided, and with a few brief and witty remarks introduced the other no less eloquent speakers of the evening. "Jim" Bailey was one of them, at least. Several deputations from other classes, bringing magnums of champagne, were received in a manner befitting their errand, and deputations were also sent to various parts of the city to return the compliments in kind.

A band discoursed classical and other airs, and vocal music by classmates who were enabled to keep the pitch, by the assistance of an upright piano (furnished by the committee at the expense of the class fund), added much to the enjoyment of those present and surviving to the close. An animated, but entirely friendly, discussion on the political matters of that period, in which Rand and Gallivan were the protagonists, ended in an announced determination of each to compass, if possible, the election of the other to the highest office in the gift of the American people, now so ably administered by Roosevelt, '80. At last, as all good things must end, the class dispersed, to meet at the twentieth anniversary, at which the secretary is resolved that an abler and more accurate pen than his, at an interval of less than eighteen months after the event, shall write the story.

The secretary wishes to acknowledge the generous and willing way in which Churchill and Clarke gave their time and thought to preparing the celebration.

F. B. Lund.

ADDRESS OF J. H. SEDGWICK AT THE DINNER.

Some three weeks ago I received a most civil letter from a classmate, whose name I decline to tell, asking me to speak at this Anniversary Dinner and to occupy five minutes in doing so. This letter contained many sesquipedelian words of compliment, and wound up by suggesting that perhaps I would like to take for my subject "The Ladies." I was very much taken with the novelty of this idea, but after the rosy glow of pleased surprise had faded away, and reason had resumed its austere sway, I saw how ambiguous, how subtly poisonous was this suggestion. That it was prompted by a wanton naughtiness I fear too much; that to entangle and to enmesh me in the perfumed labyrinths of the Cytherean maze I have too much reason to believe was the object of the suggestor. So, leaving the unhappy man more in sorrow than anger, let us proceed.

You will no doubt agree with me that it is a great mistake to have any subject for an oration of this importance. In addressing a gathering of men who are celebrated throughout the world for having endited a mass of literature the most profound and the most encyclopedic, it is impossible to hit on a subject with which you are not all well acquainted. Were I to choose any subject, it would be that of interstate immigration as one of very great importance.

All of you have had some advantages, but there is one which many of you have lacked. To be brief, let me impress upon you the inestimable advantage of a removal into this Commonwealth for purposes of domicile. Live first in any State of the Union that you choose, and then come here to see what you have missed. Doing this your health will be improved, your vision cleared, and your prose style vastly bettered.

In this Commonwealth we have a judiciary which we rather fancy. Our judges speak and write the English language; they have all received a legal education; they are appointed for life, and it is their custom to merit that appointment.

The conductors and motormen of our celebrated trolley lines are without their peers for integrity, deportment, and knowledge of the world. The widow and the orphan, the bearded lady and the protectionist, alike receive at their hands treatment that is at once a stimulant and a caress.

Our legislature is a compact mass of dessicated statesmanship, composed of gentlemen whose lives and fortunes are part of the fabric of the body politic; who have devoted those lives and those fortunes to their fellow-men; whose interests are single; whose lives are without guile. They are now engaged in a consideration of the laws governing corporations and the regulation thereof, and have the prayers of the noblest profession on earth.

Our schools leave nothing to be desired. Within their portals are taught all roots and branches of useful knowledge; counterpoint and thorough-bass, the elements of ascetic theology, the use of the lute of sixteen strings, comparative anatomy, all these are taught and taught so thoroughly that a training for practical life is assured. Armed with these and a thousand more useful things the happy pupils go forth to enjoy that contentment which an education so well fitted to their means and surroundings must make certain.

Our libraries are a living pride. The building which houses our largest has been a great deal admired by its designers, and leaves nothing to be desired in point of heat. It offers to the curious many books about Pittsburg and Kentucky, and is a good deal used.

I hope that I do not wound the sensibilities of any who come from the green sod of good old New York, but it is my duty to point out to you the fact that we have a subway that was finished within the sum appropriated for its cost, and that this was effected without shedding a drop of Moorish or Sicilian blood. Our subway is paved with marble; its walls are encrusted with tiles more gorgeous than those of Caracalla's baths; upon that pavement and among those tiles daily congregate thousands of beautiful women and earnest. Many of both sexes carry bags.

The criminal law is enforced well and with despatch. There is a growing sentiment against homicide and burglary, as well as against the more intellectual forms of misdirected energy. Though we cannot hope from our Attorney-general a work that can approach in interest "The Personal Reminiscences of William the Silent," he does his work very well on a moderate salary.

Our ballot system makes unnecessary the kindly efforts of those gentlemen who would help the right hand to know what the left is voting, and we are all very much pleased with the right of anonymous franchise.

Our elevated railway is much noisier than that of New York, and has the great advantage of being most of it upon or under the ground.

These are but a few of a thousand reasons I could give you why you should turn your faces to the East. I trust that you will remember them. I can think of no more inspiriting sight than the South Terminal Station turned into a refined barge office full of prodigal sons.

Since we last met every year has seen great change. The life of one short moon has witnessed a dramatization of one of Mr. Hope's admirable novels, with the vivacious Servian in all the principal rôles. We have been enraptured spectators of the passionate religious enthusiasm of Holy Russia, while in our own happy land the negro continues to be carbonized. The Protestants and the Catholics continue their kindly pastime of damning each other, while the gentle Unitarians are superfluously damned Torquanade the Gentle. The only man who comes out of it well is the Christian Scientist who watches with patient eye his wooden leg as it cometh up like a flower.

The last time that I spoke to you we were citizens of a republic. To-night we sit or stand a modest assemblage of emperors, whose unwieldy domain lies panting under the bamboo tree and hugs itself under the North Star.

We meet again to-night after a long parting to recall for a while the pleasant times we spent, watched over by our stately mother by the Charles. We have left at the door our feverish cares and labors. We are removed by golden barriers from the outer world, and enjoyment is our duty.

It is sometimes given to us in our dreams to go back and see once more places that soothed the eyes, and to behold once more the faces of old friends; to move among these once more with a keen pleasure, and for a speck of time to live our lives over again. We seek to clasp to ourselves these phantoms that throng the dusky mansions of sleep.

How much greater the substance of our pleasure when we can see real faces and hear real voices of those who during four years framed the picture of our daily life; with whom we worked and played; who were joint heirs with us in life's splendid hopes, never to be exhausted, ever to be renewed! Failure and success have come to all of us, but loss of courage I hope has come to none of us. Our burdens are different only in that they are heavier, our duties stricter in that we see them more clearly, our pleasures greater because they are fewer.

My time is up. I have tried to speak to you as impersonally as possible, but there remains for me a personal duty to perform. Among those strong men who planted themselves in New England and hammered out a pattern for us who follow and forget them, it was the practice to testify before their fellows in public meeting their repentance for sin, their pride in work well done, their acquiescence and obedience in time of sorrow or joy, of misfortune or prosperity. Therefore to-night, conceiving it to be my duty, I bear testimony in awful reverence to my humble gratitude that there has been vouchsafed to me a great betterment in bodily estate, and that, plucked out of the fingers of death, I am able to speak with you to-night, and to see and hear you, and to rejoice with you not only in the good days that are past but in the better that are surely coming.

ADDRESSES.

Walter Abbott, care of Gordon Abbott, Ames Building, Boston, Mass.
C. F. Adams, 2d, 50 State street, and Concord, Mass.
George Lockhart Allen, 298½ Essex street, Salem, Mass., P.O. Box 233.
Copley Amory, 713 Barristers Hall, Boston, Mass.
Larz Anderson, summer address, "Weld," Brookline, Mass.; winter address, 1530 K street, Washington, D.C.; office address, 81 Mason Building, Boston, Mass.
James W. Appleton, business address, 21 Maiden lane, New York, N.Y.; home address, 28 East 36th street, New York, N.Y.
Gaston Meares Ashe, Tres Pinos, San Benito County, Cal.
James W. Austin, 53 State street, Boston, Mass.; residence, Woodland road, Jamaica Plain, Mass.
James A. Bailey, Jr., business address, 414 Barristers Hall, Pemberton square, Boston, Mass.; home address, Pleasant street, Arlington, Mass.
Franklin G. Balch, 279 Clarendon street, Boston, Mass.
Charles H. Baldwin, 100 Washington street, Chicago, Ill.
Wilder D. Bancroft, 7 East avenue, Ithaca, N.Y.
Williams Barnes, 61 State street, Albany, N.Y.
John D. Barry, The City Club, 55 West 44th street, New York, N.Y.
N. E. Bartlett, care of N. J. Bartlett & Co., 28 Cornhill, Boston, Mass.; home address, 607 Main street, Wakefield, Mass.
William Beals, Jr., 50 Congress street, Room 927, Boston, Mass.
Joseph I. Bennett, 61 Court street, Boston, Mass.
William B. De Billier, 20 Broad street, New York, N.Y.; home address, 640 Madison avenue, New York, N.Y.
W. J. A. Bliss, business address, Johns Hopkins University, Baltimore, Md.; home address, 1017 St. Paul street, Baltimore, Md.
Edward Ludlum Blossom, Butte, Mont.
Melvin E. Boas, 42 Bond street, New York, N.Y.
Maxime Bôcher, 14 Avon street, Cambridge, Mass.
Charles Bohlen, Philadelphia Club, 1301 Walnut street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Wilfred Bolster, business address, 417 Barristers Hall, Boston, Mass.; home address, 137 Ruthven street, Roxbury, Mass.
Fordyce Huntington Bottum, business address, Wells Building, Milwaukee, Wis.; home address, 9 The Majestic, Milwaukee, Wis.
Jos. H. Bowen, 168 Belmont avenue, Fall River, Mass.

Frederick J. Bradlee, business address, 28 State street, Boston, Mass.; home address, 26 Marlborough street, Boston, Mass.
Graham H. Brewer, business address, 141 Broadway, New York, N.Y.; home address, South Orange, N.J.
George Atwood Brock, 88 Waterman street, Lockport, N.Y.
Causten Browne, Jr., Salt Lake City, Utah.
Thomas Q. Browne, Jr., Morristown School, Morristown, N.J.
Henry G. Bruce.
W. Franklin Brush, 16 East 37th street, New York, N.Y.
Myron Luther Bruuer, Wilbraham, Mass.
Cyril Herbert Burdett, business address, 149 Broadway, New York, N.Y.; home address, 257 East 14th street, Brooklyn, N.Y.
Arthur Pierce Butler, Morristown School, Morristown, N.J.
Charles M. Cabot, 111 Devonshire street, Boston, Mass.
Benjamin Carpenter, Harvard Club of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.
George Albert Carpenter, 49 Delaware place, Chicago, Ill.
Percy Chase, 53 State street, Room 813, Boston, Mass.
H. Durant Cheever, 253 Broadway, New York, N.Y.
Richard Percy Chittenden, 8404 12th avenue, Brooklyn, N.Y.
Charles Francis Choate, Jr., 506 Sears Building, Boston, Mass.
Asaph Churchill, 522 John Hancock Building, Boston, Mass.
Henry Martyn Clarke, 50 State street, Boston, Mass.
Marshall B. Clarke, District Attorney's office, New York, N.Y.
Frederic P. Clement, Harrisville, N.Y.
Marshall Hill Clyde, 19 State street, New York, N.Y.
Thos. Clyde, 19 State street, New York, N.Y.
Stephen R. H. Codman, 6 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.
Charles N. Cogswell, 61 Kirkland street, Cambridge, Mass.
George P. Cogswell, 18 Garden street, Cambridge, Mass.
George W. Cram, 50 Buckingham street, Cambridge, Mass.
Kendall Fox Crocker, 11 Pemberton square, Boston, Mass.
Alan Cunningham, 838 Market street, Wilmington, Del.
Benjamin F. Curtis, care of Curtis & Cameron, Pierce Building, Boston, Mass.
Francis Bryden Dana, 28 Pearl street, Boston, Mass.
John Dane, M.D., 29 Marlborough street, Boston, Mass.
William P. Daniels, University Club, New York, N.Y.
Walter Dorsey Davidge, Jr., Bond Building, Washington, D.C.
T. D. Davidson, 530 California street, San Francisco, Cal.
Chandler Davis, 5 West 39th street, New York, N.Y.
Frank L. Dean, 314 Main street, Worcester, Mass.
Fraulin H. Dewart, St. Albans, Vt.
David Taggart Dickinson, 416 Barristers Hall, Boston, Mass.
Russell Duane, 911 Pine street, Philadelphia, Pa.
Carroll E. Edson, 305 McPhee Building, Denver, Col.
Henry Edwards, Quincy, Mass.

John Rice Eldridge, 172 Benefit street, Providence, R I.
Wendell Phillips Elkins, Bath, N.H.
Carl Adolf Ewald, Fall City, Washington.
Frank L. Fales, City Hall, Cincinnati, O.
Chas. E. Farnum, Harlem, Choteau County, Mont.
Herbert Haviland Field, Field, Zurich, Switzerland.
Grover Flint, 90 Brattle street, Cambridge, Mass.
Walter Greenwood Forsyth, Boston Public Library, Boston, Mass.
William Everett Fowler, Whitney House, Westborough, Mass.
Carleton S. Francis, 26 Davis avenue, Brookline, Mass.
Charles Friend, 201 Old Insurance Building, Milwaukee, Wis.
Robert H. Fuller, "Evening Journal," Albany, N.Y.
Horace Howard Furness, Jr., 631 Witherspoon Building, Philadelphia, Pa.
William Henry Furness, 3d, 2034 De Lancey place, Philadelphia, Pa.
Herbert Elbridge Gale, 35 Summer street, Haverhill, Mass.
William Wakefield Gale, 4401 Wisconsin avenue, Washington, D.C.
James A. Gallivan, City Hall, Boston, Mass.
William J. Gallivan, 743 Broadway, South Boston, Mass.
Marshall J. Gasquet, Gasquet, Rutherford & Putnam, 31 Nassau street, New York, N.Y.
Arthur P. Gay, 6 Beacon street, Rooms 1025 and 1026, Boston, Mass.
George B. de Gersdorff, 953 Madison avenue, New York, N.Y.
Henry Lothrop Gilbert, Wyandotte Building, Columbus, O.
John Milton Gitterman, 1317 F street, N.W., Washington, D.C.
Clarence Willard Gleason, Roxbury Latin School.
Sidney Gleason, 115 Devonshire street, Boston, Mass.
Gustavus Adolphus Goebel, 192 East Madison street, Chicago, Ill.
Samuel Amory Goodhue, P.O. Box 1302, Boston, Mass.
Josiah Ferdinand Gooding, 96 Prescott street, Cambridge, Mass.
Ernest Barron Gordon, Nordavaren, Jautland, Sweden.
Charles Lamson Griffin, 37 Liberty street, Manhattan Borough, New York, N.Y.
Herbert O. Hale, 15 Exchange street, Boston, Mass.
George Gilman Hall, 690 Broadway, Chelsea, Mass.
Samuel Stickney Hall, 32 Nassau street, New York, N.Y.
James Mott Hallowell, 50 State street, Boston, Mass.
P. M. Hammett, 238 St. John street, Portland, Me.
Colmond Rose Hammerslough, 46 West 84th street, New York, N.Y.
Horace Ware Hanson.
Edward Avery Harriman, Derby, Conn.
Edward Bristol Harvey, 91 Jewett avenue, Buffalo, N.Y.
Charles Hamant Harwood, 907 Boylston street, Boston, Mass.
Harry Edgar Hayes, 125 Milk street, Boston, Mass.
William Pride Henderson, Boston Latin School.
Homer W. Hervey, Merchants Bank Building, 97 William street, New Bedford, Mass.

Norman F. Hesseltine, 10 Tremont street, Boston, Mass.
Albert Fairchild Holden, Glenville, O.
Daniel Curtis Holder, 47 Broad street, Boston, Mass.
Oscar Howe Holder, 27 West 44th street, New York, N.Y.
Robert Afton Holland, 805 Union Trust Building, St. Louis, Mo.
Lockwood Honoré, Judge of the Circuit Court of Illinois, Chicago, Ill.
Walter Gregg Horton, 26 Braemore road, Aberdeen, Boston, Mass.
Edward S. Hosmer, 32 Nassau street, New York, N.Y.
Arthur L. Howard, 53 State street, Boston, Mass.
Arthur C. Jackson, 28 East 41st street, New York, N.Y.
Herbert K. Job, Kent, Conn.
Arthur Treadway Johnson, 113 Devonshire street, Boston, Mass.
Demetrius Kalopothakés, Athens, Greece.
Lindley Miller Keasbey, Bryn Mawr College, Bryn Mawr, Pa.
Michael Edward Kelley, 31 Nassau street, New York, N.Y.
Ralph A. Kellogg, 798 Ellicott square, Buffalo, N.Y.
Frederic H. Kennard, 85 Devonshire street, Boston, Mass.
Willard R. Kimball, 13–16 Gridley Building, Syracuse, N.Y.
Francis Knowles, 1 Union square, New York, N.Y.
Perry Lawton, Quincy, Mass.
William A. Leahy, 64 Pemberton square, Boston, Mass.
George B. Leighton, St. Louis, Mo., and Monadnock, N.H.
Robert Hamilton Leland.
George H. Lent, 14 Post street, San Francisco, Cal.
Robert C. Leroy, Union Club, New York, N.Y.
Leo Rich Lewis, P.O. Box 236, Tufts College, Mass.
Charles Jacob Livingood, care of Thomas Emery's Sons, 111 E. Fourth street, Cincinnati, O.
James Loeb, Shrewsbury, N.J.
Fred Bates Lund, 529 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.
Rowland B. Mahany, 1004–6–8 Prudential Building, Buffalo, N.Y.
R. C. Manning, Jr., Kenyon College, Coambier, O.
Francis Skiddy Marden, 100 Broadway, New York, N.Y.
George E. Marsh, Jr., Pingry School, Elizabeth, N.J.
Edward Campbell Mason, 798 Ellicott square, Buffalo, N.Y.
Henry Lowell Mason, Charlesgate, Boston, Mass.
George Herbert Mead, University of Chicago, Chicago, Ill.
Frederick H. Means, Winchester, Mass.
William Stetson Merrill, The Newberry Library, Chicago, Ill.
H. F. Meserve, care of Oriental Consolidated Mining Company, Chemulpo, Korea.
Harry Roberts Miles, Brattleboro, Vt.
Sidney Roby Miner, 65 Coal Exchange Building, Wilkesbarre, Pa.
William Mitchell, St. Paul, Minn.
Charles Deverd Musaus.
William Nelson, 134–136 North Market street, or Nashville Trust Company, Nashville, Tenn.

William K. Norton, West Roxbury, Mass.
Rupert Norton, care of The Mutual Life Insurance Company, of New York, 200 Boulevard Montmartre, Paris, France.
Peter J. O'Callaghan, 415 West 59th street, New York, N.Y.
Nathan Oppenheim, 50 East 79th street, New York, N.Y. Summer address, Basin Harbor, Vt.
Herman Page, 5025 Madison avenue, Chicago, Ill.
Robert T. Paine, Jr., 85 State street, Boston, Mass.
Bradley W. Palmer, 53 State street.
Franklin D. Peale, Summit, N.J.
Edward Allen Pease, 443 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.
Henry Pennypacker, Boston Latin School, Boston, Mass.
Valentine Mott Pierce, 663 Main street, Buffalo, N.Y.
Edmund Platt, Eagle Office, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.
Frederick Plummer, 24 Milk street, Boston, Mass.
Henry M. Plummer, Sharon, Mass.
Henry T. Pope, Chickamauga Knitting Mills, Chattanooga, Ala.
Charles Allen Porter, 254 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.
Edward B. Pratt, 704 Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.
Henry A. Pulsford, M.D., 139 South Orange avenue, South Orange, N.J.
George Royal Pulsifer, 413 Barristers Hall, 25 Pemberton square, Boston, Mass.
William Rand, Jr., 11 William street, New York, N.Y.
Albert W. Rantoul, Newburyport, Mass.
John E. Reynolds, Meadville, Pa.
Charles B. Rogers, First National Bank, Utica, N.Y.
Charles Joseph Rolfe, 6 Beacon street, Boston, Mass.
William Ropes, 11 Dwight street, Poughkeepsie, N.Y.
Henry W. Sampson.
Edward Hosmer Savary, 40 State street, Boston, Mass.
James A. Saxe, "Saxeholm," Worcester, Mass.
John W. Saxe, 16 State street, Boston, Mass.
Bernard T. Schermerhorn, Clarkston, Washington.
John H. Sedgwick, Milton, Mass.
Thomas T. Seelye, 829 Society for Savings Building, Cleveland, O.
John M. Seip.
Charles Tilden Sempers, 881 Seventh avenue, New York, N.Y.
Jeremiah Sheehan, Newburgh, N.Y.
Herman T. Shepard, West Epping, N.H.
Thomas Osborne Shepard, Salem, Mass.
Chauncey Smith, 78 South Pryor street, Atlanta, Ga.
Edwin W. Spaulding, Pacific Building, Washington, D.C.
Eugene Sondheim, 35 Nassau street, New York, N.Y.
William S. Spaulding, 23 Broad street, Boston, Mass.
Frederick D. Stetson, 42 Grove street, New Bedford, Mass.
Edmund Channing Stowell, 9 Massachusetts avenue, Boston, Mass.
Lynde Sullivan, 40 Water street, Boston, Mass.

William Lawson Sumrall, Harrodsburg, Ky.
Harold Swain, 55 Liberty street, New York, N.Y.
S. L. Swarts, 615 Missouri Trust Building, St. Louis, Mo.
Edward Wyllys Taylor, 416 Marlborough street, Boston, Mass.
Ezra R. Thayer, 53 State street, Boston, Mass.
Lucien S. Thayer, 119 Milk street, Boston, Mass.
William G. Thompson, 1134–1138 Tremont Building, Boston, Mass.
Harvey P. Towle, Massachusetts General Hospital, Boston, Mass.
Edward Warren Trull, 308 Arsworth street, Lowell, Mass.
Ralph Henry Van Deman, care of Adjutant-General, U. S. Army, Washington, D.C.
John W. H. Walden, 13 Mt. Auburn street, Cambridge, Mass.
Ervin Wardman, "New York Press," New York, N.Y.
Henry Steele Wardner, 11 Broadway, New York, N.Y.
Edward Ross Warren, Walnut place, Brookline, Mass.
F. H. Whipple, 1079 Boylston street, Boston, Mass.
Walter M. Willett, Crocker Building, San Francisco, Cal.
Frank Backus Williams, First National Bank Building, Hartford, Conn.
Frank Beverly Williams.
J. Walter Wood, Jr., 56 Wall street, New York, N.Y.
Francis Call Woodman, Morristown School, Morristown, N.J.
William McMichael Woodworth, Museum of Comparative Zoölogy, Harvard University, Cambridge.
Julius F. Workum, 25 Broad street, New York, N.Y.

TEMPORARY MEMBERS.

Benj. L. Boodry, Home National Bank, Brockton, Mass.
Amos Cotting, 11 Pemberton square, Boston, Mass.
Philip Dexter, 40 State street, Boston, Mass.
William F Draper.
E. A. Fargo.
H. M. Federhen.
Paul F. Folsom, 82 Essex street, Boston.
Henry Franc.
Charles R. Holman.
George A. Hopkins, 70 Federal street, Boston, Mass.
John H. Metzerott, Metzerott Building, Washington, D.C.
Walter Sands Mills, 324 West 89th street, New York, N.Y.
Francis L. H. Noble, Sunday editor, "New York World," New York, N.Y.
Frank C. Roby, care of Outen & Roby, Decatur, Ill.
Allan T. Simpkins, 423 Roe Building, St. Louis, Mo.
Isaac Rand Thomas, care of Geo. H. McFadden & Bro., 70 Kilby street, Boston, Mass.
Julius R. Wakefield, care of Old Colony Trust Company, Ames Building, Boston, Mass.
Franklin B. Wiley, 425 Arch street, Philadelphia, Pa.